EFFORTS FAIL TO CRACK ALIBI OF CAMPBELL

Baker Suspect's Story of Whereabouts on Fatal Night Stands Up.

WIFE'S MOVEMENTS ARE ALSO CHECKED

Decision to Send Gun to Chicago Delayed for Pratt's Return.

ANOTHER INSPECTION BY SOUDER PLANNED

Reexamination Is Urged to Make Doubly Sure It Death Pistol.

An all-day investigation yesterday by detectives failed to disclose any material discrepancies in the alibi of Herbert M. Campbell, Arlington County real estate man, who is charged with the murder of Mary E. Baker.

The decision to send the gun turned over to the authorities by Campbell to Maj. Calvin Goddard, in Chicago, for examination is being held in abeyance pending the return to this city of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police.

Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth and Detective Sergt. Carlton Talley yesterday sifted the story of Mrs. Ruth Callahan Campbell, wife of the suspect, and substantiated it until 5:30 o'clock.

Time cards at the Potomac Electric Power Co., in Fourteenth street, showed that Mrs. Campbell arrived at her desk in the purchasing department at 9:01 a. m. on the morning of April 11. According to the cards, she checked out at 5:02 p. m.

Store Clerks Sustain Story.

Mr. Gloth and Sergt. Talley then went to the Parker-Bridget department store at Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue, where Mrs. Campbell said she purchased a Boy Scout belt for her son, Edwin Callahan. Clerks there told Mr. Gloth that they were acquainted with Mrs. Campbell and recall that she made such a purchase between 5:10 and 5:15 o'clock on the day of the murder. Duplicate sales slips in the company records established the date of the purchase as April 11.

An unsuccessful effort was made by the investigators to locate Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith, with whom Campbell says he spent the time from 8 o'clock until 9:30 o'clock on the night of the murder. Campbell told authorities that the couple lived in Hamilton street, near Sixth northwest.

Inquiries there brought information that such a couple had lived there, but had since moved to Arkansas. They were unable, however, to learn the couple's address in that State. Arkansas authorities will be asked to locate them.

One Rumor Scouted.

Mr. Gloth and Detective Sergt. Talley then went to Virginia Highlands to interview a man who was reported to have said that Campbell was acquainted with the slain girl. The source of this information disclaimed any knowledge of it and said that the rumor was without foundation.

Mr. Gloth and Sergt. Talley last night again interviewed Thomas A. King, 1349 Harvard street northwest, who corroborated Campbell's story that he took his stepson to a scout review on the night of April 11.

Mr. King showed the investigators some of the records which assured them of the date of the review. Mr. King told them that Campbell had talked with him about 7:30 o'clock on the night of the murder.

At a conference at police headquarters with Inspector William S. Shelby, Mr. Gloth arranged to have Dr. Wilmer Souder make a recheck of his identification that Campbell's gun was used by the killer of the girl. Inspector Shelby said that there is no question in his mind but that the gun owned by Campbell fired the fatal shots. The reexamination of the gun by Maj. Goddard and possibly by Dr. Souder is being done at the instance of Campbell.

Campbell feels that there has been some mistake made in Dr. Souder's identification, although the authorities are willing to accept his verdict as conclusive.

Bullets to Go With Gun.

Upon return of Maj. Pratt, the gun will be taken to Maj. Goddard, probably by Inspector Shelby. In addition to the gun, two of the bullets taken from the murdered girl's body will be sent for comparison with the test bullets.

Dr. Souder is out of the city. Before having the gun and bullets examined by Maj. Goddard, Inspector Shelby wishes to talk with Dr. Souder. To eliminate all possible doubt and particularly to give Campbell assurance that his gun was used in the

Says: The vacation season has come again. Rightly used it restores the vigor of mind and body by change and relaxation. We can not always dwell on the heights. We can not always be at our best. If we are to do work of the highest excellence our periods of high activity must be followed by periods of rest. Some firms where the pressure is very great require their members to take two or three months vacation.

A great wealth of out of doors awaits those who seek it. The long stretches of shore by sea and lake, the woods and hills of our Northern States, all have a variety of scene and charm which the world can not surpass.

But many of us would pass by the great scenic beauties, the natural wonders of the Nation, or too fashionable watering places, to revisit the quiet, secluded and humbler regions of our childhood home. It may be changed now. The old familiar forms may be gone. But memory remains. The love of a mother and father dwelt there. From that shrine we return always bringing with us a renewal of the strength of the hills or the plains and the inspiration to a nobler purpose.

I.C.C. ORDERS GRAIN FREIGHT RATE SLASH

Will Cut Western Roads' Earnings $15,000,000, Is Estimate.

NEW METHOD OUTLINED

(Associated Press.)

A general reduction in grain rates throughout Western territory and to principal seaports was ordered yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission, to become effective October 1.

Members of the commission estimated the application of the new schedules will reduce earnings of Western railroads by $15,000,000 or more per annum, but that some of this sum has been compensated for by recently granted increases in classified freight rates.

A new method of making schedules, described as "the ratebreak basis," was prescribed for the railroads to follow. This rate form was sought by the business interests of nearly all the great Western primary grain market cities.

Under the new system one rate will apply on wheat and other grain and grain products, such as flour and meal. The commission considered proposals to establish a system of export rates definitely lower than the schedules applying to domestic shipments, but rejected it and left the present relationship between export and domestic rates substantially unchanged.

While on the whole substantial reductions are expected to result from the application of the decision, some wheat rates from North Dakota were increased, as were rates on other types of grain from North Dakota and Minnesota to principal markets.

The findings were entered at the conclusion of a special investigation instituted after the adoption of the Hoch-Smith congressional resolution ordering the commission to apply the lowest rates to products of agriculture affected by depression, but the decision was careful to state that its findings resulted from an endeavor to perform its general duty of prescribing reasonable rates.

It added that the exact consequences of its new schedules are impossible to foretell in advance, and that "in the light of increased revenues already granted in cretain other cases" to Western railroads the grain reduction "will not threaten the maintenance of an adequate system of transportation."

HOOVER TAKES HAND IN DISTRICT AFFAIRS

Commissioners and Grant Are Invited to Camp for Week-End.

PLANS TO BE DISCUSSED

President Hoover took a direct hand in the administration of District affairs yesterday when he summoned to his camp on the Rapidan River in Virginia for a visit over the week-end the District Commissioners and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The President, it was said, wished to confer with the men he has named to administer affairs of the National Capital and to tell them his own ideas on various subjects connected with the muncipal government and the development of the city.

The invitation was issued a few days after the President had completed the naming of a group of executives of his own choice to administer District affairs.

Col. Grant was retained in his post as executive officer of the Park and Planning Commission at the instance of the President, although the colonel was slated for transfer to another post under the Army rule limiting assignment in one place to four years.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer and Maj. Herbert B. Crosby were named District Commissioners in April, but Maj. John C. Gotwalls assumed office as Engineer Commissioner only last Monday, replacing Col. William B. Ladue, who was named Engineer Commissioner by former President Coolidge.

That Mr. Hoover intended to keep more than a cursory eye on the administration of affairs of the National Capital was indicated at the time he named the successors to Proctor L. Dougherty and Sidney F. Taliaferro. The President made it clear that he intended Gen. Crosby to have charge of the police and fire departments. In the past the division of the various municipal departments among the Commissioners has been left largely to the Commissioners themselves, except the engineer departments, which are supervised by the engineer commissioner and his three assistants.

Having named the men he wants to conduct District affairs, President Hoover is said now to be ready to go into more details with them as to how he thinks matters should be arranged and what should be planned for the future.

It is significant that Col. Grant was taken along on the trip, for there has been a growing tension between

SENATOR FESS AND LUCAS TO GOVERN G. O. P.

INTERNAL REVENUE MAN GETS NEW POST

Hopkins, of New York, Is Seen as Possibility for Secretaryship.

PARTY CHIEFS AGREE ON REORGANIZATION

Harassed Chairman Keeps Word and Calls Session for August 7.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

A blood transfusion is to be given the Republican national committee at a meeting of the executive committee here August 7 to put it on its feet for the November campaigns.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, is to succeed Claudius Huston as national chairman, and Robert H. Lucas, of Kentucky, internal revenue commissioner, is to fill the newly created place of chairman of the executive committee. He will be the committee power, Senator Fess serving more or less nominally and to give the chairmanship that air of purity for which he is known all over the country.

The long vacant secretaryship is also to be filled, probably by J. J. Hopkins, of New York. There has been no secretary since the resignation of Representative Fort, of New Jersey.

Leaders Agree on Reorganization.

The reorganization was virtually agreed upon by party leaders yesterday following the definite announcement by Mr. Huston that he would submit his resignation August 7.

True to his word, the much harassed chairman issued a formal call for the executive committee meeting. It made no reference to the most important business which it will have to transact, but simply said that the meeting was for the purpose of getting together for the forthcoming campaign. The call read:

"A meeting of the executive committee of the Republican national committee of which you are a member is hereby called for Thursday, August 7, at 11 o'clock a. m. * * * for the consideration of such business as may properly come before it.

Will Inject New Life.

"Because of the imminence of the campaign for the election of all the members of the House of Representatives and more than one-third of the Senate, and the importance of the matters to come before the meeting, a full attendance is desired, and I trust you may find it possible to be present or represented by proxy."

Lucas is to give up his post as internal revenue commissioner and devote his entire time to politics. He is to serve on a regular salary basis, the amount yet to be determined.

He will be pretty much to the Republican organization what Jouett Shouse is to the Democratic national committee. The man has never served outside of his own State before, but in that sphere he is said to have an excellent reputation as a capable organizer and political administrator. There was talk that later he may become national chairman.

Rise in Politics Rapid.

His rise in nationa. politics has been rapid. He was hardly known in Washington until Mr. Hoover appointed him internal revenue commissioner, but since coming here he has gotton around so much that the first suggestion that he be worked into the national committee was quickly embraced by the party leaders.

There is reason to believe that he takes the place with considerable reluctance because the national com-

American Veteran Beats Borotra; Lott Bows to Cochet.

DAVIS CUP MATCHES THRILL HUGE CROWD

"Big Bill's" French Rival Gains Lead, but Is Loser in 4 Sets.

TIFF WITH UMPIRE MARKS ENCOUNTER

Youthful Yankee Hope Easy for Foe; Teams Meet in Doubles Today.

BY SMITH REAVIS.

Paris, July 25 (A.P.).—Big Bill Tilden, veteran of ten Davis Cup campaigns, hung a French scalp to his belt to begin his eleventh today. He defeated Jean Borotra—a Borotra at the top of his form—in four sets 2—6, 7—5, 6—4, 7—5. Thus he justified his last minute inclusion in the to the showers with a straight set deinvading American forces and did it with such decision that not a soul in the 10,000 who watched the opening of the 1930 challenge round had the least doubt who was the better.

Two hours later little Henri Cochet had taken his revenge for Wimbledon by sending Young George Lott feat, 6—4, 6—2, 6—2. The score when the evening shadows settled over Auteuil was America one, France one, and the fate of the Davis Cup for 1930 still hung very much in the balance. The doubles match will be played tomorrow and the final pair of singles Sunday.

Big Stadium Filled.

Despite more than a hint of rain and a hot, muggy day, there wasn't a vacant place in the big stadium when Tilden and Borotra began the usual preliminary ball slugging. As the veteran umpire Nicolas Redelsperber climbed into his little pulpit a warm, gusty wind blew slantwise across the courts. It seemed to bother both players a bit.

Like a couple of wary boxers each felt out the other's ability in the early stages of play. They stuck to the baselines, stroked safely down the lines and played safe returns for position rather than trying for kills. Big Bill was on edge, nervous from the outset. His eagerness made him net and out balls that normally he would have shot across the winning points.

Borotra, on the other hand, soon had the measure of the court. He played for position and let the big Philadelphian do most of the running. Games followed service until the fourth, when the bounding Basque broke through. He won the next two easily as Bill continuously overdrove the lines.

Tilden Collects Self.

Tilden seemed to find himself in the seventh game. He stopped Borotra's service with three nice placements, but he couldn't keep the pace and his own errors convicted him in the final game of the set. There was joy in the French camp and lots of bets were made on the strength of Tilden's erratic play that Borotra would at last overcome the jinx that has followed him in Tilden matches.

That joy grew and flourished for the major part of the second set, for Borotra, sure and accurate, varying the depth and pace of his ground strokes and implacable at the net, took the first, third, fourth, fifth and seventh games to lead 5—2. It was the critical point of the match and Tilden, casting aside his nervousness, rose to meet it.

Big Bill's service, erratic and unsure in the earlier stages, began to slap across the net with its usual regularity. He took the eighth game with two placement beauties and finished off the ninth with a service

NEW SHOCKS RAVAGE QUAKE ZONE IN ITALY AS KING VISITS SCENE

Daughter of Mellon Gets Virginia Estate

Secretary of Treasury Reported to Have Been Purchaser.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, is reliably reported to have purchased a historic Virginia estate for his daughter, the former Ailsa Mellon, now Mrs. David K. Estes Bruce.

The estate bears the name of Oak Hill and is located in Loudoun County, about three miles from Leesburg and along the highway to Middleburg. It is about 40 miles from Washington.

Covering 1,200 acres, the estate is of the spacious colonial type that is becoming so rare and so valuable nowadays. The house is of brick construction and is well over 100 years old.

The fifth President of the United States, James Monroe, was one of the first occupants of the mansion, and Senator Henry Fairfax was another resident there. Its last previous owner, who sold it to Secretary Mellon, is Frank C. Littleton.

The price of the estate is understood to be approximately $700,000. The colonial mansion and its surrounding grounds are said to be one of the most beautiful in the State of Virginia.

Mrs. Bruce, whose husband is the son of former Senator William Cabell Bruce, of Maryland, has been in poor health and some time ago she went to Southern Italy with her father in search of a health restoring climate. Mr. Bruce has been in the consular service. They were married in Washington in June, 1926, in one of the most fashionable and elaborate weddings ever witnessed by Capital society.

Treviso Storm Takes Toll of More Than Score; New Peril in Floods.

Potenza, Italy, July 25 (A.P.).—Five new earthquake shocks were felt today in the quake-stricken area of southern Italy as King Victor Emmanuel arrived on the scene to guide and comfort his harrowed subjects.

Many buildings, weakened by Wednesday's upheaval, crumbled and fell, but no new injuries or loss of life were reported.

The first shocks closely succeeded one another at about 10 a. m., bringing new terror to the worn and sleepless populace. Three briefer ones followed at about 3 in the afternoon. All were felt throughout the devastated districts, and were especially strong at Melfi, a community that already has suffered most severely.

Italy's soldier king, bound on this errand of mercy in a district that seemed to have been wracked by the convulsions of warfare, drove over the torn up roads with the same serene optimism he manifested on the hard-fought Piave front during the World War.

Presence Renews Hope.

His presence brought renewed hope in life to the people, overwrought by the five new shocks on the third day of terrible subterranean convulsions of nature.

The stunned and saddened populace greeted his majesty everywhere with affectionate deference, now and then breaking into cheers. But in general, their grief and bewilderment prevented the usual outburts of enthusiasm saluting his passage.

Unofficial announcement was made after the king's departure that the government had decided to exempt from all taxes for at least ten years the inhabitants of the earthquake zone.

King Victor alighted from the royal train at Rochetta-St. Antonio, in the heart of the earthquake zone, at 3:20 p. m., just about the time three slight shocks occurred.

A check up tonight over the whole area failed to reveal any more serious consequences than further material damage.

In Melfi, the Pacchioli palace collapsed and many houses developed dangerous fissures. The town jail was badly shaken, one wall crumbling, and seventeen prisoners tried to escape. All were panic stricken, but were held at bay by two guards with drawn revolvers. They were later taken in irons by special train to the jail at Foggia.

On his motor tour from Rochetta, the king wore a simple fatigue uniform of the Italian army, without the heavy silver epaulettes and the purple sash he wears on ceremonial occasions.

Many Relatives in U. S.

In an open car he immediately drove off with Minister of Public Works Crollalanza. There were no cars following or escorting him, but along the route carabinieri were stationed in pairs every half mile.

His majesty planned to pass the night in the royal train at Avellino, capital of stricken Avellino Province. He will visit other centers tomorrow and probably return to Rome on Sunday.

Among other things brought to the sovereign's attention was the fact

FIVE DIE AS PLANES CRASH, FALL ON MAN

CHUTE JUMPER IS KILLED

Mexico City, July 25 (A.P.).—Less than a mile from the crowded center of Mexico City, two army airplanes collided today and crashed to the ground. Four military aviators and a civilian, who was playing handball below, were killed.

One of the aviators jumped with a parachute, but when it failed to open he fell to his death. His body was buried in the soil.

Both airplanes, colliding as one was coming down and the other going up from the Valbuena Field, fell on the cement handball court of Carranza athletic field. Their weckage ripped off a foot of thick cement wall between two adjacent courts.

An unidentified peon, who was playing handball as the plane fell, had no chance to escape, but the man with whom he was playing miraculously got from under the falling wreckage.

The accident occurred near the end of the morning's practice flying formations at the field.

The dead aviators are Capt. Paul Mujica and Lieuts. Humberto Enrique Salcedos, Napoleon Fernandez Rojo and Pablo Caso Lopez.

The accident was one of the worst in the history of Mexico's military air forces. Two squadrons of nine planes each were maneuvering in the air when it occurred, and their zeal to outdo one another is blamed for the accident. The airmen, before taking off, had made a bet that the members of the squadron that performed best would be treated to lunch by the losers.

50,000 PAY TRIBUTE TO SLAIN RADIO MAN

Thousands Pass Before Bier as Police Hold Pair in His Murder.

WOMAN UNDER ARREST

Detroit, July 25 (A.P.).—Thousands of men, women and children today and tonight paid their tribute to Jerry Buckley, slain radio orator, walking in a never ending line past his bier in the living room of his home.

This spontaneous procession, which started last night, grew throughout the day and showed no signs of diminishing as the hour for closing the home approached. Police estimated the crowd at 50,000 or more. The family announced that no visitors would be received after midnight, when preparations would begin for the funeral tomorrow morning at St. Gregory's Catholic Church.

In the meanwhile, police were holding a man and a woman whom they consider important figures in the investigation of the killing. The man is Jack Klein, motion picture operator, who was sitting beside Buckley in the lobby of the La Salle Hotel when he was killed by three gunmen early Wednesday morning, a short time after he had completed announcing the results of the mayoralty recall election over station WMBC, where he was political commentator. Klein failed in an effort to secure release on a writ of habeas corpus.

The woman's name was not revealed. County Prosecutor James E. Chenot said that he was seeking through her a man she said intimated to her in advance that Buckley would be killed. Another woman, Miss Jeanne Alexander, a singer, was questioned briefly, but could tell po-

One Family Fails to Agree; Baby Mixup Back at Start

Watkins Refuses to Accept Either Decision of Two Science Groups.

Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—The Bamberger-Watkins baby case was more mixed up today than ever.

Yesterday a jury of scientists decreed the two three-weeks-old infants had been correctly tagged at birth but confused in the hospital and that the Charles Bamberger heir was in the William Watkins home and vice versa.

Watkins accepted the verdict, but Bamberger did not.

Last night a jury of physicians declared that the offsprings were in the right homes but with their labels confused. Later the Watkinses and the Bambergers were reported to have agreed. Each couple took back home the youngster they had been caring for all along.

But today Watkins, haggard and unshaven, asserted that the Watkins

This section is outstanding because of the diversified character of pictures gathered from all over the world and in the care taken in their selection . . . On the first page of tomorrow's issue is a picture of President and Mrs. Hoover which probably contains more human interest than any other ever taken of them. Another, full page, depicts scenes of German jubilation following French evacuation of the Rhineland.

SUNDAY POST

What causes earthquakes such as the one that has just taken more than 3,000 lives in southern Italy? David Rankin Barbee, special Post writer, delves into the subject and reviews some of the most disastrous quakes in history.

Sixteen years after the outbreak of the World War finds many readjustments among the royalty of the world. A survey of this shakeup is interestingly portrayed in The Sunday Post by Herbert S. Hollander.

A penetrating character study of Mrs. Ruth B. Shipley, the woman who starts you abroad in her capacity of chief of the United States Passport Division, is the subject of another article.

Two phases of the "Old Brick Capitol" are discussed; one reconstructs the scenes that were enacted in the structure more than a century ago while the other considers the issue of whether the edifice at First and A streets northeast is the historic building.

Vause, New York Jurist, Convicted of Mail Fraud

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—W. Bernard Vause, former county judge of Brooklyn, was found guilty of mail fraud today by a jury in Federal court.

Vause was found guilty on all of 12 counts against him in connection with his activities in the Columbia Finance Corporation, which failed for $400,000 last December.

Two of six codefendants with Judge Vause—Samuel Schuchman and Harry Cruso—were found guilty on some of the counts. Among the four acquitted was Vause's brother, Louis. Three figures in the finance corporation had pleaded guilty and testified for the Government.

Vause was also found guilty on a thirteenth count charging conspiracy.

SUNDAY POST

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States

Appears on Page 18 Today

that this region until recently had been almost depopulated by the rush of emigrants to America, which lasted until the passage of the United States immigration laws. In fact, many of the townships affected by the earthquake had more of their native born in the United States than within the home boundaries.

In order to reassure relatives far and near, an order, perhaps inspired by the royal visit, went forth from the provincial prefects to all the mayors to make every effort to compile during tomorrow a final estimate of the dead.

King Victor's itinerary included such hard-smitten townships as Aquilonia, Lacedonia and Melfi. At the last named he gazed [illegible] the towering remains of the historic palace once inhabitated by Frederick II.

Danger Is Indicated.

His majesty commended the foresight of the troop commanders in painting big red crosses reminiscent of war days, on uninhabitable houses, as a warning to the townspeople against entering.

Big searchlights flashed over the countryside tonight to take the place of lighting formerly supplied by power plants put out of action by the quake.

One of the most trying tasks for the Italian army is supplying the populace with water. The breaking of conduits and filling in of wells have obliged dwellers in some communities to go two or three miles for any drinkable liquid. A good deal to alleviate their distress has been done by tank trucks.

Military authorities from Naples have already distributed about 80,000 regular bread rations to the homeless, 15,600 tins of the Italian equivalent for corned beef and 11,800 rations of hard tack requisitioned from the Naples naval base.

In view of the large number of bodies still lying under ruined buildings, it appeared that the listing of the dead would be an arduous task. A further complication is that many of the mayors charged with compiling statistics perished in the earthquake, along with their asistants and registrars.

Government officials on the spot were apparently stung by suggestions that today's official death list of 1,883 was much below the real level. They are making a strenuous effort to produce accurate figures.

Help Sent to Sufferers.

Rome, July 25 (A.P.).—Help for the stricken population of quake-torn southern Italy was pouring into the devastated region today as the Italian government threw every resource into relief measures.

King Victor Emmanuel himself, who had started for the scene as soon as the gravity of Wednesday's shocks was realized, reached the town of Rochetta, in the province of Avellino, which suffered heaviest of all in the earth convulsions.

The ruler went to inspect the relief work in progress and to take comfort to his subjects. With him were various officials who are actively engaged in the work of aiding the injured and sheltering the thousands of homeless. He traveled over the area by automobile and planned to visit other stricken towns.

At the same time, Mgr. Spirito Chiapetta, a special envoy of the Pope, started a tour of the region and reached Benevento, which also suffered heavily in the disaster.

The exact number of dead in the great quake was still somewhat obscure tonight and the government was compiling a detailed account which will be made public as soon as possible.

The latest government figures place the number of dead at 1,883, with the injured at 4,264.

Avellino's Loss Heaviest.

Of these by far the largest number of victims were in the province of Avellino, where the government reported 1,607 lives lost.

Reports were received during the day quoting Gen. Balstroochi, commanding the Neapolitan zone, as placing the number of dead in Avellino at 2,573, but this was denied tonight in a communique issued by the Stefani News Agency.

The communique stated that the ministry of the interior was announcing "with scrupulous precision the number of assured dead which is reported to the ministry by the authorities on the spot who have the general direction of and responsibility for relief service. "There is no motive for not telling the exact truth about the number of dead," the statement continued. When it will be possible, a list of victims will be communicated complete.

The government's figures of 1,883 dead, however, were qualified by the statement that they might undergo change as the final reports were received.

A hurricane in the north of the kingdom added today to the bewilderment caused by Wednesday's disastrous earthquakes in the South. Storms, floors, heat and snow crippled other parts of the country.

Score Die in Storm.

To the officially recorded dead from the earthquakes, a hurricane last night at Treviso, near Venice, added 22 victims.

Reports of the dead continued to trickle in today from places unchecked heretofore, more and more bodies being pulled from the ruins of buildings. Unofficial estimates placed the number of dead at 3,000.

There were indications, too, that more victims would be found in the wake of the Treviso storm. Heavy damage was wrought over 25 miles, with many buildings wrecked at Barco de Sesegana, Nervesa, Selva and Volpago.

Nor was the Treviso hurricane the only other outburst of nature to tear the nerves of a dazed kingdom.

A violent windstorm yesterday visited Naples, damaged by the earth shocks, and terrorized the uneasy inhabitants. Great waves pounded over the sea wall and flimsy buildings were torn down.

Neapolitans were worried, in addition, by their proximity to Mt. Vesuvius, fearing the earth shocks might lead to eruptions.

Rome Suffers Gale.

Rome also had a windstorm yesterday which frightened its citizens, while high winds were reported in numerous other places.

Over most of the stricken regions an intense heat wave added to the discomfort, but in the far north another vagary of weather was noted. Unseasonable snow fell on the peaks of the Dolomite Mountains, in the Alpine region, while a severe storm swept the vicinity of Trento. The Adige River went out of its banks and other streams were swollen.

Treviso, Italy, July 25 (A.P.).—New figures on the hurricane which swept down the Piave Valley last night showed that 22 persons were killed, 100 were injured and 300 houses damaged.

The storm tore down many buildings, principally at Barco di Sesegana, Nervesa, Selva and Volpago and swept over a stretch of 25 miles. Relief expeditions were organized immediately.

Shriners Send $1,000.

Richmond, Va., July 25 (A.P.).—James H. Price, imperial recorder of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, today cabled $1,000 to Premier Mussolini of Italy on behalf of his organiation to be used in immediate earthquake relief work.

Mr. Price, who is lieutenant governor of Virginia, said he had acted under instructions from the imperial potentate of the shrine, Esten A. Fletcher, of Rochester, N. Y.

LIVING COSTS SHOW 2.8 PER CENT DROP

Foods Lead in Decreases in Costs for Items in 32 Cities, Says Report.

SURVEY OF SIX MONTHS

Cost of living in the United States decreased an average of 2.8 per cent in the six-months' period from December, 1929, to June, 1930, according to data collected by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor in its semiannual survey in 32 cities. This decrease varied from 0.6 to 4.9 per cent in the different cities.

From June, 1929, to June, 1930, the average cost of living decreased 2.11 per cent, while from the peak of prices in June, 1920, to June, 1930, the average decrease was 23 per cent. The June, 1930, cost of living index for the United States was 166.6, based on 1913 as 100.

Food Prices Show Big Drop.

Food prices show the greatest decrease of the six groups of items in the six-months' period from December, 1929, to June, 19930, declining 6.4 per cent. Fuel and light take second place in point of declining prices for this period, decreasing 3.3 per cent. Rents decreased 1.5 per cent; clothing and house furnishing goods eac hdecreased 1 per cent, and miscellaneous items increased 0.3 per cent.

From December, 1929, to June, 1930, food and clothing prices decreased in all of the 32 cities. The decreases in food ranged from 3.4 to 8.6 per cent in the several cities. The decreases in clothing prices ranged from 0.1 to 2.2 per cent.

Rents Decline in 31 Cities.

Rents declined in 31 cities, the decreases ranging from 0.2 per cent to 8.8 per cent. A slight increase, 0.1 per cent, was reported for only one city.

Fuel and light prices decreased in 28 cities, the decrease ranging from 0.2 to 15.2 per cent. Increases were reported in four cities and ranged from 0.1 to 2.8 per cent.

House furnishing goods decreased in 27 cities, the decrease ranging from 0.1 to 2.5 per cent. Four cities represented increases ranging from 0.1 to 1.6 ped cent. No change was reported in one city.

Miscellaneous items increased in fifteen cities, these increases ranging from 0.1 to 5.0 per cent. Decreases in miscellaneous items in thirteen cities ranged from 0.1 to 1.8 per cent. No change occurred in this group of items in four cities.

GREEN FUNERAL SERVICES.

U. S. Scientist Buried in Glenwood Cemetery Ceremony.

Funeral services were conducted yesterday in the chapel at Glenwood Cemetery for John Van Dyke Green, an outstanding figure in the Scientific Division of the Bureau of Fisheries, who died Sunday in Denver, Colo.

The Rev. Robert A. Castleman, of Old Falls Church, Falls Church, Va., and the Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett, of All Souls' Memorial Episcopal Church, officiated. Burial was in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Gren was the son of the late Dr. Charles Scott Green and Elizabeth Van Dyke Green, of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., and a graduate of the late Dr. Henry Van Dyke, of Philadelphia. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Harriet Finckel Green, daughter of William H. Finckel, of Washington; a son, John Van Dyke Green, jr.; a daughter, Harriet Elizabeth Green; a sister, Mrs. Nannie Green Jobe; and a niece, Miss Elizabeth Jobe, all of Washington.

Mr. Green retired from the Bureau of Fisheries several years ago. He had been in failing health for some time prior to his death, his condition becoming serious on Friday of last week.

ADMIRAL ROUSSEAU RITES.

Services for Officer Who Died at Sea to Be Buried Here Monday.

Funeral services for Rear Admiral Harry H. Rousseau, chief coordinator and director of the naval oil reserves, who died at sea on Thursday, will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, Eighteenth and Church streets northwest. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery at 11 o'clock.

Stricken with apoplexy, Admiral Rousseau died on board the Cristobal en route to the Panama Zone. The body will be brought to Charleston, S. C., and thence to Washington. Admiral Rousseau started his career as an engineer, took part in construction of the Panama Canal and earned a distinguished record during the World War.

GILBERT B. TOWLES RITES.

Funeral Services Held for Veteran of Civil War.

Funeral services were held yesterday in St. Stephen's and Incarnation Church for Gilbert B. Towles, 93-year-old veteran of the Civil War, who died Wednesday. Burial was in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Towles, who was a native of Washington, was a member of the District of Columbia National Rifles during the Civil War, and was an aid at the inauguration of President Lincoln and the second inauguration of President Cleveland. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Caroline G. Towles.

HISTORIC CRUISERS WILL GO ON BLOCK

Navy Asks Bids for Ships That Convoyed Soldiers During War.

ONE WON HAWAII FAME

(Associated Press.)

Two obsolete cruisers which convoyed American soldiers overseas and one of which prevented the war-time destruction of port facilities in Honolulu are to be sold to the highest bidders.

The Navy announced yesterday that bids will be received on August 7 for the historic cruisers the Huntington, formerly the West Virginia, and the St. Louis.

Both vessels safely escorted merchantmen and troop transports through many miles of dangerous waters during the war, but the 10,500-ton St. Louis, which with others of its type is being replaced by more modern and faster cruisers of about the same size, figured in a more spectacular affair.

The German gunboat Geier was interned in Honolulu. The crew of the St. Louis saw smoke billowing from the hold of the gunboat and a boarding party from the cruiser found shrapnel fuses scattered about and a fire of oil-soaked waste and wood underneath a dry boiler.

Within a few minutes the boiler would have burst, exploding ammunition aboard and spreading fire, shells and splinters of metal about the harbor.

The crew of the St. Louis threw lines across the gunboat and warped her to a pier, where chemicals extinguished the blaze after an all-day fight.

Women Guards Wanted ForF Detention House

Additional women guards at the House of Detention are wanted by the Police Department, according to the Civil Service Commission which announced yesterday that applications for the position would be accepted until August 5.

The entrance salary is $1,200 a year, less $300 for quarters and subsistence, and higher salaries are obtainable through promotion. Age limits are 20 and 45 years, and sound physical condition is required. Applicants must have had experience as teachers or nurses, or as guards of welfare workers in correctional institutions, or similar experience.

Boy Sues Autoist, Asking $20,000

"Express Wagon" Struck; Supplementary Action Filed by Father.

A collision between an automobile and a boy's wagon in a school zone near John Burroughs School while the lad was returning to his home after a day spent in mastering the "Three Rs" was echoed in District Supreme Court yesterday, when John G. Linthicum, jr., the student, and his father, John G. Linthicum, both of 3715 Thirtieth street northeast, filed suits seeking to recover $25,000 damages from Cassius S. Larimer, of 3240 Nineteenth street northwest, alleged operator of the motor vehicle.

Young Linthicum claims to have been seriously injured and wants $20,000 as compensation. His father seeks $5,000 for loss of his son's service and medical expenses.

The accident, according to the particulars set out in the suits, occurred on Monroe street northeast, between Eighteenth and Twentieth streets, in a zone that was plainly designated as a school zone. It is charged that the defendant was negligent in the operation of the automobile and in addition to failing to keep a proper lookout, neglected to sound a warning. Attorney L. J. Ganse appears for the plaintiffs in both suits

Canceled Check's Ownership Issue

Attorney in Liquor Case Seeks Ruling; Protests Use as Evidence.

The question of whether canceled checks held at a bank are the property of the institution or the person who draws them is expected to be decided soon by Justice Jesse C. Adkins in District of Columbia Supreme Court.

The question was raised yesterday in a plea in bar of trial, filed by Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer on behalf of Herbert Glassman, who, with twelve other men, is charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. Attorney Newmyer charges that at the time of the grand jury investigation of the alleged conspiracy a subpena duces tecum was directed against the United States Savings Bank, where Glassman held his account, demanding production of his canceled checks before the inquisitorial body.

Attorney Newmyer declares that the presentation of the checks to the grand jury as evidence was tantamount to having Glassman appear against himself. He points out that if Glassman had testified he would have been extended immunity and asserts that the same immunity should have been extended in regard to the checks. The checks, according to the attorney, were mostly in the handwriting of the defendant.

STEEL MERGER SUIT ENDS FOR WEEK-END

Eaton Attorneys in Midst of Fight on Proxies Favoring Action.

SALE OF VOTES IS BARED

Youngstown, Ohio, July 25 (A.P.). Trial of the suit to enjoin merger of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. with Bethlehem Steel Corporation adjourned for the week-end today with attorneys for the Cyrus S. Eaton interests in the midst of their offensive against proxies voted for ratification of the merger by stockholders last April 8.

The trial will enter its fifth week Monday.

N. A. Kercher, a former machinist of Youngstown, testified today he received $2,500 extra for 1,000 shares of stock he sold to W. J. Morris, vice president of the Youngstown company, in consideration of his proxy for 1,400 additional shares.

857,821 Votes Cast For.

Other witnesses of the day were Walter E. Meub, secretary of the Youngstown company, who related the details of the stockholders' meeting, in which 857,821 of 1,199,612 eligible shares of common stock were cast in favor of the merger, and President Frank Purnell, of the Youngstown company, who was questioned about a lease on offices which his company signed at about the same time the owners of the offices gave their proxy for 12,000 shares.

Attorneys for the Cyrus S. Eaton interests, foes of the consolidation, hope to prove that enough of the stock was illegally voted to make the merger void.

Prior to their attack on the proxies the suit has been directed toward their charges of fraud and concealment in the negotiaitions preceding the merger contract.

Individuals' Proxies Fought.

Proxies given by fiduciaries for 128,400 shares have been placed in evidence and today the attack was concentrated on proxies given by individuals and corporations totaling 36,631 shares.

Monday the attorneys are expected to go into the voting by promergerists of a large block of stock sold to the Eaton interests after the record date, March 22, for stock to be voted at the merger meeting.

The Eaton attorneys contend this stock, amounting to 60,000 shares, enough in itself to defeat the merger, should not have been voted.

LESLIE DAVIS, 46, DIES.

Former Pullman Co. Employe, Long Ill, Will Be Buried Monday.

After an illness of ten years Leslie Davis, formerly employed in the assistant superintendent's office of the Pullman Co., died yesterday at his home at 1855 Calvert street northwest.

Mr. Davis came to Washington 30 years ago from Occoquan, Va., where he was born. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Jennie Davis. He was 46 years old. Funeral and burial services will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at Pohick Church, Va.

MRS. WILLIAMS FUNERAL.

Services Are Held in Chapel at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jennie Spencer Williams, who died Tuesday at her residence, 4201 Hill street, Brentwood, Md., were held yesterday in the chapel at Fort Lincoln Cemetery, where burial was made. The Rev. William A. Lambeth, pastor of Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church, officiated.

Mrs. Williams, who was the widow of the late Charles R. Williams, superintendent of mails of the City Postoffice, was an employe of the Treasury Department. She was born in Ionia, Mich., but had lived here since she was a young girl. She is survived by five children, Mrs. John Holman Brittain, of San Francisco, and Mrs. James Bradford, Miss Marion Frances Williams, Charles Richard Williams and Ernest Roland Williams, all of Washington.

FESS IS GIVEN CALL TO REPLACE HUSTON

Party Leaders Select Lucas to Fill Newly Created Committee Post.

mittee is not looked upon just at this time as a good berth for a budding political leader.

By the nature of things the Republicans have everything to lose and nothing to gain in the forthcoming campaigns. It is not a case of their winning any seats, but of trying to hold down their losses. Under such circumstances there is not much opportunity for a campaign manager to shine. The burden of the campaign will, of course, be carried by the House and Senatorial campaign committees, but it is the dream of the Republican leaders to get the national committee working as an effective coordinator of all activities.

Hopkins Has Experience.

The prospective new secretary, Mr. Hopkins, has had considerable organization experience, although he has ridden losing horses heretofore. This is also Mr. Lucas' experience in Kentucky, but Republican victory in either Kentucky or New York is a fair demand of any man.

Mr. Hopkins managed the gubernatorial campaign of former Attorney General Ottinger in 1928 and the vice presidential efforts of Majority Leader Tilson, of the House, in the same year. He is thus revealed as a horse for work, at any rate.

Mr. Huston's announcement that he would resign and his call for simply the executive committee means that he has given up any notion of trying to get the scalps of some of those he considers responsible for his predicament. He plans now to quit gracefully and let bygones be bygones. If he intended to start a fight as he had been urged to do by some of his friends he would call the full national committee together. He has no strength in the executive committee.

Climax Comes Suddenly.

It was the fear that he might fall into the hands of those friends who were urging him to fight that caused James Francis Burke to grab Mr. Huston when he came unexpectedly into town Thursday night. Mr. Burke and Mr. Nutt had been to New York to see Mr. Huston at the President's request and they did not expect him here until yesterday.

When he showed up Thursday night Mr. Burke took him right in tow and got him over to the White House where the pact was signed on the dotted line, so to speak. It was quite evident in all quarters that the President took a firm hand in the controversy and that it was this that brought on the climax. For a matter that had dragged along until it was laughable to everybody but the party leaders the climax came with startling suddenness.

Mother of Eight Sues for Divorce

Husband Refuses Support, Wife Says, and Outlines Money Troubles.

After 21 years of married life, Lucy M. Greet, of K street northeast near Third street, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to grant her a limited divorce from James U. Greet, of Eighth street northwest near L street, the father of her eight children, seven of whom are living. The wife also asks for adequate maintenance for herself and the children, all of whom are minors.

Through Attorney Nita S. Hinman the woman tells the court that ever since her marriage, on April 11, 1909, her husband has been in the habit of walking off and leaving his family for days at the time. On one occasion, she states, he wrote to her while absent that he "Hoped God would take care of the children, for he wouldn't." The wife charges that Greet has an ungovernable temper and states that the last time he left home and sought a reconciliation she refused to be placated, because she knew he would desert her again.

The woman pictures the struggle she has had to rear the children and points out that while she now works in a department store lunchroom as a salad maker, on one occasion she was forced to take in as many as ten washings a week in order to support herself and the children. Greet is pictured as a painter who makes $10 a day when he works.

MILTON BROOKE SERVICES.

Boy Who Died of Injuries Received in Fall Will Be Buried Today.

Funeral services will be held today at the home of his parents, 116 Marconi avenue, Alcova Heights, Arlington, Va., for 15-year-old Milton Jennings Brooke, jr., who died Thursday at Emergency Hospital as the result of injuries sustained when he fell from a tree at his home on July 15. The Rev. Erwin H. Puryear will officiate and burial will be in Columbia Gardens. Infection, which developed in a fracture of the boy's leg, was given as cause of his death.

Quake Hits New Zealand.

Wellington, New Zealand, July 25 (A.P.).—A sharp earthquake lasting one minute was felt at Westport, in the Karamea area, today. The shock was preceded by a loud rumbling sound. The earthquake was felt here in a slight degree. No damage and no casualties were reported.

FORMER JUDGE VAUSE GUILTY OF MAIL FRAUD, JURY FINDS

Samuel Schuchman was found guilty on six mail fraud counts and the count of conspiracy and Harry Cruso was convicted on the conspiracy count.

The jury which returned the verdict was out for less than four hours, part of which they spent at lunch. Vause resigned as county judge of Kings Borough (Brooklyn) shortly after his indictment. He also is under indictment in the State courts charged with grand larceny in connection with the failure of the finance company.

Former Judge Vause sat like a man frozen as he listened to the verdict and gave no indication of understanding. He had been called by his counsel a man too ill to stand trial His brother, Dr. Frank Vause, kept his hand firmly on the convicted man's shoulder. Vause's attorney said he would appeal.

LITHUANIANS EXILE FORMER DICTATOR

Wife and Nephew Accompany Augustine Waldemaras to Banishment.

EDICT HOLDS ONE YEAR

Kovno, Lithuania, July 25 (A.P.).—Augustine Waldemaras, former premier and dictator, has been banished for one year to Krottingen, a state-owned domain, or large estate. The Lithuanian government took this step because it considered the former chief of government a "danger to public order and safety."

His wife, a French-born woman, and his nephew accompanied him into exile. The nephew is the young man who was wounded at Kovno in May, 1920, by a bomb intended for the then premier.

The edict of expulsion from Kovno was signed by Col. Talevivius, the commander of Kovno. It reads:

"Under the regulations for the protection of the republic, Prof. Waldemaras is banished for one year to Krottingen in consequence of his endangering public order and safety."

The former dictator and "enfant terrible" of the League of Nations will be kept under close public supervision during his exile.

The government headed by Premier Juozas Tubelis wavered, it is understood, between interning Prof. Waldemaras and arresting him for high treason. It finally decided on banishing him because it had concluded he was "physically abnormal."

Color was lent to the claim of abnormality by the former dictator's insistence that he himself must sign the protocol of his banishment as "rightful premier and minister of foreign affairs."

SMASHED BOTTLES GAIN MAN FREEDOM

Assistant U. S. Attorney Will Not Push Charge for Evidence Lack.

PAPERS ARE DECLINED

James E. McKennie, 22 years old, who was arrested Thursday afternoon by Policemen E. F. Lewis and D. J. Murphy and charged with transporting and possession of liquor, escaped prosecution yesterday when the police reported to Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, chief of Police Court prosecutors, that they had no liquor as evidence.

The two policemen said that they stopped McKennie's automobile on Georgia avenue northwest, at Aspen street and that when they did the man's companion leaped and fled. Then while the two policemen looked on, McKennie is alleged to have calmly smashed two pint bottles of gin on the floor of the car.

Both policemen made efforts, they said, to salvage a portion of the alleged illicit liquor, but admitted that they were unsuccessful. Mr. Hart ruled that since there was no evidence there was no way to prove a violation of the law and declined to issue papers in the case.

Police recently have been booking charges of breaking glass in the street when alleged bootleggers have destroyed the evidence by smashing glass containers. But even that charge could not be booked against McKennie, since he is said to have outsmarted the police by his alleged act of breaking the bottles in his automobile.

Mellon Defends Hoover Statement

Hurries to Deny Charge of Byrns Expense Figures Were Juggled.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mellon issued a statement late yesterday saying the statement of Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, ranking Democrat on the House appropriations committee, "confuses the matter of appropriations with actual expenditures and leaves an erroneous impression."

Mr. Byrns had accused the President of "juggling" figures to show lower appropriations and expenditures than he said had been made.

"As a matter of fact," Mr. Mellon said, "the figures presented by the President to the press were furnished by the Budget Bureau and are the July 1 working figures of the Treasury Department.

"As previously stated, including the estimated postal deficit, the total budget estimates of expenditures for the present fiscal year are $4,203,254,457, as compared with actual expenditures for the last fiscal year of $3,994,152,487, or an increase of $209,101,970, being an increase of 5 per cent. Naturally these figures do not include amounts appropriated for future years which will not be expended during the present fiscal year."

Largest Auto Tag Order Is Placed for District

Wade H. Coombs, superintendent of licenses, yesterday announced that he had asked for the manufacture of 175,000 license tags for next year. This is the largest number ever ordered for any year.

District automobile license tags next year will have a letter in front of the number just as this year.

TEACHERS' BUILDING CORNER STONE LAID

George Washington Trowel Is Used in Masonic Rites at Home of N. E. A.

W. J. COOPER SPEAKS

The corner stone of the National Education Association's new $300,000 administration building at Sixteenth and M streets northwest was laid yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with exercises featuring an address by William J. Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education.

Brief talks were also made by Walter R. Siders, chairman of the board of trustees; Joseph H. Saunders, superintendent of schools at Newport News, Va., and Miss E. Ruth Pyrtle, first vice president of the Association, and a resident of Lincoln, Nebr.

Prominent educators from a number of states witnessed the ceremony, which was conducted by the Grand Lodge, F. A. A. M. of the District. The trowel used in laying the stone was that which George Washington used in placing the corner stone of the Capitol. The program opened with "America," led by the Masonic Quartet. The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. George Culbertson, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

In the principal address of the exercises, Mr. Cooper paid tribute to the ideals of teachers, and predicted that the new office building would advance cooperative work in their interest. Names of the 3,750 life members of the association whose dues made the new building possible were placed in the corner stone, with a Bible and a small American flag.

Tree-Sitter Left In Peace by Police

No Law to Prohibit Capital Youth From Going On With Stunt.

Unlike authorities in Chicago, Washington police are inclined to let the tree-sitting craze run its natural course. There is no law against an individual exercising squatter's rights among the boughs, provided the boughs are on private property, so Frank Kilmartin is free to sit and sit and sit in his tall honey locust near Fourteenth and Chapin streets northwest.

Frank went up Wednesday night at 10:25 o'clock for a little elevated thinking and a stab at all existing tree-sitting records. Just what he will do with his record, if he gets it, is something that Frank hasn't thought about, but a record is a record, isn't it?

Incidentally, local police have a sure and simple cure for tree sitting. Let the sitters sit, they say, but have the press and public neglect them, and they will soon come back to normal. Tree sitting, to the police, is just a little touch of Darwinism that will pass with the heat.

Last night Frank was still sitting, strumming on his uke and issuing confident statements of success.

Unclad Baby, Aged 2, Wanders Off at Dawn

Wandering away from home early yesterday morning without troubling to dress, John Schultz, 2 years old, of 330 Maryland avenue northeast, was found playing a short while later by a policeman in the church yard of St. Joseph's Church, at Second and C streets northwest.

The youngster had slipped out of bed before his parents awoke. His mother, Mrs. Margaret Schultz was the first to find that her young son had disappeared and made a desperate search of the neighborhod. John was brought home in a policeman's coat, furnished by Policeman R. J. Jett, of the Ninth Precinct.

Bull Kills Matador.

Toledo, Spain, July 25 (A.P.).—A young bull was the victor over a young matador in a bullfight in the suburb of Escalona today. One of the horns of the bull pierced the right thigh of Pedro Montes, and the youth died in a hospital from loss of blood.

ALL-NIGHT PARKING MAY BE ELIMINATED

Harvard Man Makes Report on Traffic Survey in Washington.

ASKS LOADING ZONES

All-night parking in the District would be abolished within the next two years under plans approved by the automobile parking committee of Washington and made public yesterday after an extensive study of traffic here by Dr. Miller McClintock, of Harvard University.

Following are the committee's proposals:

"Parking regulations should be based on business needs, with as great liberality as is consistent with necessary freedom of movements and equitable division of available facilities.

"Angle parking should be eliminated, as the 25 per cent reduction in capacity on the few streets where it is now permitted will be more than compensated for by greater regularity of parking and traffic movements.

Calls for Loading Zones.

"The provision permitting double-line parking should be repealed and a strict prohibition substituted.

"Loading zones should be freely established, with the special provision that they may be occupied by waiting private cars in charge of a driver when the zone is not required for loading or unloading.

"One-hour parking limits should be continued in the congested districts as defined in the official regulations, and this district should be extended southward to B street and west to Fifteenth street. One-hour limits should also be applied to any business district in the city.

"A two-hour parking limit should be applied to the district immediately surrounding the present congested district.

"In the near future, parking should be prohibited in the Ellipse and on the Mall.

"Within a period of two years all-night parking at any place in the city should be prohibited.

Twelve Police Needed.

"To eliminate a large volume of all-day parkers who begin their practice between 8 and 9:30 a. m., it is recommended that parking be prohibited during those hours in the more congested part of the business area as described.

"Twelve, and preferably fifteen, police officers should be assigned to full-time parking duty in the center district."

The survey was conducted through the cooperation of various governmental departments and civic organizations, delegates from which constitute the committee headed by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Death of Man Is Laid To Denatured Alcohol

Harry McDougle, 51 years old, of 3819 Fourteenth street northwest, died yesterday a few hours after he had been taken to Garfield Hospital. He was found unconscious in his shop at that address with a bottle of denatured alcohol lying nearby.

Dr. A. P. Butt, of the hospital, who pronounced him dead, attributed his death to alcoholism, caused by the deadly beverage. Dr. Joseph D. Rogers, deputy coroner, was notified. It is said that McDougle had no relatives in Washington.

Detective Sergeant Tendered Reception

Retirement of Detective Sergt. Everett L. Phillips, 63 years old, was made the occasion for a farewell reception at Detective Headquarters yesterday.

Inspector William S. Shelby, chief of the Detective Bureau, presented Sergt. Phillips with a basket of flowers and a mantel chime clock, gifts from his fellow workers. Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby attended the reception and in a brief address complimented Sergt. Phillips on his record and long years of service.

BROTHER CONTESTS MRS. SEVIER'S WILL

Action Recalls Poison Search Instituted When Army Officer's Wife Died.

HUSBAND GIVEN FORTUNE

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—Notice was filed in surrogate's court today that Ralph L. Shainwald will contest the will of his sister, Mrs. Marion D. Shainwald Sevier.

Shainwald alleged that to his knowledge and belief the will offered for probate is not his sister's last will, that she was of unsound mind when it was signed, and that it was obtained through fraud and undue influence by her husband, Granville Sevier. The will to be contested was dated in 1926 and leaves the entire estate, valued by Shainwald at about $700,000, to Sevier.

Mrs. Sevier died in Hawaii, where her husband was stationed as an Army officer. Cause of death was given as acute dilation of the heart, but Shainwald demanded that the body be exhumed in an effort to discover traces of poison. This was done, but he was barred from taking part in the autopsy, which he requested on the ground that he was a chemist versed in unusual means of detecting poison.

Later Shainwald was sued by a Chinese because he opened a Chinese grave in search for the viscera of Mrs. Sevier, which had been removed and mislaid by the undertaker who prepared the body for burial.

In his affidavit filed today Shainwald made no mention of any suspicion that death had been caused or expedited by poison.

Woman Judge Fines Son of Gen. Butler

Salem, N. J., July 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Smedley D. Butler, a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and son of Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, of the Marine Corps, was fined $10 and $1.50 costs today by Justice of the Peace Miss Elizabeth Smith, charged with speeding.

William Hoagland, motor vehicle inspector, charged that young Butler was making 65 miles an hour along the Bridgeton pike. He suggested a warning as sufficient, but Miss Smith instead imposed the fine.

Commons Approves British Budget Bill

$4,000,000,000 Act Goes to King for Signature by 223 to 185.

London, July 25 (A.P.).—Great Britain's budget bill, calling for expenditures of almost $4,000,000,000, passed third reading in the House of Commons today by a vote of 223 to 185 and now goes to the King for his signature.

Sir L. Worthington-Evans, conservative, led the opposition by moving rejection of the bill saying it imposed heavy additional taxation at a time when lightening the burden was necessary for the recovery of industry.

Winston Churchhill, former chancellor of the exchequer under the Baldwin government, concluding for the opposition, pointed to increased national expenditure, the falling off of railway dividends and increasing unemployment. He said this was caused by the labor government's policy of increased direct taxation and the uncertainty of its attitude toward safeguarding duties.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE chase is at an end, men, but are we to disband and scatter to our homes and respective pursuits without in some way preserving those pleasant memories and associations of the days spent in chasing Mr. Claudius Huston over the four corners of the earth.

Nay, say we, it can not be. Think of the strong friendships that were formed and developed through the heat of the campaign. Think of that sturdy little band that took up the chase way back many months ago and persisted until their ranks were augmented to formidable size.

Surely, there is something enduringly in common among these men and their relations with the press have been most cordial.

* * * *

THERE are newspapermen who have been covering the pursuit of Mr. Huston since it began many months ago and who have been almost daily engaged on that one piece of work. Others joined in later but the zeal and enthusiasm of the veterans were enough to whet our appetities, to quicken our energies and cause us to enter at once into the full spirit of the thing.

Such fun we all had together, those who were after the man's scalp and those of us whose business it was to go along to see them get it. Think of the stories exchanged by the campfires, of the rapid beating of the pulse when we picked up the scent.

Recall, men, the risks and privations that were undergone, the many nights we all went without food when it seemed that the chase was nearing an end.

* * * *

ONE hates to see it all terminate so abruptly. What is one to do now these listless days? The Senate is gone and so is the House. The President will be going soon.

What could have been better than to spend the entire summer in the pursuit of Mr. Huston? Ah, but it has ended with startling suddenness.

One does not feel kindly to Mr. Huston for this either. It was his fault. There is no serious reason why he could not have kept up the game for many more months, until business picks up this fall at least.

But no, with an utter unappreciativeness of the niceties, of the proprieties of a thing, he quits—just lays down.

SO suddenly comes the climax that there has been no serious thought of perpetuating the campaign, of preserving it to posterity as far less immortal enterprises have been.

It should not be permitted to become lost in the sands of time, men. We should definitely arrange to get together now and then in reunion, say once a year—Mr. Burke, Mr. Nutt, Mr. Walter Brown, and the Young Turks and all of us.

We should incorporate as the Anti-Huston Club, and be assured that we would take our place in Republican affairs with as much tradition as the Union League and other clubs. We would have more funny stories to tell.

EDITOR HINTS LINGLE DEATH IS NEGLECTED

Writer Tells Grand Jurors Case May Be Lost Among New Developments.

QUOTES FROM EDITORIAL

Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—A warning "not to fiddle while Rome burns" was given to the county grand jury today by Richard Finnegan, editor of the Daily Illustrated Times, one of several newspapermen and officials who were asked to tell what they knew of Alfred Lingle's slaying or of its byproduct of rumors.

After spending more than an hour in the grand jury room, Mr. Finnegan emerged to say:

"The jury asked me many questions relating to an editorial in the Daily Times, calling their attention to the fact that they were, in fact, the people of Cook County, not only in the investigation of the Lingle murder, but of any other crime that might be associated with it. The jurors allowed me to tell them that by going into the activities of newspapermen outside the Lingle matter, they were in danger of fiddling while Rome burns."

One of the reports from the grand jury was a statement by Bernard de Vry, jury foreman, saying Police Capt. John Stege had been given a vote of confidence by the jury. Stege was chief of detectives until his resignation while under criticism after Lingle's assassination.

The jurors also heard Walter Strong, publisher of the Daily News.

Corn Sugar Label Policy Is Attacked

Opponents of Change See It as Legalizing Reception of Public.

(Associated Press.)

The abandonment of departmental policy requiring the labeling of prepared food products to show the presence of corn sugar was proposed and attacked yesterday before Secretary Hyde of the Department of Agriculture.

Opponents contended that revision wuold legalize deception of the public and nullify the pure food and drugs act. Proponents urged the change on the ground it would increase the consumption of cash corn, stimulate the market and aid the farmer.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, widow of the first administrator of the pure food act, and Representative Menges (Republican), Pennsylvania, led the group defending the present policy.

W. G. Holt, of the Corn Products Refining Co., andW. R. Scott, of the Knasas City Board of Trade, sought the change. Dr. W. M. Marriott, director of the Children's Hospital, St. Louis, contended that corn sugar was harmless and wholesome and had the lives of infants where other food had failed.

Prince of Wales Forced Down.

Birmingham, England, July 25 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales, flying with a pilot, from London to Carnarvon, was forced down here this forenoon by a sudden storm. Landing was effected safely, and the prince prepared to return to London.

JURY TRIAL IS ASKED BY RUM DEFENDANTS

Four Men Arrested in Raid Plead Not Guilty and Provide Bond.

SOME CHARGES DROPPED

Four white men arrested Thursday afternoon by Sergt. John I. Leach and his roving vice squad as a result of a raid on a house on H street northwest near First street, near the Government Printing Office, were arraigned in Police Court yesterday on possession charges in violation of the national prohibition act and, pleading not guilty, demanded trial by jury. Each gave bond of $500.

The men are Leroy Gramer, 36 years old, of I street northwest near Second street; Gilmer Nickels, 35 years old, of R street northwest near Fourteenth street; Joseph J. Miles, 33 years old, of I street northwest near First street, and Edward Windham, 33 years old, of New York avenue northwest near First street.

Only One Charge.

Miles was the only member of the quartet who was charged only with possession by the police. The others were also charged with possession but the police booked a charge of sale against Gramer and charges of transporting against Nickels and Windham. Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, in charge of Police Court prosecution, however, decided that the evidence to support charges other than possession against the men was insufficient. Windham, however, was arraigned on a charge of second offense possession, a more serious charge.

According to the report made to Mr. Hart, Sergt. Leach and his squad were armed with a search warrant sworn to by a special employe, who declared he had purchased liquor at the H street address. When the police entered, they said, they found Gramer and Miles in the place. Miles, it was alleged, had two half pints of liquor in his pockets.

Two Flee Raids.

While the police were looking around for other liquor two men entered and when they saw the raiders they left hurriedly. Members of the squad followed them and the latter allege that the other men backed an automobile out of a garage in the rear of a house on I street northwest, near Second street.

The two men also are alleged to have thrown four half-gallon jars of liquor out of the machine when the police closed in, some of the jars breaking. Both men were arrested and were booked as Windham and Nickels. The automobile was seized.

Two Americans Named for Hague

Santo Domingo and Denmark Nominate J. H. Wigman and Kellogg.

Geneva, July 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Two more Americans have been named by the national nominating groups for places on the bench of the Hague court. Santo Domingo has put forward the name of John H. Wigmore, dean of the law school of Northwestern University, and Denmark has nominated former Secretary of State Frank Billings Kellogg.

Thus far eighteen countries have submitted the names of 32 candidates for the fifteen places there will be on the bench of the court if the council and the assembly of the League of Nations carries out its reported decision to increase the number of judgeships to that number, or the protocol for revision of the court's statutes becomes effective.

Although reports have been printed in the United States that Holland has nominated Charles Cheney Hyde, formerly professor of international law at Columbia University, now practicing in New York, there is reason to doubt the accuracy of such reports.

Trio of Bank Robbers Hang for Police Murder

Kansas City, July 25 (A.P.).—Three bank robbers who sprayed bullets into a Republican national convention crowd in a downtown district here two years ago, were hanged simultaneously today for the murder of Traffic Patrolman James H. "Happy" Smith, victim of their fire. They were Tony "Lollypop" Mangiaracina, Carl Nasello, machine gunner for the gang, and John Messino, driver of the bandit car.

One of five buttons pressed by five deputy sheriffs released the trap at 6:04 a. m., sending to their deaths three of the six bandits who planned and executed the robbery of the Home Trust Co., June 14, 1928.

PIERCE IS PROMOTED TO BATTALION CHIEF

Selection of Clerk Head Is Important Change in Administration.

FIRST APPOINTED IN 1912

Edward Richardson Pierce, chief clerk of the Fire epartment since November, 1922, yesterday was promoted to be battalion chief.

The action was taken by the District Commissioners on recommendation of Fire Chief George S. Watson and marks an important change in the administrative machinery of the Fire Department. Heretofore the chief clerk of the Fire Department has been a civilian. Chief Watson, incidentally, was made chief of the Fire Department from the post of chief clerk.

Promotion of Mr. Pierce, it was explained, is in line with Chief Watson's purpose to give greater recognition to the administrative work for which the chief clerk is responsible and is a part of his plan for improving the department machinery.

Under the plan the chief of the department will be selected primarily for his knowledge of fire fighting, although, of course, administrative ability must be taken into consideration. But under the new plan the chief will be relieved of much of the administrative work, for which he has heretofore been responsible, which will be left for the administrative battalion chief.

Mr. Pierce is one of the most popular men in the Fire Department. He was born in March, 1892, and was appointed to the Fire Department in November, 1912, later resigning, but was reappointed a short time later and was made chief clerk in 1922. He has been a civilian employe of the department, although his duties have frequently resulted in a situation where he issued orders to the commissioned officers and battalion and deputy chief of the department. His promotion will mean an increase in salary from $3,600 to $4,500. His duties will remain the same.

Mr. Pierce is married and has a 7-year-old son, Edward Richardson Pierce, jr. The Pierce home is at 3400 South Dakota avenue northeast.

murder the reexamination should be made, Inspector Shelby feels.

Herman H. Barrere yesterday announced that he had retained Charles H. Smith, Campbell's attorney, to arrange for his release on a writ of habeas corpus. Mr. Smith said that he had talked with Barrere at the jail, but had not consented to take his case and knows nothing of the application for any writ. Mr. Gloth says Barrere will not be released so long as Campbell remains a suspect in the case. A murder warrant against Barrere, which was issued last week, has been withdrawn.

Texans to Ballot In Primary Today

Love, for Governor, Appeals to Democrats Who Quit Party for Hoover.

Dallas, Tex., July 25 (A.P.).—Texas Democrats who left the party two years ago to vote for Herbert Hoover for President, tomorrow will be given a chance at the State primary, to return to the fold or vindicate the bolt that gave the State's electoral votes to a Republican presidential nominee for the first time in history.

Thomas B. Love, of Dallas, a State senator, oe of the 11 candidates for the party's nomination for governor, has campaigned by upholding his action in leading a revolt within the party in 1928 against the Democratic presidential nominee, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York. He designated himself the only "anti-Tammany" candidate in the race.

Texas' first woman governor, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, defeated for reelection four years ago, also was attempting a comeback. It was believed 800,000 voters would participate in the Republican and Democratic primaries.

Jim Young, former representative in Cogress, leader of the regular Democrats in the memorable Smith-Hoover controversy, was one of Love's opponents.

Red Convict Pulpwood Barred From Country

Large consignments of Russian pulpwood purchased by the International Paper Co. yesterday were barred from entry intothis country by the Treasury because convict labor entered into their production.

Acting on information that poorly fed groups of Russian convicts had been used in loading the wood at Archangel, Assistant Secretary Lowman issued general instructions to custom collectors along the Atlantic seaboard to deny it admittance. He said the International Paper Co. had purchased a large amount of Russian pulpwood from the Armtorg Corporation, the official Russian commercial organization, and added the orders would apply to all shipments of pulp wood from Russia.

AIR DERBY IS LED BY LIEUT. GEHLBACH

Little Rocket Plane Reaches San Angelo, Tex., With Two Hours to Spare.

STUB QUINBY IS SECOND

San Angelo, Tex., July 25 (A.P.).—Lieut. Lee Gehlbach, of Little Rock, Ark., led the dozen fliers participating in the All-American Air Derby into San Angelo from Houston today, swooping down to a landing in his little Rocket plane at 11:16:35 a. m.

He flew the 329-mile lap in 2 hours 15 minutes 35 seconds, nearly 16 minutes faster than his closest competitor, and his elapsed time since the racers left Detroit Monday was 17: 38:07, almost two hours ahead of the runner-up, Stub Quinby, of Moline, Ill.

Stub Quinby Next.

Quinby followed Lieut. Gehlbach in, making the flight from Houston in 2 hours 31 minutes 20 seconds, bringing his total elapsed time to 19:29:29, for second place in the race thus far.

Lowell Bayless, of Springfield, Mass., was the third to settle on the local field, his time for the hop being 2 hours 38 minutes 29 seconds, bringing his elapsed time to 19:32:18.

Herman Hamer, of Chicago, Ill., fourth to land, had third best time for the day's flying, 2 hours 38 minutes flat. However, he had no elapsed time to compute since he dropped out as an official contender when he was forced to land before reaching Houston yesterday, losing several hours.

The fliers are to take off tomorrow for Douglass, Ariz.

How Fliers Stand.

Others reached the field in this order, with time shown for the Houston-San Angelo lap and total elapsed time:

Stanley Stanton, of Blackwell, Okla., 2:45:49, 20:11:50; Harry Ogden, of Englewood, Calif., 2:51:14, 23:59:15; Charles Meyers, of Cleveland, Ohio, 2:56:50, 21:42:02; J. R. Wedell, of New Orleans, La., 3:11:49, 20:18:03; Joe Meehan, of Ironton, Ohio, 3:08:12, 23: 09:34; Bill Cahill, of Cleveland, Ohio, 3:10:05, 23:10:57; Cecil Coffrin, of Brooklyn, 3:19:10, no available elapsed time; Larry Brown, of Los Angeles, Calif., 4:24:50, 29:08:29.

Wedell said he lost an hour in a field near Brady, 50 miles from here, while he repaired a broken oil line.

Advices from Houston late today said H. W. Holladay, a straggling flier entered in the Derby, had hopped off for San Angelo, hoping eventually to join the main group. He was delayed by a crippled plane at Roosevelt Field, N. Y.

Homage Is Paid At Curtiss Burial

Simple Service for Leader of Aviation Attended by Throng.

Hammondsport, N. Y., July 25 (A. P.).—With the simplest of services, Glenn Hammond Curtiss was laid to rest today in Pleasant Valley Cemetery, only a few hundred feet from the scene of the labors and triumphs which earned the world-renowned pioneer airman the title of "The Father of Aviation."

Every business activity in this village was halted while associates and friends from afar and near thronged the Curtiss residence on the shore of Lake Keuka to join with his neighbors in their last tribute.

The Rev. Grant P. Sommerville, rector of St. James Episcopal Church here, officiated at the simple rites in the Curtiss home, after which the body of Hammondsport's most famous son was borne to its place in the family plot by six of the famous birdman's friends.

CHANCE VOUGHT, AIR PIONEER, DIES AT 42

Contemporary of Curtiss, Whose Career He Paralleled, Poison Victim.

DESIGNED NAVY'S PLANE

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—Death claimed another pioneer of aviation today in Chance Vought, airplane designer and builder. He was a contemporary of Glenn Curtiss, who died Wednesday and whose funeral was held today only a few hours after Vought's death.

Vought died at the Southampton, Long Island, Hospital, where he had been a patient for several weeks suffering from septicemia. He was 42 years old.

With him when he died were Mrs. Vought, formerly Ena Lewis, of Pittsburgh, and their two sons, Chance, jr., and Peter. Funeral services will be held Monday morning in the chapel of St. Thomas Church here.

Two Parallel Careers.

The careers of Vought and Curtiss were closely paralleled. Each learned to fly when there was none to teach him how, and each turned in his later years to designing, constructing and selling planes. Although Curtiss had retired from active participation in the company which bears his name, Vought at his death was still president of the Chance Vought Corporation, a division of United Aircraft & Transport Corporation, of which he was vice president.

He was born in New York City and studied at New York University and the University of Pennsylvania. In 1909 he became consulting engineer to Harold F. McCormick, of Chicago, one of the first big businessmen of the country to take an enthusiastic interest in the new science of flying.

After being connected with the Wright brothers and serving as consulting engineer to the Army and Navy, Vought formed his own company in 1921.

Designed Navy Plane.

Probably Vought's most famous plane, which he designed and constructed, was the Vought Corsair, standard Navy fighting ship and familiar to all who have been pictures of the great aircraft carriers and their broods of planes.

Vought was memorialized today by Frederick B. Rentschler, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and of United Aircraft, as one whose contributions to aviation have been surpassed by no other individual. Throughout the transport systems controlled by United Aircraft & Transport, planes in the air will dip in salute Monday at the moment Mr. Vought's funeral begins.

Three Missing Fishers Found 40 Miles at Sea

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., July 25 (A.P.).—George Thomas and Eddie Nicholson, Fort Lauderdale fishermen, and Tommy Thompson, a Negro, missing since July 16, have been picked up by the steamship Bakersfield 40 miles east of Palm Beach, according to word reaching the Coast Guard base here today. The message to the Coast Guard and a similar one to Thomas' wife did not give details of what happened to the party.

The trio will disembark at Jacksonville tomorrow morning. They left here in a 30-foot speedboat, the Lillian B, Mrs. Thomas said, and carried only a gallon of water, two boxes of salt crackers and a watermelon along as provisions, intending to return the same day.

Toadstools Kill Two In Family of Veteran

Rochester, N. Y., July 25 (A.P.).—Toadstools gathered as mushrooms to supplement the slender food supply of the almost penniless family of a disabled and unemployed World War veteran, today caused the death of two girls.

Josephine Purno, 6, was found dead in bed early this morning. Her sister Grace, 9, died several hours later in St. Mary's Hospital.

The father, Patsy Purno, the only other member of the family to partake of the poisonous fungi, is recovering. Purno is suffering from incurable gas poisoning.

Annapolis Dismissals Approved by Hoover

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday approved the recommendations for the dismissal from the Naval Academy of L. L. Wyatt, of Quincy, Mass., and Miller S. Burgin, of San Antonio, Tex., and the Bureau of Navigation immediately forwarded the necessary orders to the academy.

The two midshipmen now are in confinement in the brig at the Naval Academy. Their dismissal was recommended by Admiral S. S. Robison, superintendent of the academy, after they had taken two girls into the mess hall at the academy.

Flying Fraulein Hurt As Plane Falls 120 Feet

Berlin, July 25 (A.P.).—Thea Rasche, Germany's flying fraulein, was injured today when her plane crashed en route from Templehof to Warnemuende. The plane fell from a height of 120 feet and was wrecked.

The aviatrix had just taken off when something went wrong with her plane. Observers on the Templehof Field said the girl flier probably went into a sudden gust of wind which threw the plane off balance while it was rising. Her injuries were said to be slight.

lice nothing they considered of value. She left for Buffalo, where she has a stage engagement tomorrow.

Thousands of those who passed the bier were men and women to whom he had given life itself—men and women who were cold and hungry last winter, feeling the sting of bitter weather and unemployment. They were beneficiaries of his pleas before the microphone to those who could do so to "manufacture jobs" about the house or the factory for hungry people to whom a few hours work would mean much.

The rich and prominent were there, too. Circuit judges are among the pallbearers who will carry Buckley to his grave tomorrow morning, and millionaires are his friends and defenders.

Tears were no disgrace in the crowd. Men as well as women had handkerchiefs to their faces.

"Did you know him?" one would say to another.

"I never saw him before—but I heard him every evening. He was my friend," would be the answer.

PRESIDENT INVITES CITY HEADS TO CAMP

Wishes to Tell Them His Own Ideas on Way Capital Should Be Run.

PLANS TO BE GONE OVER

the District Building and Col. Grant's office. It was reported that Col. Ladue's determined opposition to some of the plans advocated by Col. Grant and his assistants led to complaint to the White House. Certainly with the continual enlargement of the powers of the officer in charge of public buildings and grounds, observers are convinced there must soon come a decision on the division of authority between that official and the District Commissioners.

A pending instance of possible conflict is the traffic study which is being made at the instance of Col. Grant. Gen. Crosby also has launched a study of traffic conditions and regulations by District officials and representatives of the various intedests in Washington. Under the law the Commissioners are authorized to make traffic regulations, subject, of course, to the authority of Congress.

The fight over the amount of the Federal appropriation for the maintenance and development of the National Capital, as well as the whole question of fiscal relations between the Federal and municipal governments, which involves very directly the taxation levied on District property owners and residents, is expected to be discussed at the camp on the Rapidan between now and Monday, when the President and his guests are to return to Washington.

Hoover Has Definite Ideas.

President Hoover has been an official resident of Washington since the World War, when he came here as food administrator. During the course of the years, he is said to have watched the affairs of the city closely and has come to definite conclusions about matters under controversy.

The Federal building program is another question which is expected to be touched on. This involves the District government very directly because the local government must give up the District Building, two fire houses, a police station and other property in the Mall triangle to make way for Federal buildings.

The municipal center is to house municipal activities and the development of this is of interest to President Hoover.

Estimates May Be Touched On.

Revision of the existing scheme of preparing the annual District estimates also may be touched on. President Hoover is represented as having pretty definite ideas on that subject, especially anent schools, about which there is an annual flareup and controversy as to the proper amount which should be used for the public school system.

Said to believe that the District appropriations should provide for necessary projects, the President will hear from his new Commissioners a story of their experience in preparing the estimates for the next fiscal year. The Commissioners have submitted to the Budget Bureau estimates which call for a minimum increase of 10 cents in the present tax rate of $1.70. This increase, however, will not be adequate unless their other expectation of a Federal appropriation of $10,000,000 instead of $9,000,000 is borne out by Congress.

Mrs. Hoover took Mrs. Reichelderfer and Mrs. Crosby with her to the President's camp yesterday morning. The Commissioners left for the camp at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The President and his guests are to return to Washington Monday.

household had not agreed to anything—either the scientists' decision that they have the wrong baby or the physicians' that they have the right one. He said no decision has yet been made to which they agree.

The Bambergers, however, are right where they were from the beginning when this thing came up—they are certain they have a young Bamberger, and Mr. Bamberger said: "They can debate and deliberate until the cows come home, but we are going to keep the baby we've got."

Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel, who undertook to play the role of a modern Solomon and called in fingerprint experts, university professors and doctors, announced he was through with the whole thing.

John Loughnane, attorney for both the Bambergers and Watkinses, announced he would sue out a writ of injunction against the health commissioner if the latter should take any steps to force the parents to switch youngsters.

HUSBAND COUNTERS BY ASKING DIVORCE

Treasury Employe's Cross Action in Court Names Corespondent.

LOVE LETTERS OFFERED

Countering his wife's suit for limited divorce, James M. Henderson, an employe of the Treasury Department, yesterday filed in District Supreme Court a cross-complaint for absolute divorce, in which he charges that ever since the wife, Mrs. Pauline Henderson, had instituted her action she had kept love trysts with another man, who is named as corespondent.

Several love letters alleged to have been written by Mrs. Henderson and the corespondent to each other are attached to the husband's petition.

Henderson, through Attorney Raymond Neudecker, tells the court that his wife made his home life so unpleasant he was compelled to leave her last December. At that time the wife became intimate with the corespondent, whose wife subsequently separated from him, according to the cross-bill.

In addition to asking for an absolute divorce, Henderson also requests custody of the two children.

In one of the letters which Henderson claims his wife sent to the other man she is quoted as having written: "* * * I am having a wonderful time. I only wish you were up here to enjoy it with me, but we will come up this summer together. I am really tired tonight, just had to write you. It makes me feel like I am nearer to you. Be good, John dear, and we will have a good time when I get home. * * * With loads of love to my John, Pauline."

The letter bears the date of May 17, 1930.

Mrs. Henderson sued her husband for limited divorce last January 17. Through Attorney D. Edward Clarke, she declared her husband had evidenced a dislike for her, had lost interest in the children, had squandered his money and remained away until late hours of the night. Henderson denies these charges.

Former Beer Baron Says Body Found Is Not His

Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—Terry Druggan, former beer baron, refuted by telephone the identification of a body found at Brookhaven, Miss., as his, informing a newspaper reporter today that he remains alive and well.

His attorney had said earlier in the day that he was positive the identification of the body as Druggan's was erroneous, and police had expressed similar conviction.

Roller-Coaster Crash Claims Fourth Victim

Omaha, July 25 (A.P.).—Crushed and battered by four cars of a roller coaster train which toppled over the edge of a 35-foot incline at Krug Park last night, four persons were dead and 19 injured, three of them in a critical condition today.

Fourth to die was Mrs. Gladys Lundgren, 29, of Des Moines, who was spending her vacation with friends.

Princess, 73, Pleads Right To Be Bride of Prince, 42

Lawyer for Her Family Wants Amadee De Broglie Examined by Doctors When She Demands Happiness; Mental Soundness Defended in Court.

Paris, July 25 (A..).—The desire of 73-year-olds Princess Amadee de Groglie to be married to 42-year-old Don Luis de Bourbon, son of the Infanta Eulalia of Spain and cousin of King Alfonso, was the subject of pleading before the tribunal of the Seine today.

Henri Torres, specialist in defending Communist agitators, appeared for the princess. He pleaded that she be granted the same right possessed by others, namely, to seek happiness, no matter what her age.

Maitre Aubepin, head of the Order of Advocates of Paris, defended the sui tof the Princess' family, represented by her nephew, the Duke de Brissac. He pleaded that the princess was mentally unsound and asked the court to name three doctors to examine her.

Aubepin argued that the fact that the princess considered marriage with Don Luis, a princess who was barred from France for misconduct, and who was called a profligate, was enough to show she was unbalanced. The decision of the court will be handed down tomorrow.

A statement attributed to the princess, made through her attorney in response to the charges of her family, caused a considerable stir. It said: "I realize that many persons think my marriage with this much younger man rediculous, but I want to spend a few happy years before I die."

Attorney Torres in his argument asserted the Princess had known Don Luis for eighteen years.

Twelve years ago, when her husband died, he said, Paris society gossiped a great deal about the two, but the princess decided her duty was to devote herself to raising her two orphaned grandchildren.

He argued that Princess Amadee now feels justified in seeking to be happy during the last years of hero life.

It developed during the trial that the administrator appointed by the court after a family council, July 7, had recently seized the princess' jewels, valude at $120,000.

Many letters of friends, as well as testimonials from alienists, were introduced to show the princess was n excellent bodily and mental health.

At the Age Women Dread

"Three years ago I was in bed three months with a nervous breakdown. After that I had to lie down often. I have four children, the youngest 21, and I board two little schoolgirls. I try to keep my home as a mother should but I am at the age so many women dread. Since taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel 100% stronger. I am not so nervous and my appetite is better."—Mrs. Della Hutsell, 623 East 1st Street, Casper, Wyoming.

REUNION PROMPTS SPECIAL PROGRAM

Vicar of Epiphany Chapel and Dr. Harned Present St. James' Service.

SEPARATED FOR 30 YEARS

A friendship that began many years ago in Philadelphia, at the noted George Martin Preparatory School for Boys, was renewed recently in Washington by two gray haired men, one a minister of gospel and the other a minister of music. It had been interrupted for more than 30 years, when neither man knew the whereabouts of the other; and its renewal was the occasion of an unusual service at Epiphany Chapel, Twelfth and C streets southwest, on last evening. These men who have kept green memories of their childhood are the Rev. Francis Yarnall, vicar of Epiphany Chapel, and Dr. Albert W. Harned, director of the National Capital Choir.

Dr. Yarnall is the son of a minister, his father having been rector of one church in Philadelphia for 52 successive years. He is one of a great host of ministers who were born in a rectory or manse or parsonage, whichever one chooses to call the home of a minister. It would seem as if God reaches into such homes for his apostles and missionaries.

A year ago Dr. Yarnall came to Washington from Florida, where he had been laboring in the Lord's vineyard for seventeen years, to supply the pulpit of Dr. Bohanan, rector of Rock Creek parish, while the latter was on his vacation. Seeing his name in the paper, Dr. Harned, who had not heard from his schoolmate since their boyhood days, sought him out and they took up the conversation just where it had broken off many years previous.

Dr. Yarnall's Career.

When they left school, Dr. Yarnall went to college and then to seminary, where he was classmate of Dr. Phillips, the rector of the Church of Epiphany. Dr. Harned went to the University of Pennsylvania and then to Lehigh, where he studied engineering, intending to make that his life work. The tug of music was stronger than the call of the metallic and materialistic world, so Dr. Harned forsook the latter and dedicated his life to the former, devoting some years to a musical education and winning his doctorate in that art.

His choir in Washington is an institution. It has sung as a big feature at the Universalist National Memorial Church and at other places. Having thirty well balanced men and women voices, and being imbued with his own idea, that unless music is reverently sung it is not properly interpreted, this choir rather boasts that it, too, has a ministry to perform, and performs it.

After returning to Florida, last summer, Dr. Yarnall received the call to Epiphany Chapel and on becoming a permanent resident of the city has fellowshipped generously with his old classmate. Often he is to be found at the choir rehearsals, where he is welcomed, for his name is attached to a piece of music, "The Conversion of St. Paul," for which he wrote the words and a celebrated English composer the music. This oratorio, or whatever the title is, is often sung by large choirs.

Service Is Planned.

A few days ago the two doctors met in the National Press Club and one of them had an idea. That morning he had looked at his church calendar and saw that July 25 was St. James' day. It is a great day in the Anglican church and should be in all of the Christian churches, for St. James was the brother of Jesus Christ, one of his chosen apostles and was the head of the Christian church in Jerusalem. More than that, he wrote an epistle that marks out a way of living most difficult even for Christians to travel. He is the apostle who wrote those memorable words about bridling one's tongue.

As Dr. Yarnall meditated upon the debt the world and the church owes to St. James, he turned to his old friend and talked the matter out with him. It was one of those intimate discussions that most any man would like to listen in on, and it wound up by Dr. Yarnall saying:

"Albert, I would be delighted if you would come down with a quartet and give us a special program of music in commemoration of St. James."

"Francis," came the reply slowly, "I will not bring a quartet down to your chapel——"

"And you have just been discoursing so reverently on the ministry of music. . ."

"Hold, enough! I did not say that I would not come down to your chapel. I said I would not bring a quartet. I will come down and bring my whole choir."

Special Music Engaged.

And that's what Dr. Harned did for Dr. Yarnall. The National Capital Choir of 30 voices gave the congregation of Epiphany Chapel a service of music such as never before was heard in that chapel. And the vicar preached such a sermon as he has not in years preached.

Dr. Harned carried with him to Epiphany Chapel the following members of the National Capital Choir:

Soprani—Irene Koehl, Grace Bradnack, Margaret Anthony, Elsie Duck, Mary Torrey, Marie Thompson, Winifred McMinning, and Anna Fisher.

Alti—Marjorie Soper, Marie Whaley, Rebecca Torreson, Rhoda Lawton, Mary Bowen, Marie Muse and Florence Harned.

Tenori—Eugene Dahl, Lynn Gillchrist, Edwin Singer and Lowe Duck.

Bassi—Ralph Balliette, Day Torrey, F. W. Stump, Warren Adams, Ray Gustin, Albert E. Harned and Albert Childs.

If this incident teaches anything, it is that it pays to make friends in one's youth.

Organ Recital Planned At Monastery Service

An organ recital, to which the public is cordially invited, will be given at the Church of the Franciscan Monastery, 1400 Quincy street northeast, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Prof. Conrad Bernier, of the Catholic University, will officiate at the organ.

The program is as follows: Allegro, Concerto F Major (Handel, 1685-1759); "Ave Maris Stella" (Titelouze, 1563-1633); Fantasy in Echo Form (Suwieelinzk, 1562-1621); Toccata and Fugue in D Minor (Bach, 1685-1750); barytone solo by Mr. Barbecot; "Panis Angelicus" (Franck, 1822-1890); Rapsodie sur des airs Bretons (Saint-Saens, 1835-1921); finale, First Symphony (Vierne).

Pastor Plans Vacation Trip.

The Rev. C. P. Ryland, pastor of Kendall Baptist Church, will preach on "The Foolish Builder" as his final sermon tomorrow evening before leaving on a vacation trip through southern Virginia. Mr. and Mrs. Ryland plan to visit their son, Dr. C. P. Ryland, jr., a practicing physician at Buena Vista, Va., for several weeks. The Rev. R. E. White will preach the morning sermon tomorrow, and the pulpit will be filled by visiting ministers during the Rev. Mr. Ryland's absence.

All Creeds Warmly Welcomed At Juanita Kaufman Nye House

Some of the workers and children at the Juanita Kaufman Nye Council House at 609 Sixth street southwest. This settlement home is a favorite meeting place for the children in the Southwest section.

Labor of Love Carried on Among Children of Neighborhood.

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

"Abie's Irish Rose" was a piece of fiction that held the stage for several years and caused millions to laugh and thank God that the world is as good as it is.

In a settlement house in Washington, right under the nose of St. Dominic's Church, in a community that is inhabited largely by Jews and Irish, the romance that was woven into the famous American play is being woven into young hearts of these two races.

But this is only a part of the romance of the settlement house. The institution itself, the Juanita Kaufman Nye Council House, is a finer romance than any love affair between the young Cohens and the young Kellys who frequent it.

"My mother says it is wonderful to have the council house," a little girl from a Presbyterian family who is found there every day, told Miss Myrtle Cohen, who is the assistant director in charge of the house.

That seems to be the consensus of all the fathers and mothers whose children frequent that remarkable place at 609 Sixth street southwest. Any afternoon now during the summer, if you should happen in on Miss Cohen, or Miss Cone, or any of the teachers or volunteer workers, you will hear peals of laughter and screams of delight as the little boys and girls—Jews, Irish, Protestants, Catholics, orthodox and others—crowd in under the big shower and splash and play to their dear little hearts' content.

This is heaps more fun than standing on the sprinkler in your neighbor's lawn and having the cold, stinging streamlet from Father Potomac course up your bare legs and make you dance a jig. Those who have lawns and sprinklers and all that sort of thing might like that kind of shower, but the trouble with them is that they never were privileged to dash in under the one at the Council House on Sixth street.

It is not all play of this character, however, which makes up the routine of service given by Miss Cone, Miss Cohen and the other workers at the Council House. Every morning in the year, except Sunday morning, a kindergarten is being taught by trained college-bred teachers.

Should you be down on Sixth street any morning now you will see a strange sight, that will surely warm your heart. Here they come. Fathers and mothers with their little children clinging to their hands, all going to the kindergarten. There is no sectarianism in this procession. It embraces a cross section of the neighborhood, and it is one way that the families have of getting acquainted. In a sense it is a little different from the public school, for this school is maintained by the oldest of our religious sects and is so wisely managed that it occasions no distrust.

One of the glories of Judaism is that it is not a proselyting religion. It never bothers a gentile about his or her beliefs, and it never forces its faith on anybody. However, it does not neglect its own. Most of the Jews living in that neighborhood are of the orthodox persuasion, and for children of these families a Sunday school is maintained and taught in accordance with the orthodox teaching. The boys keep their hats on in school and they sit on one side of the room away from the young misses.

There is here a lesson, it seems to me, that Christians might well take to heart. The Council House is under the guardian care of the Council of Jewish Women. Its patron saint is Rabbi Abram Simon, one of the foremost Reformed Jews in the world. And yet never a word or a look that would indicate that the orthodox Jews do not own, operate and maintain the institution. This is what you call tolerance reformed to the very last degree.

Every week during the summer months the Council House gives an outing for the children of different grades. This week it will be the smaller children who are taken out and next week it will be the larger, from 11 to 16 years old. Free buses are provided, and it is ho, for Hains Point or Rock Creek Park, for the day. The older children bring their lunches, but when tiny tots go they are furnished milk and crackers just as is done every day at the kindergarten. The same crowd does not go to these outings week after week. The Council House has many little friends.

In the summer days the Council House is largely a recreational center, but it never loses sight of the fact that it has other services to render. The sewing classes never stop. And these are the most worth while practical classes that go on there from day to day and year to year.

All of the material is purchased by Council House workers. They shop for the latest styles in cloths and in garments of all sorts. Everything must be in the very swankiest mode. An expert, who teaches in the public schools, cuts out the garments and then supervises the sewing. Nothing is made that is not useful. And all garments that come from these youthful modistes must be wearable. If a little girl takes a fancy to the garment she is working on, she might talk about it at home and interest her family in what she is working on. When it is completed, if she wishes to buy it, she can do so at the cost of the material, sometimes at a saving on this.

The Sisters at St. Dominic's have taken a very lively interest in the work of the Council House and they have sent many of the little Catholic boys and girls there, to be taught sewing, music and dancing. Expert paid workers are in charge of all these classes and, of course, the instruction is free. It is probable in the dancing classes that the romance blossom. The dancing classes are exof "Abie's Irish Rose" bagins to tremely popular.

I spoke of Dr. Simon being the patron saint of the Council House. He seems to lavish his gifts of love and devoted attention to the educational phase of the Council House's work. When books are needed for the circulating library, he gets them in abundance. And they are well chosen. When volunteer teachers are needed, during the school months for the night school, they come from his congregation.

On entering the Council House the first room you come to is the library, and here you will find Miss Cohen exchanging books with the youngsters, counseling them on their reading, chiding them gently for delay in returning the book they have just come in with, inviting them to the next outing, urging them in true Mosiac fashion to take advantage of the shower and giving to each a kindly work and a smile that wins devotion. The director, Miss Cone, is out on her visiting errands, going from home to home to see the mothers of the children.

In a lull in her work Miss Cohen turns to a large cabinet and points to a library of reference works.

"This," says she, "is one of the best things we do," pointing to the reference works. "Every night during school days the children come here with their books to be helped with their lessons. We have a corps of volunteer teachers to take the boys and girls in hand and give them such instruction as they need. They are being taught how to use reference works and to study out their own hard problems. In a little while they become self reliant and then they come in and use the library without help, or with only an occasional boost."

Just across the street from the Council House lives a lad named Douglass Howes. When the settlement was opened he invested in it by taking out of it all he could get. Last winter Miss Cohen, who has charge of the hand-craft work, taught him painting, and from his work, painting silk handkerchiefs, he earned around Christmas something over $10. Now he is working for a lamp shade factory, painting lamp shades and earning a good salary.

There is another young gentile who can not get on in his studies, but he has under tutorage of the man worker at the Council House, developed an unusual aptitude for mechanics. They do say that he is a genius. And his bent is being mothered and properly directed. It is possible that he may become an inventor.

This is a rather imperfect picture of the Juanita Kaufmann Nye Council House. It is just three years old and it has already outgrown its quarters. I am told that with the same organization it could, with a larger plant, do twice the work it is now doing.

It is a memorial erected by Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Kaufman to their daughter, Juanita, who married Simon L. Nye, and, after a brief married life, died from a serious operation. Mrs. Nye and her brother, "Radio Joe" Kaufman, in their childhood days, took keen interest in the noted Neighborhood House on N street, and as she grew to young womanhood she was also interested in the work of the Council of Jewish Women, being slated for vice president when she died.

Nothing was more natural, then, when she died than for her parents to found Council House and give it over to the Council of Jewish Women to run, which was dor; three years ago. Miss Bertha Israel is the active head of the institution, and it is a member of the Community Chest. Some of the activities, however, are financed by the Council of Jewish Women, notably the Sunday school. It is a noble charity.

Requiem Service Held For Cardinal Gibbons

Last Wednesday was the ninety-sixth anniversary of the birth of the late Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, and in commemoration of that a special requiem mass was celebrated at the Shriver Home in Union Mills, Carroll County, where the Cardinal spent so many happy hours and where he invariably passed his birthday when possible. The Rev. Martin P. J. Egan, pastor of Saint John's Church, Westminster, was the celebrant.

Church Is Dedicated By Bishop McNamara

The Rt. Rev. John M. McNamara, of Washington, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, dedicated the new Catholic Church, "Our Lady, Star of the Sea," at Solomons, Calvert County, Md., last Sunday, in the presence of a large congregation.

The church cost $60,000 and is free of debt. It was built with contributions from all over America. Three Catholic bishops have served that country parish in the past.

Fifth Baptist Services.

The Rev. Dr. William E. Larue, pastor of the Takoma Park Baptist Church, will preach at Fifth Baptist Church tomorrow evening.

Catholic Man to Attend Conference on Press

Justin McGrath, director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference's news service, has been chosen to go as an official representative of the press department of the N. C. W. C. to the International Catholic Press Conference which meets August 31 in Brussels.

Baptist Union Can Show Six New Memberships

Six new members were added to the membership roll at First Baptist Church Union last Sunday evening—David Painter, Paul Moore, Frank Hall, Ruth Lowenberg, Byron Hayden, and Howard Piereah. The program tomorrow night at 6:45 will be in charge of group No. 6, with Melvin Scott leading. Group No. 4 will give the Bible quiz and Duncan Price and group No. 2 will have charge of the social hour at 6:15.

Conferees to Give Talks.

At the evening service tomorrow of the East Washington Heights Baptist Church seven members of the conference at Braddock Heights will make addresses.

Sentence Sermons

(Minister of Eckington Presbyterian Church.)

THE SHEPHERD PSALM.

The twenty-third psalm is the best-known and the best-beloved of the songs of Zion. Radium-like, it sheds, unceasingly, its rays of soul cheer and benediction upon the lives of pilgrims in many generations. It is the harbinger of joy and strength to the weary and harassed of earth.

The psalm begins with Jehovah and closes with "Forever." Here the Creator of worlds—the Ineffable One, the Architect of a Universe—omnipotence—with constellations for a diadem and infinity for a palace, is spoken of in terms that a trusting child may understand.

The greatest discovery that a man can make is the personal find of God. God to the psalmist is a present and personal experience. He uses the present tense—"The Lord is my shepherd"—not the past or the future, but the present—thus the infinite becomes a glorious and an abiding companion.

"My Shepherd." Seventeen times the personal pronoun is used in the six verses of the psalm. This is for a purpose. The blessings of the psalm are claimed only when the heart indorses and possesses the Good Shepherd. If we can say "My Shepherd," we can also say, "I shall not want," for "No good thing will He withhold from those who walk uprightly."

We can also say, "I will fear no evil." Fear is a cruel taskmaster. It is severity itself. Life has many fears—the future, old age, poverty, property losses, ill health—but they are not found along the paths of righteousness. Even death, David says, becomes the valley of the shadow—and shadows are harmless. We can further say, "I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever." Not endless existence, but eternal life. "At thy right hand are pleasures forever more."

There is scarcely a reader who has not in days past memorized this gem of the psalter, but have you incorporated its message into life? It is something to live by. Can you say in sincere obedience that the Lord is my shepherd? If you are able to do this, then you can claim the trinity of comforting statements—"I shall not want"—"I will fear no evil"—"I shall dwell forever!"

"The King of Love my Shepherd is,
Whose goodness faileth never.
I nothing lack if I am His,
And He is mine forever."

CATHEDRAL PANELS DEPICT WOMANHOOD

Five Windows in Chapel of Bishop's House Cover 20 Centuries.

TYPIFY FEMALE VIRTUES

By ELISABETH E. POE.

Twenty centuries of Christian womanhood are commemorated in a series of interesting panels in five windows recently installed in the Chapel of the Annunciation in the Bishop's House on Mount St. Alban. The women selected to typify certain Christian virtues and attainments form a thread of simple goodness through the centuries. The windows have been placed most appropriately in the Chapel of the Annunciation, for it was the gift of a woman, in memory of a woman. No attempt has been made to claim that these were the greatest women of any given century. The plan behind their selection is simply that they represent in some feature the embodiment of the ideal of Christian womanhood.

Speaking of the purpose back of the placing of the windows in the chapel and of the meaning of the chapel itself, the Very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl, dean of Washington Cathedral, said recently:

"The chapel was planned, not for the purpose of elevating saintly women for our adoration, but with a view to bringing them closer to us, familiarizing us with their sorrows, and their triumphs, and finally reminding us that—

'Such lived not in the past alone,
But tread today the unheeding street.'"

"Among the early Christians," continued the dean, "the word 'saint' was applied to all who had been baptized into the faith, and it is unfortunate that later ages, in limiting the application of the word, have so emphasized the halo that the humanity of the saint has been forgotten. In the Chapel of the Annunciation one can remember that saints are human and real; that their lives leaven every generation, even our own.

Three American Women.

Three American women appear in this pictured story of Christian womanhood, Pocahontas, the Indian princess; Harriet Starr Cannon, foundress of the Community of St. Mary, the first religious community of the Episcopal Church in America, and Miss Julia Emery, a prominent organizer of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church.

The windows and their panels are gems of the stained glass art. The feminine figures lend themselves gracefully to the artistic development of the windows, and the symbolism has been worked out with infinite care and tenderness. The note of Christian womanhood is carried out also in the reredos which has seven panels. The central one is a background, decorated in gold and color for the cross. On either side of the cross are three canopied panels, with figures carved in full relief and painted in color. Those nearest the cross are Mary and Martha, the two sisters of Bethany. Next in order are Mary, wife of Cleophas, who was one of that faithful group who stood by the Cross of Jesus, and Joanna, wife of Chuza, Herod's steward, who was one of those who "ministered unto Him of their substance."

At the extreme left and right of the reredos are the Woman of Samaria, to whom Christ first announced His Messiahship, and Mary Magdalene, the first one to whom Christ appeared after His Resurrection, and the first to tell others that He had risen from the dead.

Banner Bearers of Centuries.

Gazing at the windows one can see in imagination the procession of noble women marching down the centuries who are represented by these twenty feminine figures personifying the distinctive types of womanhood, that have influenced Christian history from its earliest beginning down to the present. They are banner bearers, as it were, of the centuries.

The panel of the first century after Christ bears the figure of St. Phoebe, the first woman recorded as having been appointed a Deaconess. St. Paul attests that she was "a succorer of man." Thus she symbolizes Christian service and all unselfish, helpful women.

The gentle St. Cecilia was selected to typify the women of the second century, the noble Roman maiden, patron saint of lovers of music, who gallantly met martyrdom at the hands of Alamachius, Prefect of Rome.

The grace of freedom from worldly ambition is expressed by St. Rhipsime, representing the third century. St. Rhipsime, though martyred while still a young woman, was so noted for good works that after her death many churches were dedicated in her honor, and to this day thousands of Armenian women bear her name.

St. Helena Symbolized.

St. Helena and all the spiritually minded are symbolized in the Fourth Century panel, in which this English mother (St. Helena of York, England) of Constantine the Great, is pictured.

The fifth century panel bears the figure of St. Ursula, the brave, a tribute to all fearless souls, leader of a three years' pilgrimage, who inspired her companions to dare perils and dangers until her martyrdom by the Huns at Cologne.

The patron saint of Paris, St. Genevieve, typical of all those who guard the helpless, adorns the panel of the sixth century. After her in the panel of the seventh century comes St. Hilda, representative of all true teachers, the Abbess of Whitby, who was a Northumbrian princess and who taught Caedmon, first of the English poets, to sing his sweet numbers.

The eighth century is recalled in the figure of St. Frideswide, representative of all patronesses of learning. As a founder of Oxford, her memory is revered in scholastic as well as ecclesiastical circles.

In St. Ethelgiva, daughter of Alfred the Great, who stands in the panel of the ninth century, is a tribute to all who have kept themselves unspotted in a corrupt world.

St. Edith of Wilton.

St. Edith of Wilton, a symbol of those whose thoughts are holy, appears in the panel of the tenth century. Those of gentle spirit find their exemplar in St. Margaret, wife of Malcolm the Third of Scotland, in the panel representing the eleventh century. The beauty of simplicity is recalled by the individual woman chosen to represent the twelfth century, St. Irene of Constantinople, Empress of the East, who in a society carrying luxury of dress and food to extravagance, set an example of simplicity and plainness.

Many are familiar with the story and appearance of St. Elizabeth of Hungary, the Christian woman in the panel of the thirteenth century. In the panel she is shown at her task of ministering to the needy.

The fourteenth century panel portrays Anne of Bohemia as representative of all compassionate women. The glorious figure of Joan of Arc adorns the panel of the fifteenth century representing all valiant women, a happy choice for her name is a synonym for bravery. Steadfastness in faith is typified in the girlish form of Lady Jane Grey in the panel of the sixteenth century.

Pioneer Days in America.

Pioneer days in America are recalled by the figure of the Lady Rebecca, the Indian princess, Pocahontas, representing the seventeenth century peace making is symbolized by the Indian maid who saved the English colonists from massacre at the hands of her own people.

Motherhood is remembered in the eighteenth century panel where Susanna Wesley, mother of John and Charles Wesley, founders of Methodism, stands representing all devoted mothers. The nineteenth century panel shows Harriet Starr Cannon, known as "Mother Harriet," symbolizing all whose lives are consecrated to the service of God.

While the work of missionary pioneers is typified in the selection for the panel of the twentieth century, Julia Emery, who was chosen because of her work in establishing the Woman's Auxiliary, an organization of churchwomen devoted to the extension of the Kingdom of God.

CAPITAL'S PASTORS ENJOYING VACATIONS

Pulpits of City Churches Supplied by Clergymen of Other Places.

BISHOPS WILL SPEAK

Washington pastors are now in the midst of their annual vacations. The Rev. William A. Lambeth, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church South, leaves Friday for his rest. He will aestivate one week at Edgewater Beach, Md., and two weeks in North Carolina. During his absence his pulpit will be filled by Bishop Collins Denny, W. A. Candler and H. M. Dubose.

The Rev. ZeBarney Phillips, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, is in Europe. Sunday his pulpit will be filled in the morning by the Rev. Alvin Lamar Wills and in the evening by the Rev. James W. Morris.

The Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church, leaves next week with his family for a vacation to be spent on Chesapeake Bay. During his absence his pulpit will be supplied by visiting ministers.

The Rev. F. W. Johnson, pastor of Grace Baptist Church, leaves Monday on his outing and while he is away his pulpit will be regularly supplied at all services.

The Rev. John E. Briggs, pastor of Fifth Baptist Church, leaves in a few days for North Carolina, where he was bred and born, and during his absence his pulpit will be supplied by the Rev. J. R. Gunn, of Atlanta, and the Rev. Weston Bruner, the former pastor of the church.

The Rev. Harry L. Collier, pastor of the Full Gospel Tabernacle, will be absent from his pulpit the month of August, and during that period the pulpit will be supplied by the Rev. C. B. Smith and wife—Evangelist Beulah Argue Smith—well known gospel preachers from Canada.

The Rev. Glenn B. Faucett, the live-wire pastor of the "Little White Church on the Hill," otherwise known as the East Washington Heights Baptist Church, leaves after Sunday for his rest, and the Rev. James Many, of Fort Myers, Fla., for 32 years pastor of this church, will preach.

One Family Boasts Trio of Ministers

Macartney Brothers Have Attained Distinction in Profession.

It is not often that one family gives three sons to the ministry; and seldom, still, that three such sons rise to eminence in the pulpit. This distinction, however, belongs to a rather remarkable Irish Presbyterian family known as the Macartney clan.

There are three of these Macartneys who are noted Presbyterian ministers—the Rev. Albert Joseph Macartney, minister of the Church of the Covenant, Washington; the Rev. Clarence Edward Macartney, minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh; and the Rev. John Roberston Macartney, minister of the Vermont Avenue Presbyterian Church of Los Angeles.

Wishington, and the Covenant congregation in particular, have had the pleasure of hearing two of these brothers preach, for Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney preached the installation sermon when Dr. Albert Joseph Macartney was installed as minister of the Covenant last spring.

Tomorrow the third of these brothers will preach at the Covenant. The Rev. John Robertson Macartney has come East to labor for his two brothers, having preached last Sunday for the one in Pittsburgh.

Blessings never come singly, it seems—at least not to the Church of the Covenant.

Many Pilgrims Throng To Shrine of St. Anne

Today is the annual feast day of St. Anne, the Mother of Mary, Our Lord's Mother, and at the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, near Quebec, the celebration will be unusual.

A great many pilgrims from this country have gone there for the feast, and it is said that some have gone from Washington and other places in the diocese of Baltimore. Many of these pilgrims are cripples and their visit to the shrine is for the purpose of intercession for a cure.

CHURCHES INSTALL HEARING-AID DEVICE

Problem of Deaf Members of Congregation Met by City Pastors.

EAR PHONES ARE REMEDY

One of the serious problems that modern churches have to meet is how to make the deaf members hear. If they do not hear, they are miserable, and if the preacher tries to make them hear, he is miserable. A bawling pulpit means an empty church, in these parlous days.

There is hardly a pastor of a Washington church that is not confronted with this problem, and some of them who have been here for several years have witnessed the tragdy of losing their hard-o'-hearing members, who refuse to come to service if they can not listen in on what is being said.

To meet this situation churches here and throughout the country are installing a device that seems to fit the case admirably. There are two of these systems, and both guaranteed to remedy the situation.

Description of Apparatus.

They consist primarily of a microphone into which the minister talks as he exhorts his congregation to flee from the wrath to come. The deaf person sitting in the pew takes up a little phone and puts it to his ear. If he or she is in no fleeing humor, they can chest on the parson by stricking their thumb into the ear piece and shutting out his exhortation.

Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church South is the latest church to install this device, and tomorrow as many as six deaf persons will be accommodated with seats that are equipped with phones. If more than six come, Dr. Lambeth will be in a fix. But few congregations have so many as six deaf communicants.

One of the devices is the invention of an Alabama inventor, Miller Reese Hutchison—born on Mobile Bay and educated wholly in Alabama. He is the most distinguished graduate of the famous college at Auburn, authoritatively known as the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Other notable inventions, among some 500 for which he has received patents, are the dictograph and the klaxon horn, which made the automobile a perfect nuisance.

Engineer for Edison.

Mr. Hutchison was for years chief engineer for Thomas A. Edison. His most prized possession came to him through his invention of the aid to the deaf. It is a special gold medal given him by Queen Alexandra of England in 1902. And thereby hangs a beautiful tale.

Queen Alexandra was totally deaf. She couldn't even hear court gossip. In some way, probably through her physician, she heard of the wonderful invention. A member of the staff of the British Embassy in Washington or a special courier from the Court in England journeyed to Mobile, where young Hutchison, then 35 years of age, had his laboratory, and witnessed a testing of the invetion.

Came then a commission to the inventor to go to London to install an acousticon in the court theater in Windsor Palace. Expenses all paid, so he went.

Installaition Is Made.

The installation was made. The court ordered the Covent Garden Grand Opera Company to give a performance of "Faust." A brilliant audience of the aristocracy and the diplomatic corps. The beautiful queen put the little phone to her ear and listened. She heard! She cried out that she heard! There was more applause for the queen than for the singers, and more applause for the modest young inventor than for the queen.

A very awkward situation then ensued. Queen Alexandra wished the king to knight Miller Reese Hutchison, but he was an American. Well, he might become a Briton. Alexandra did not know her Alabaman. So the matter was compromised by giving the inventor the gold medal "for exceptional merit in the field of invention."

Churches have been slow to adopt this invention, but they now realize that what you can hear grand opera over you can hear the gospel over. Thus good deeds happen in a naughty, naughty world.—D. R. B.

SOVIET MANGANESE HELD TRADE PERIL

Fish Committee Is Told Russian Dumping Hits Producers in U. S.

MINES HAVE TO CLOSE

New York, July 24 (A.P.).—J. Carson Adkerson, president of the American Manganese Producers Association, wrote today to Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., chairman of the congressional committee investigating Communist activities in this country, charging that the domestic manganese industry was being wrecked by an influx of low-price Russian manganese ore.

Adkerson wrote that American manganese production has been increasing rapidly and indications are it would reach 200,000 tons this year, if there were a market for the ore.

Russian Policy Assailed.

"However," he said, "the Russian policy of dumping manganese ore in the American market to be sold without regard to price and cost of production is wrecking the American manganese industry and has just recently caused the major producers of this country to close their mines and plants, throwing thousands of men out of employment. This situation is due entirely to the Russian program as it applies to manganese."

Adkerson set imports of Russian manganese during 1929 at 329,336 tons, more than twice the amount in 1928, and said there was a corresponding increase so far this year.

Attached to Adkerson's letter was a letter written to him in 1927 by Hanford MacNider, then Assistant Secretary of War, stating that since steel is essential to national defense and since manganese is essential to the production of steel, the safety of the country requires a readily available source of manganese within the United States.

The Fish committe concluded its sessions here yesterday, at least for the present, and proceeded to Detroit.

Amtorg Papers Studied.

Mexico City, July 25 (A.P.).—Mark S. Lulinsky, of New York, an American citizen representing the Amtorg Trading Corporation was held in a hotel under heavy guard today while officials examined confiscated papers seized in his room a week ago.

Authorities said they suspected Lulinsky of being in the pay of the Soviet government to spread communist propaganda in Mexico, but Lulinsky replied that he was not a communist and was here to clean up buisness affairs for Amtorg following the recent closing of the Soviet legation and commercial relations after the Russian representative had been expelled from Mexico.

The investigation is progressing slowly because some of the papers are in Russian. Lulinsky's detention followed information from New York, it was said, and he was held incommunicado and secretly for a week before his American citizenship was learned. He was born in Odessa, but was naturalized in New York in 1922.

Recalled Mayor's Ally Quits Office

Gillespie, Detroit's Chief of Public Works, Was Storm Center.

Detroit, July 25 (A.P.).—The recall of Mayor Bowles today sent his chief ally into a self-imposed political exile.

The mayor, holding office in the interim, between his recall, by a majority of 30,000 votes last Tuesday, and a special election on September 9, received John Gillespie's resignation as commissioner of public works. At the same time Gillespie, storm center of the administration and target for its critics' sharpest darts, announced that he was through with politics forever.

His ambition, Gillespie said, had been to win the confidence of the people. "I am now frank to acknowledge that it is impossible," he said. Gillespie managed Bowles' campaign in opposition to the recall, spending a great deal of money—newspaper estimates put it as high as $100,000—but he will have no part in the coming campaign in which Bowles will be a candidate.

The resignation came as a surprise. It was the second unexpected development in Bowles' cabinet in 24 hours. Yesterday Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox abandoned the keystone of the Bowles vice policy—a central squad—and substituted precinct squads, which Bowles had disbanded.

Mayor Thompson's Brother-in-Law Suicide

Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—William Burkhardt, former State and city official and brother-in-law of Mayor William Hale Thompson, was found dead in his apartment today, his head in the oven of a gas stove whose jets were wide open. Two months ago he made a similar attempt to end his life, but was revived by an inhalator squad. He lived alone. Burkhardt was 55 years old, a former deputy commissioner of public works under Mayor Thompson.

Two years ago Burkhardt was divorced by Mrs. Florence Burkhardt, a sister of Mayor Thompson, on charges of desertion. She said his disappearance in 1926, when he was found in a Vancouver, B. C., sanitarium after being missing for some time, marked the beginning of their break.

TARIFFS, HERE AND ABROAD.

Since concluding his work on the tariff revision Senator Smoot, chairman of the finance committee, has been giving special attention to the tariffs levied by other nations. It is not the nature of Mr. Smoot to let loose talk about tariff matters go unanswered by facts and figures. He puts foreign interests that have been crying out against "the American tariff wall" in the position of ungrateful recipients of many favors. Cause for complaint is turned directly back upon them.

"If there is any complaint over tariff questions," Senator Smoot concluded, "the whole of this complaint rests with the United States." He used France for an example. The French spend about $160,000,000 annually for American goods. French imports into this country amount to $156,000,000, but to get at the amount of American money that flows yearly into France there must be added to this the $300,000,000 spent by tourists. The increased duties on French goods amount to only about 3½ per cent, and for the most part these goods are luxuries which are imported regardless of duties.

On the other hand, France has a flexible tariff arrangement in which maximum or minimum rates may be applied to any one country. The higher duties are applied to American trade, resulting in unfair discrimination. The United States' tariff applies equally to all countries.

The Utah senator has given sufficient attention to the tariff rates of other nations to discover that "invariably they are higher than American rates on products imported from foreign countries." Official Government figures show that under the new tariff act the United States will collect $5.17 per capita in customs duties. Australia collected in 1928 $22.65 per capita; Canada, $20.46; Norway, $10.49; Argentina, $11.68, and Great Britain, $12.86. The per capita customs tax in each of these countries is more than twice that charged by the United States. In Australia and Canada the ratio is four to one.

These facts emphasize the absurdity of the charge that the United States has started a tariff war. Every modern nation has adopted the protective principle, and many of them have boosted their rates far higher than America. In spite of the new tariff act, this country offers the greatest market in the world.

Foreign interests are trying to convince the American people that they have carried the protective principle to extremes. Those interests realize that the American tariff is moderate compared with the protection afforded industries of their own countries. But they consider it good business to play upon the gullibility of the American people. The deplorable fact is that some people in this country swallowed this propaganda whole, and began to clamor against the "destruction of international trade." Fortunately Congress was too level headed to pay any attention to either the misled free traders here or the selfish interests abroad.

CUBAN PARCEL POST.

For 64 years Cuba has been denied the right to export to this country through the mails her only mailable product, manufactured cigars and cigarettes. The barrier was set up in 1866 when Congress enacted a law to prohibit the importation of Cuban cigars and cigarettes in lots of less than 3,000.

Although Cuba resented this treatment, she bore the discrimination with admirable good grace, continuing to allow the entry of thousands of mailable American products. In 1926, the total parcel post trade from Cuba to the United States amounted to only about $100,000, while the total of that from this country to Cuba amounted to more than $1,000,000.

In the interest of fairness, and to promote good will between the two republics, President Hoover and Postmaster General Brown determined to remove the unjust prohibition. When the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill was enacted recently it carried a provision that repealed the law of 1866 barring shipments of Cuban cigars and cigarettes in lots of less than 3,000. It was then possible to open the doors of the American postal establishment to Cuba's great tobacco industry.

The sequel to the action taken by Congress came last Thursday when the United States and Cuba entered into a new parcel post convention. It provides for the exchange of ordinary and registered articles of merchandise and postal matter of all kinds, including cigars and cigarettes, that are admitted in the domestic mails of either country, up to a limit of 22 pounds. Its effect should be to stimulate the trade of both countries.

The consummation of the parcel post convention is a triumph of common sense and fair dealing, and may well be listed among the achievements of the Hoover administration.

FOR PARTY HARMONY.

Claudius Huston's announcement that he will "call a meeting of the executive committee of the Republican national committee on August 7, at which time he will submit his resignation as Republican national chairman" brings an end to a controversy that, much to the delight and direct gain of the Democratic party, has prevailed in Republican ranks since the middle of March. At that time, it was brought out that Mr. Huston had been active in the Muscle Shoals fight, and that he had confused funds of the Tennessee River Improvement Association with his personal account. Mr. Huston's release from further appearance before the lobby committee was followed forthwith by thinly-veiled suggestions that his resignation would be in order. From that date on, the clamor for his resignation has steadily increased in volume.

Whether or not Mr. Huston engaged in lobbying, and whether or not his seeming carelessness with funds intrusted to his care was of a culpable nature are hardly germane to the question of whether or not he should resign. Mr. Huston has told his friends that he has no sense of having committed a wrong, either public or private, and that he can not understand why there should be a demand for his official scalp. He is fully entitled to expose his side of the story and opportunity should be made for him to obtain vindication for his actions. But the propriety and necessity of demanding his resignation are separate questions. They must be regarded as distinct from the question of vindication.

Mr. Huston, as chairman of the national committee, is a liability to the Republican party. The Democratic national committee has exploited the testimony taken by the lobby investigating committee and turned it to party advantage. As matters now stand, the Republican party would face the forthcoming elections burdened under the handicap of a party chairman vulnerable to political and personal attack. Mr. Huston could not devote his attention to winning elections; he would have to keep busy defending himself and working for vindication. That he should continue to defend himself and work for vindication is not questioned. Unencumbered by official position, however, he should be able to devote more attention to fighting his personal battles in addition to which he would not draw others into the maelstrom.

The two-party system upon which the American Government is reared goes far to explain its virility. The smooth, efficient functioning of this system requires that both parties shall enter the campaign upon an equal footing. By resigning at this time, Mr. Huston will make an important contribution to the chances of success of the Republican party in the fall campaigns. The resignation is not an admission of culpability but is necessary in the interest of party harmony.

MIXING UP BABIES.

That the adhesive-tape system of identifying new-born babes, so prevalent in American maternity institutions, is not the best that could be conceived, has once more been emphasized in the case of the Watkins-Bamberger infants of Chicago. Born at approximately the same time, in the same department of a hospital there, these babies were said to have been wrongly tagged. A group of eminent specialists in dermatology, pathology, oculism, anatomy, criminology, obstetrics and other subjects wrestled for several days with the ticklish problem of determining whether the Watkins baby is really the Bamberger kid, or the other way 'round. In the end the parents repudiated the verdict of science, and kept the babies that had been given to them at the hospital.

One careless moment of a nurse in a crowded maternity hospital may lead to years of heroic paternal sacrifice in the rearing and education of what was, after all, only a stranger's brat. Certainly no mother wishes to go to all the trouble and expense of raising a child if it is not her own. It was perhaps all these considerations which led to the recent decree of Austria that, to prevent mix-ups, every mother and her new-born babe must be immediately finger-printed. Hereafter, in Austria at least, whenever a dispute shall arise it will not be necessary to make studies of head and body formations and facial appearances, obstetrical observations, foot and finger prints; or to resort to ultra-violet rays on skin specimens to determine the similarity of pigment; or to make blood tests, utilizing the photometric system in which blood cells are measured by photography; or to examine the eyes of two mothers and two infants to determine if there are similar defects, such as astigmatism. When disputes of this character arise in Austria there will hereafter be no consideration given to cowlicks, moles and other birthmarks discovered by persons of eagle eye and tenacious memory.

Here is something more solid than marks and such common characteristics as baby-blue eyes, rosy cheeks, pink ears and toes; here is accurate knowledge. Had old King Solomon access to such indisputable records as are now universally required in Austria he would not have been obliged to resort to psychology as a means of telling which mother owned the child he naively proposed to cut in two.

Many individual American obstetricians have already adopted the practice of making finger-print cards, some of them also adding footprints—for both hospital and mother. This not only makes for accuracy, but has the additional advantage of preserving for future years a souvenir of infancy.

DISTRICT DAY.

In inviting the District Commissioners to spend the week-end at his camp on the Rapidan, President Hoover again has manifested his deep interest in the District of Columbia. Not often has an executive been sufficiently interested in Washington to devote a week-end to considering its welfare.

President Hoover became interested in the National Capital long before he entered the White House. It is doubtful, indeed, if any President in modern times has known Washington so well. He has been a resident and a taxpayer from the time he came here as food administrator during the war. In that role and in the role of Secretary of Commerce, he came to learn a great deal about the problems and aspirations of the Capital City.

In the fourteen months he has been in the White House, President Hoover has conscientiously carried out the duties that are placed upon him in connection with the government of the District. He has been especially careful in the selection of local officials, and he has been in the forefront of those who want this to be the world's most beautiful city.

Historic things have happened at Rapidan. Nine months ago, the President and the Prime Minister of England sat on a log and paved the way for the London naval treaty. Perhaps, from a local standpoint, the conversations this week-end also will become historic.

TIME TO BUILD SHIPS

From the New York Herald Tribune.

Now that the London treaty has been ratified and signed by the President, it becomes the duty of our Government to provide for an adequate American Navy to remedy the unquestionable inferiority with which we entered the London conference. As has often been said, the naval inferiority which we have been forced to endure due to the short-sightedness of Congress has made it extremely difficult for us to obtain at international gatherings terms which bore even a remote relation to our actual needs. This situation is bad, not only for us, by leaving us relatively unprotected in a world which is still heavily armed, but it has retarded the execution of the peace policies of other countries.

Other nations have found themselves faced by a United States desiring parity with Britain but unwilling to build anything like the number of ships necessary to approach it, and, instead, demanding the reduction of existing foreign fleets. One of the outstanding developments at London was the recognition by the United States that it could not reasonably require Britain to scrap existing ships merely because the American Congress had been too lazy or shortsighted to build a few American ones.

Under the terms of the London treaty the United States may build ships in the next six years as follows: Aircraft carriers, 44,914 tons; eight-inch-gun cruisers, 80,000 tons; six-inch-gun cruisers, 87,000 tons; destroyers, 150,000 tons; submarines, 39,000 tons.

The destroyer and submarine items are largely replacements of vessels soon to be abandoned, and so do not increase the present size of the fleet. They, like the other types, should all be built between now and 1936, with the possible exception of the six-inch-gun cruisers—a class more suited to British needs than to our own. In connection with this tonnage it should be remembered that under the terms of the treaty we can devote all the six-inch-gun cruiser tonnage to the construction of 10,000-ton aircraft carriers. This would be in addition to the 44,914 tons specially allotted under aircraft carriers.

The statement coming from Washington that to do so would be to violate the spirit of the London treaty seems clearly ill-founded. It was authentically stated in London when the treaty was published that it was drawn in this particular with a special eye to the construction of 10,000-ton aircraft carriers out of our six-inch-gun allowance. If a "moral" objection were suddenly discovered to our not building ships so suited to our needs, one would think strange thoughts indeed. The country would fail to see anything very moral about our being required to build ships of a type more suited to British needs than to ours when the text of the treaty itself made the building of aircraft carriers permissible.

Naval aviation is something in which Americans seem to excel, as any one who has observed the flying from aircraft carriers can testify. There is certainly a strong case for devoting a very large proportion of the tonnage allowed us to these ships. One 10,000-ton aircraft carrier has already been authorized and appropriated for. Work on it should begin as soon as possible, and the most serious consideration should be given to building more ships like it.

Considering the fact that the total annual cost of our Army and Navy is only about 5 per cent of our total annual expenditure on Government and an almost infinitesimal fraction of our national wealth, the amount of funds to be expended on building up our fleet can not be considerable. The most important duty of this country is to evolve a plan covering the six-year period, so that when the next conference takes place we shall no longer have to say: "We want parity, but we don't want to pay for it."

The administration evidently is well aware of these considerations, as the announcement that comprehensive plans are to be submitted to Congress in the fall indicates. The least that private citizens can do is to support the plans for a well-balanced fleet when the question comes up at the next session.

A BOY FOR COMPANY.

A boy for company and, oh,
A man I now must be!
No time for petty thoughts and low
Or faults those eyes may see.
The worst within must never show
To him who walks with me.

Oh, I may rant and I may rail
When petty cares annoy,
And men may learn that I am frail
And see a loss destroy
My strength, but I must never fail
When I am with a boy.

No matter what the cause may be,
Nor howsoever tried,
The shame that grown-ups find in me
With courage I must hide,
That only good the boy shall see
Who travels at my side.

A boy for company, and oh,
'Tis man's supremest test,
God grant my faults shall never show
Nor all my sins he guessed,
Whenever with a boy I go
I ask to do my best.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

MY Dear Louis:

A few days ago I heard you saying nice things about a boy you had met in a neighboring village.

I didn't listen attentively, but I gathered from your description that he was the answer to a maiden's prayer in all particulars save one.

He was shy and couldn't talk much.

Perhaps you didn't hold that against him, but in any case I think I should tell you a thing or two about boys of that kind.

It hasn't been long since I played around with the boys and knew their secrets, and I'm sure the breed hasn't changed much since then.

There are coarse and vulgar boys who feel ill at ease among girls and decent men, and there are clean and manly fellows who are shy because they think girls angelic creatures much finer than themselves.

The coarse ones are easy to recognize, and I'm sure you will keep away from them.

But I don't want you to underestimate the value of the others—the regular fellows who seem bashful and can't talk much because they haven't had much to do with girls.

In my experience and observation I have found it almost invariably true that young men and old men who are a little afraid of the ladies are the cleanest, most intelligent, most honorable and most manly of their sex.

I am suspicious of slick-headed young rascals who feel too much at ease with girls.

Some time ago I heard one of the breed say to another: "I've got a line they all fall for."

He meant that he crooned flattering speeches to each new girl acquaintance and thought her dumb enough to believe him sincere.

The world is full of impudent young shallow-pates like that who make love to every girl they meet, and the fact that they keep it up is proof that many girls really are silly enough to "fall for it."

I don't believe you are vain enough or dumb enough to be impressed by such a "line," but I want to call you attention to something you may have overlooked.

The "line" of such a boy is an insult.

He is saying, in effect: "I am flattering you in this mushy way because I think you are too green to realize that you are being insulted and stupid enough to think I'm in earnest."

If misfortune places you with such an ass there isn't much you can do about it, but you can at least laugh and tell him to keep his soft soap for idiots. Love,

DAD.

BOBBY JONES IN THE COURT ROOM.

(Mr. Jones, king of golfers, is a lawyer by profession.—Ed.)

The scene is an Atlanta court. Mr. Jones, as counsel for a client charged with murder, is pleading his case.

Bobby (at the height of his appeal)—My client, your honor, is the victim of a relentless drive by . . .

Court (interrupting)—Speaking of drives, Mr. Jones, I'd like to ask you a question.

Bobby—By all means.

Court—I slice everything I hit lately. Just how can that be corrected?

Bobby—Move the left hand over a little.

Court—Thanks. Proceed.

Bobby—My client is a victim of a relentless drive by the prosecutor's office. His attitude here is explainable by the fact that fear has held him in its grip . . .

Court—One moment, Mr. Jones. With reference to that word grip; do you use the interlocking or not? I've often wondered.

Bobby—Ordinarily I do not, your honor.

Court—I'd appreciate it if you would show me some time just how to hold the club for the best results. After court will do. You may go on.

Bobby—I say my client has been held in the grip of fear. He is a poor country youth, uneducated and untrained. We all know the hazards of . . .

Court—That reminds me. In getting out of a hazard, do you take up plenty of sand.

Bobby (a little impatiently)—I think it advisable, your honor.

Court—I've had very poor luck in traps lately, and I just can't make out what the trouble is. Proceed.

Bobby—We all know the hazards which surround the poor boy deprived of all the advantages of life. Trapped by his . . .

Prosecuting Attorney—One moment, Mr. Jones. When the ball is in a footprint in a trap, can it be moved or must it be played as it is?

Bobby—It must be played as it is. May I proceed?

Judge (absentmindedly)—Shoot! It's your honor.

Bobby—Trapped by his surroundings, this young man was a victim of society. When he fell into bad company and these other boys suggested that he join them, he met their approaches. . . .

Police Attendant—Your honor, may I ask a question?

Court—Go ahead.

Police Attendant—Mr. Jones has spoken of approaches. Now, when you are about thirty yards from the green, what is the correct club?

Bobby—I submit, you honor, that I should be allowed to go on with my argument. This is a pressing case and . . .

Court—Pressing! That's my trouble. Now, Mr. Jones, what can I do to eliminate it?

Bobby (in desperation)—Possibly we can make more progress in this trial if we go out on the lawn and illustrate correct golf first and resume the arguments later.

Prosecutor—A good idea!

Police Attendant—By all means!

Court—So ordered!

Prisoner (very much puzzled)—But what about me?

Court—That's all right. You can caddie for us.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

An Old-Timer Recalls Senator Morton's Pronouncement Regarding Democrats and the Protective Tariff.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with much interest your editorial on the Democratic attitude toward the tariff. It vividly recalled to my memory what the late Senator Oliver P. Morton said on the same subject. In one of his speeches he declared the attitude of the Democrats on the tariff issue was an "organized hypocrisy." They were always willing for their constituents to reap the benefit of the protective theory, while they denounced the law as "the robber tariff."

It may be true, as the Democrats have so often asserted, that the protective idea is born of selfishness. All government is based on selfishness. In fact, government was born of selfishness, a few banding together to protect themselves and ther interests against others. St. Paul said that he who did not care for his own household was worse than an infidel. What is a government but a household on an enlarged scale?

A number of years ago, in my newspaper work, I had occasion to interview a prominent business man of the South. In the course of the interview he said that it was the protective theory in the tariff that would build up the South, making it a great manufacturing center, yet the people there annually went into conventions, solemnly denounced the "robber tariff" and declared in favor of a tariff for revenue only. He said that gratitude ought to make every Southern man a Republican on the tariff issue.

In the Southern States there is enough waterpower going to waste to operate a thousand manufacturing plants. Wisdom and sound business sense would lead the South to manufacture all its own cotton instead of shipping abroad the raw material and then buying back the manufactured product. AN OLD JOURNALIST.

James Eads How Was Not Deserted in Death by Those to Whom He Was Frequently a Benefactor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The statement that the comrades and friends of Dr. James Eads How, especially the hoboes, "deserted" him in death by not attending his funeral is an injustice and either a misrepresentation or a misunderstanding.

Dr. How is not forgotten, much less was he "deserted" by the homeless, the jobless and the friendless to whom he was so many times a benefactor.

But in 24 hours' time it was not possible for the thousands of unemployed that he had befriended—many of them on the Pacific Coast, all of them scattered in every State of the Union and in several foreign countries—to come to Washington and attend a hastily arranged funeral. If there had been time, it would still have been impossible for most of them. They didn't have the money!

James Eads How's friends—with rare exceptions—do not ride in parlor cars. Nor even in day coaches. When they travel they ride in freight cars or walk. How can men without employment, without funds, travel hundreds or thousands of miles to a funeral arranged on a day's notice?

We who have a definite program for a new and better social order doubted the wisdom of some of Dr. How's tactics, but we never failed to appreciate the greatness of his heart and the vastness of his sympathy for the earth's lowly. The men he helped—whether with or without economic program—did not forget him. They will never forget.

Visiting Motorists Protest Methods Used by Police in Clearing the Highway for an Official Party.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It made our American blood boil when, on the Baltimore Pike, two motor cops shrieked their sirens behind us and because we were not fast enough in getting out of their way they both hurled the question, "Why don't you get out of the way?" They were escorting three or four cars of men and women.

We passed hundreds of cars on our way from New York without receiving an unkind look or word, and I protest the insults by these officials or their higher-ups who authorized it. Why such display?

The Power Trust Is Responsible for Blocking the Proposal to Develop Power in the Potomac.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A letter you published July 24 presents the childish idea that Great Falls power is not developed for the benefit of Washington and environs for the reason that so doing would destroy the scenic beauty of the Potomac. Such simplicity is refreshing even if astounding.

Any one who does not know that the powerful power interests are the real obstacle to this eminently sane, logical and beneficial proposal is either uninformed or surprisingly incapable of comprehension.

VACATION DISTANCES.

In 1730 Ebenezer Colonizer yoked his team of oxen, primed his flintlock and, piling his family aboard a two-wheeled conveyance, fared forth on a vacation trip to his sister, who lived forty miles away over the hills. It was, says the Christian Science Monitor, a long and adventurous trip.

In 1830 Ebenezer Homesteader spent his vacation by taking his family to Boston on the stage coach. It was an epochal journey; 100 miles were jolted over ruts.

In 1930 Ebenezer Flatdweller stepped on the self-starter of his automobile and, with a tent on the running board and his family in the rear seat, started on his annual vacation tour. He covered 1,000 miles easily.

The Ebenezer of 2030 may look back on today's vacationists as a romantic and primitive folk. Predictions of aeronautical experts indicate that within ten years the circle of the vacation tour of even the man of modest means may be expanded far beyond its present horizon. The Ebenezer of a century hence may embark in a device not yet imagined and soar forth to spend his recreational period disporting in the canals of Mars.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Chief of War Department on Airplane Trip

Mr. Hurley Flies to Chicago, With Bismarck as Ultimate Goal.

TODAY in Washington. Tomorrow, far on the Western plains where dusty roadways run!

That is the record of Mr. Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, who, every week or so, nonchalantly boards an airplane bound for some distant point and within a few hours is, perchance, reviewing at a far post the progress of affairs pertaining to the department. Air channels and the whir of wings, high over mountain tops, must by this time, be a familiar phase of the adventurous director's routine.

Yesterday, with the Assistant Attorney General, Mr. Seth W. Richardson, Secretary Hurley left for Chicago in an Army plane piloted by Lieut. Cornelius Cousland. One stop was scheduled for Dayton, Ohio, and the trio spent last night in Chicago, leaving this morning for Minneapolis, where a brief stay will be made. They will arrive in Fargo tonight and on Tuesday Secretary Hurley will make an address at Bismarck, N. Dak., before the State convention of the American Legion at which he will be the guest of honor.

Before Secretary Hurley leaves for Bismark he will spend Monday at Devils Lake making a survey of the territory mapped out by engineers for the diversion of the waters of the Cheyenne river and of Devils Lake for the irrigation project which, according to estimate, will benefit thousands of plans proposed, also will exercise great benefits in the matter of flood control.

The Secretary will return to Washington on Thursday.

For the Assistant Attorney General the trip spelled not only adventure but also "rapid transit" to his own home which is in Fargo. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson originally had planned a motor trip to their western home early in August, but with the Attorney General now in North Dakota, Mrs. Richardson, with their daughter, Martha, will leave by train on Monday. Their plans include an extended stay at Detroit Lake, Minn.

Maj. and Mrs. James Knox Cockrell, who are in the South on a trip, stopped at the Grove Park Inn at Asheville, N. C., for luncheon on Tuesday. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cockrell and Miss Knox. Maj. and Mrs. Cockrell make their home in Washington. Mrs. Cockrell is the former Miss Susan S. Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Lewis.

Capt. Jose Iglesias Takes Hotel Apartment.

The Naval Attache of the Spanish Embassy, Capt. Jose Iglesias, has taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Representative and Mrs. Henry Allen Cooper have returned to their home in Racine, Wis., where Mr. Cooper is recuperating from the effects of a severe fall suffered several weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Jones Touring Canada in Car.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Jones left Washington Thursday in their automobile to spend several weeks in Canada. They will go to Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec and then into the Laurentian Mountains and Northern Quebec on a fishing expedition. From there they will proceed east along the St. Lawrence River, circling the Gaspe Peninsula, thence back to the United States through northern Maine and down the New England coast. They will return to their apartment at the Burlington Hotel early in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Herbert, jr., are spending some time at Old Point Comfort and Virginia Beach.

Miss Dorothea Lane Returns to Capital.

Miss Dorothea Lane has returned to Washington after passing a forthnight at Cape May where she was the guest of Miss Emily Cookman, of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lane and Miss Lane will sail from New York on August 14, for a four-month world cruise.

Col. and Mrs. Brady G. Ruttencutter will sail for Europe on August 20 on the Leviathan to be gone several weeks.

Lieut. Joseph Carmody, retired, and Mrs. Carmody are passing several weeks at Lake Bomasun, Vt.

Mrs. Harris and Sister Week-End at Seashore.

Mrs. Ned Harris, with her sister, Mrs. Richard Sulp, and small daughter, Leonora Vrunson, of Charlotte, N. C., will spend the week end at Virginia Beach. They will return early in the week.

Among the Washingtonians at Virginia Beach are Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Noyes, Mr and Mrs. R. S. Howard, Miss Helen Hume and Miss Dorothy Barnes.

Maj. and Mrs. D. B. Netherwood, of 3520 Rodman street, are passing some time at the Grove Park Inn at Asheville, N. C.

Mrs. Frank A. Spicer and her son, Robert Francis, of Edgemoor, Md., are spending the summer at the home of her mother, Mrs. Rose T. Byrne Garrison in Stephenson Park, New Rochelle, N. Y.

Mrs. Orville Breckenridge Drown, daughter of former District Commissioner and Mrs. Henry L. West, has taken possession of the new home recently purchased at 6323 Meadow Lane, Chevy Chase, having disposed of her former residence in Edgemoor. Her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Drown, is spending a few weeks' vacation with her aunt, Mrs. Morgan Stinemetz, at Orangeburg, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Ivan Zelov have closed their home in Rosemont, Pa., and with their young son, Victor, jr., and Randolph D., are established in their cottage at Beach-Arlington, N. J., for the summer. Later in the season, they will spend some time in New England motoring to localities where Mrs. Zelov's family were colonial founders and patriots. Their mother, Mrs. Randolph D. Hopkins, and her sister, Miss Genevieve L. Porter, of this city, are spending this week-end as their guests at the Shore.

Cubans Hosts At Luncheon In Mayflower

Charge D'Affaires and Senor Mont Also Fete Guests.

The Charge d'Affaires of the Cuban Embassy, Senor Don Jose Baron, and Senor Jose Montalvo, director of the postal administration of Cuba, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower on the occasion of the signing of the parcel post treaty between the United States and Cuba.

The guests were the Postmaster General, Mr. Walter Brown; the Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Francis White; the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Seymour Lowman; the Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. W. Irving Glover; the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. Frederick A. Tilton; the Director General of the Pan American Union, Dr. Leo S. Rowe; Mr. Eugene B. White, Mr. George H. Grayson, Mr. Joseph Bagley and members of the embassy staff, including the First Secretary, Senor Don Pedro Rodrigues-Capote; the Second Secretary, Senor Don Gonsalez Guell; the attaches, Senor Jose Sera and Senor Orestes Garcia, and Senor Rafael Montalvo.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman will leave Washington early next month for their summer home at Southampton, Long Island, where they will pass some time. Later they will go to Newport to visit Mrs. Tuckerman's sister, Mrs. Frederic de Peyster, of New York, and Mrs. Robert Gardiner.

Miss Laura Tuckerman, who is visiting Miss Margaretta Wright at Seal Harbor, Me., will later go to Bar Harbor to visit Mrs. Henry F. Dimock before joining her parents.

Talks Listed At Arts Club For Tomorrow

Mr. Harry F. Cunningham and Mr. Partridge to Be Speakers.

Following the chafing dish supper at the Arts Club on Sunday evening, its members and their guests will listen to informal addresses on architectural subjects by Mr. Harry F. Cunningham, formerly of Washington, and Mr. William Partridge, of the Capital City Park and Planning Commission.

The subject of Mr. Cunningham's talk is "Adventures of an Architect," and he will tell of his varied experiences in restoration work in France and in this country. Mr. Partridge will tell of a new and important L'Enfant plan for Washington recently submitted, and of the Park and Planning Commission's scheme for treatment of that part of the Mall surrounding the Monument.

Mrs. Henry Suydam has returned to Washington after passing two months in Europe. With Mr. Suydam and their son, Henry, jr., she will pass the week-end with her mother, Mrs. George Barnett at Wakefield Manor, Va.

League to Launch Fight on Trachoma

31 Countries Join in War Against Dread Eye Disease.

Geneva, July 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—An international drive against trachoma (granular conjunctivitis of the eyes) will be launched tomorrow when the Antitrachoma League, composed of 31 European, American and Asiatic countries, meets at the league to perfect its organization.

Delegates of 21 countries will be present at the initial meeting tomorrow, including Dr. P. K. Olitsky, of the Rockefeller Institute, who is carrying on the work of the Japanese savant, Hideyo Noguchi, who died in the African jungles when his experiments to isolate the trachoma germ were nearing success. Dr. Park Lewis, of Buffalo, and Dr. S. Friedenwald, of Johns Hopkins, are other Americans attending.

The health section of the League of Nations has taken up the crusade against blindness and has asked the council to solicit the active cooperation of the league's members. The conference meeting tomorrow will be under the chairmanship of Emile de Grosse, of Budapest.

United Cigar Stores Co. Seek Writ on McCarl

Justice Peyton Gordon in District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday issued a rule requiring J. R. McCarl, comptroller general of the United States, to show cause August 25 why a writ of mandamus should not be issued requiring him to allow the United Cigar Stores Co. of America, with headquarters in New York City, a claim of $20,476.47.

The petitioner tells the court that in April, 1926, the Court of Claims awarded it a judgment of $296,463.29 for internal revenue taxes illegally assessed and collected, of which sum $220,177.18 represented principal and the remainder interest from the date of the collection of the taxes and the court's decree. The additional sum sought is for interest from the date of the court's decree and the filing of the mandate of the United States Supreme Court upholding the Court of Claims judgment. Mr. McCarl has paid the amount of the judgment, but refuses to allow the claim for additional interest, it is set forth.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT of Columbia. Nettie E. Gray, plaintiff, vs. Charles E. Gray, defendant. Equity No. 51484. The object of this suit is to give the plaintiff a good legal and salable title to lot 42, Square 794, 508 Third street southeast, Washington, D. C. On motion of the plaintiff it is this 16th day of July, 1930, ordered that defendant, Charles E. Gray, if living, and if not his unknown heirs, legatees, devisees cause his or their appearance to be entered herein on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, occurring first after the date of the first publication of this order. Provided, a copy of this order be published once a week for three weeks in The Washington Post; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default. For good cause shown the time of this publication is shortened. JESSE C. ADKINS, Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) By FRANK

HIDE IN THE DARK - - -

By FRANCES NOYES HART
Author of "The Bellamy Trial"

Time: All-Hallows Eve.
Place: Lady Court, an old manor house south of Washington.
CAST OF CHARACTERS:
Lindy Marsden, lonely, lovely, a dark-eyed romanticist, and mistress of Lady Court.
Doug King, hilarious and jovial, the life of every party and the founder of the March Hares.
Neil Sheridan, sleek, dark, highly successful in his career as a lawyer and husband of Trudi, wise, witty and chic, with all the ease of manner of a grand duchess, and the lack of manners of a fishwife.
Chatty Ross, small, gay, blindly adoring wife of Tom Ross, the least successful man in the room, shabby and sensitive among his wealthy friends.
Hanna Dart, a gentle lady, immaculately beautiful, whose reserve masks a deep affection for her husband,
Gavin Dart, a rather tired and immensely successful business man of 50, with shrewd, dark eyes and steel-gray hair.
Ray Hardy, the youngest member of the party, not long married and overwhelmingly in love with Joel Hardy, her charming and irresistible husband, who has not grown five minutes older in the last ten years.
Jill Leighton, graceful and gracious, stepsister of that legendary Sunny, the beloved girl whose strange death ten years ago still lay like a shadow over the gay group.
Larry Redmond, an agreeable young banker who can not understand why Jill hates him.
Kit Baird, wanderer and adventurer in strange lands, who in his casual way does every romantic thing magnificently well.

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Thirteen gay revelers, calling themselves THE MARCH HARES, have gathered on Halloween at Lady Court, an old manor house. As the party gets under way some one starts a graphophone. The record is "Underneath the Stars," Sunny's tune. Sunny herself, whom every one loved, having been drowned in Washington.
Kit entertains with a few songs.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

TWO WHO CAN'T FORGET.

The man on the hearth bent forward, his hands as light and skillful as though it was a heart that he was touching to flame into gayety and beauty instead of a fire. Deep as he was in his task, at the light step behind him he lifted his head and turned to flash the girl in the shadows that unforgotten smile. And as of old, she stopped to greet it, hand against her heart, suddenly and startlingly pale.

He asked easily, "Forgotten something, little Lindy?"

Lindy, steadying herself against the end of the couch, replied as easily in her velvety little voice, "Yes, gloves and purse. Seen them anywhere?"

"Not yet." He was on his feet in one swift move. "Here, let's have some light and we'll institute a search party."

But at that she lifted her hand. "No, no, the fire's light enough. I think I left them over by the window——"

Kit, leaning against the mantel, asked in that mocking tone that was still a caress, "D'you put them on when you fix your hair? Or did you want to buy something before dinner?"

Even that did not color the small face. She said tranquilly: "It has my powder. It—look, that's a strange sky, isn't it? What does it mean?"

"Trouble," he said, not stirring. "Storm. There's been a wind rising ever since we got here——"

"That's why it got so inky dark a little while ago, isn't it? See, that jagged streak behind the cedars is as red as fire——"

"Oh, redder: red as blood." And as the slim hand on the dim brocade tightened, he laughed. "Still hate blood, Lindy?"

Remembering.

"Oh, it's worse than hating. I can't stand it. That sounds idiotic, but it's really an understatement. Something in me dies a little every time I even hear the word."

"Remember the time I cut my wrist in Rock Creek?"

"Yes," said Lindy, her eyes still on the strange streak in the sky. "I remember."

"You tied it up with as pretty a little bandage as any one ever made out of four inches of pocket handkerchief and then pitched straight over at my feet as though some one had pushed you."

"I remember."

"You very nearly scared the lights out of me," murmured Kit, tilting his red head back against the mantel and drawing a long, luxurious breath of the aromatic smell of dancing flame "Lord, what a——"

"Kit, this catch is stuck—help me, won't you? I want to smell the frost in the box-trees——"

"No frost tonight, my lamb, not with that wind. Still, anything to help a lady——" He was at her side in three long strides; a second later the wind, cold and sweet and wild, was all about them.

"There!" Her voice rose, softly triumphant. "You can smell it now—oh, heavenly. What do they call it—the odor of eternity?"

"I doubt whether eternity smells so sweet to some of us," said Kit Baird.

Ten Years Ago.

"The last time I saw you we were standing here." The little voice was suddenly edged with magic. "Right here, only you were—closer. It was a green sky—so still and clear and sad, and there was one star. I wished on it——"

Suddenly his fingers were linked about hers, careless and possessive, his low laughter was in her ears.

"Lindy — Lindy — those gloves — wherever did you put those gloves?"

"You knew all the time, didn't you, Kit? Did it amuse you that I was so shameless as to leave them? So shameless as to come back? They're on the couch, in the left-hand corner. Get them, will you?"

He said, still laughing, "No."

"Ten years ago—" she whispered, "the star was right over those holly trees. * * * I thought that you were going to kiss me."

"I thought so too," he told her, "What did you wish on the star, little Lindy?"

"I wished that you would kiss me," said the small lovely voice.

"Let's find the star again, Lindy. * * * look, over the holly—isn't that something shining?"

"You were bending your head," the dreaming voice told him. "And I was lifting mine. And then, in the hall, some one started playing 'Underneath the Stars'—And that was that. * * *"

"And that," said Kit Baird, slowly and evenly as their hands swung apart, "was that * * * Not forgotten Sunny yet, Lindy?"

Lindy Asks a Question.

Lindy, pale in the shadows, pulled the dark furs closer.

"It's cold—close the window—come back to the fire." After a long moment she said, in a stilled tone of wonder, as though the question itself were a reply, "Forgotten Sunny?" And after a longer moment still with her hands stretched out to the dancing flames:

"Have you, Kit?"

He said, "No. Not in this world Nor the next either, if the devil gives us one to play with. * * * Pretty hands you've got, little Lindy."

She looked at them as though she were seeing them for the first time, wrung them hard together, and asked in a small voice shaken with something deeper than terror, "Was it you that made Sunny kill herself, Kit?"

"I made Sunny kill herself?" He stared down at her, his face frozen to a white mask of incredulity. "I? Sunny never looked at me—never thought of me—never knew I was there unless there was music playing. What in God's name made you think that?"

"Something — something I heard. Were you in Baltimore the Saturday before Sunny died, Kit?"

"Yes, I was there with——" He pulled up aruptly. "Let's get this straight. Some one told you that I was there with Sunny?"

"Sunny was there, Kit. She was there with a man. She motored over from Washington to meet him—she thought he was going to marry her. It wasn't you?"

He said, "No! How did you know all this, Lindy?"

A Letter From Sunny.

"She wrote me a letter to Richmond the day before. She always told me everything and she didn't want Jill to know, because she was afraid that Mrs. Leighton would be angry with Jill is she thought that she'd helped her. Mrs. Leighton didn't like the man, Sunny said. She didn't like you, either, did she, Kit?"

In spite of the concentration that was carving lines between his eyes he permitted himself a grim little smile. "Mrs. Leighton didn't like any one who preferred her charming daughters to her charming self. You're quite right—she didn't like me a bit. Didn't, Sunny tell you the man's name, Lindy?"

"No; she wanted it to be a surprise. She said that he was the most wonderful man in the world."

"So you thought that it must be I?" The grim smile deepened. "Very, very flattering, but the description happens to be misleading."

"Kit, that letter—afterward I used to cry until morning remembering it. So wild with joy, and life, and adventure. It wasn't like a letter, it was like a bird singing."

He said suddenly and strongly, "Don't." After a moment he added equably, "Sorry, don't mind me. I'm more kinds of a fool than ever I realized. You see, I did see Sunny in Baltimore that Saturday, Lindy. I'd come up from Quantico to usher at a wedding in Wilmington—you remember, Kim Farrel from the State Department?"

A Chance Meeting.

"The funny little one with the freckles and the slanty eyebrows?"

"Yes—shot to pieces near Soissons. Well, Larry had come up from Meade to be an usher, too, and, after it was over the two of us ducked out and headed back for Washington in his roadster. Just outside of Baltimore we heard that the road was torn up, so we decided to stop at the hotel and pick up some information about detours. Larry went to the desk to find out, and I stepped out to the bar to get a drink. When I got back, he wasn't there, and I thought that he was probably telephoning Joel in Washington that we'd be late for dinner. I started off toward the telephone booths, there was a long string of them, and outside the last one I saw Sunny——" He put one hand over his eyes and said despairingly, "Lindy, I can see her now!"

"Kit, don't talk about it if it makes you so wretched—don't!"

"Lindy, she had on that little gray squirrel cap—the one that made her hair look like gold bubbles—and the big gray fur cape and a muff no bigger than my hands. She was standing there turned away a little with the muff up against her face, and I started over across to her. I was halfway there before she saw me, and when she did, she put out both hands as though she were trying to push me away, and—I saw her face."

The girl beside him whispered: "Kit, don't mind so much — don't mind so much. She never wanted any one to mind."

A RECENT graduate of the Coast Guard Radio School apparently was laboring under the assumption that his future was assured and proceeded to neglect his duty. He was promptly disrated and will not be given an opportunity to regain his rating as radioman, according to Coast Guard officials.

How a young clergyman grew tired of having his sweetheart ply her knitting needles and ignore his wooing and invented a knitting machine that she might give him her full attention, will be told tonight (WMAL, 7:15 o'clock) by Daniel Rheinauer, president of the National Knitted Outerwear Association.

The ethereal presence of Sir Oliver Lodge will be wafted to us from London tomorrow (WMAL, 11:30 a. m.).

After two more concerts of his "Tone Pictures" Domenico Savino will leave August 9 to visit his native city, Taranto, Italy, where his parents will celebrate their golden wedding.

THE R. C. A., Westinghouse, Graybar and General Electric have announced that they will introduce a new superheterodyne using four screen-grid tubes. The new circuit is said to be four times as sensitive as the former models and three times as selective.

Visions of becoming a musical conductor have attacked Finis Farr, writer of "Mystery House." It started when an orchestra director accidentally left his baton in Farr's office. After a few experimental passes with the wand, Farr decided that composing radio serials is nothing more than drudgery. Meanwhile, the director is looking for his baton.

Diligent attempts have been made to detect radio echoes from the moon. With our satellite 240,000 miles away, radio signals from earth should make the round trip in about three seconds. But so far there has been no authenticated case of such moon echoes.

SOME one asked Amos if Van Porter and the Kingfish would ever succeed in getting all of his money away from him.

"That's a question I can not answer," he answered, "because we haven't decided yet ourselves how it is to come out."

Two Sermons Planned By Woman Evangelist

Miss Amy Lee Stockton, evangelist, will hold two special services tomorrow at the Metropolitan Baptist Church, Sixth and A streets northeast, the morning topic being, "Will a Man Rob God?" At the evening service, "Things That Can Not Be Shaken."

From the crowd last Sunday it is expected that the church will be overfull this Sunday.

Good Health Salad.

1 package macaroni.
½ large onion (minced).
½ cup celery (chopped).
½ cup cucumber (chopped)
½ cup grated raw carrot.
½ green pepper (chopped).
Salt.
Mayonnaise.
Stuffed olives (sliced).
1 head lettuce.

Boil the macaroni for 9 minutes in 4 quarts rapidly boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain and chill.

Combine the macaroni with onion, celery, cucumber, carrot and green pepper, tossing together lightly with a fork. Season to taste and moisten with mayonnaise. Arrange the mixture on crisp lettuce leaves and garnish with the olives.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Only six more weeks of summer—time to start those beauty repairs! (says Dah-ray).

Paris, July 25.

HOW about a little embroidery or painting to do while away these few remaining summer weeks? There are SO-o-o-o many things that Clever Fingers can make, if she ever just learned how to do two things at once—absorbing sunshine and rest while her little ten fingers fly over the silks, for instance. Or plotting it all out while mixing her colors. Plotting what? Anything! That's the "least-of" what women do, and they should do MORE of it. Nothing so oils the wheels of mental progress as handwork, either.

And such a little practice not only makes the fingers perfect, but accustoms the eye, to watch for the unusual and attractive in designs that can so often be found in the most unexpected places.

Take, for instance, the flower part of the design illustrated for you today. That could be used to make a most individual and lovely luncheon or tea set, now couldn't it? Or it could be traced onto the gold papers of Chinatown, then painted, then shellacked, then cut out and pasted to a set of furniture.

Pretty soon it will be autumn, now and time to think of after-summer beauty repairs, as the little lady in the illustration is doing. Meanwhile, get your pretties made while you may, so you can enjoy their little touches of elegance in your home and in your life.

* * * *

Know something? I just knew you would want some new and really original ideas for finger work, so this week we made a leaflet with a new flower design in it, modernistic, and some expert hints about how it, or any other design for that matter, could be used. And then, just to be diff'rent, I strewed (is that the word) a lot of after-summer beauty repair hints in the same leaflet! All in all, it is a surprise, so better get that stamped, self-addressed envelope ready to send to the Dare Department of The Washington Post so you can get your leaflet mos' promptly the minute they come in from the printers.

In the afternoon dresses for the coming season, the bodice, or at least and more accurately, the waist is narrow enough to make hooks and buttons indispensible. Falling from this narrowish waist the longer skirt is really lovely, while the upper part of the bodice over the bust and the armholes are seldom tight. Often quite the reverse, indeed—the shoulders of the dress being markedly wider than the wearer's.

* * * *

Tiens! Of course there are prints for fall, but still the tiny patterned ones, those I like to call mosaic, especially when they are in many colors. The large, soft designs, of course, are only for summer, especially as they are usually to be seen on chiffon and taffeta.

* * * *

Renovating today? Yes this is closest day in the Dahray studio, you know. Not that we get at everything that is to be done every Saturday, but we are ruthless about it, dragging out everything, simply everything, in the way of dresses, shoes, gloves, lingerie, hats that need attention. Then there is an "unusbale" department as it were, where they all go, and where they all stay, too, until the French-maid-who-is-Spanish gets around to them. Pretty good idea, don't you think? That's the way to save nerves and worry, do you know, so that there are none of those last-minute grabs for things that fall off or something, in your hands.

* * * *

Tomorrow's the day again for you to look for the weekly Dare fashion letter. It'll be in The Sunday Washington Post.

The Goofus Hippo

I really can not make a fuss
Over this Hippopotamus.
For one thing, she is much too smug,
And I can't say I like her mug.
She's lacking, too, in sex appeal—
Understand, please, this is how I feel.
No doubt another Hippo 'd find
Much of interest in her kind!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

IF July 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you are from 6 a. m. to 8 a. m., 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

There will be many surprises sprung from a clear sky on this date—unexpected opportunities for advancement. There will be a tendency to neglect home and home duties in the quest of other things. Favors law problems.

The child born this date will have remarkable mental gifts, and is destined to lead an adventurous life. It may be inclined to abandon its better opportunities for hazardous enterprises. It never will be without many friends, and loyal ones.

You are a born fighter for justice in this world, and you never go after it without a sword in your hand. If they are coming to you, you will swallow bitter pills without a murmur, but you will not have them forced down your neck for nothing.

You want a square deal yourself, and you wish others to have it. Deception and hypocrisy infuriate you. You will meet any one half way, if they will only be honest and aboveboard with you. You will forgive a truth that hurts much quicker than a falsehood which has deceived you. You do not want anybody's friendship on false pretenses.

You have the firmness of character and fixity of purpose which the Leo natives have. You like power, but you would never use it meanly. You know how to handle the other people so as to get the best out of them, and to hold their respect. Your head and your heart rule you in conjunction with each other; so that, although you are shrewd and keen, you are not hard.

You are able to do some very clear thinking, and you do not act impulsively. You are independent, and can make your own way, without either the moral or material support of others. Luck is not usually with you when you listen to the advice of others, and it is for you to make your own decisions.

You have strong business intuitions, and you are fitted for the commercial world. You are interested in physical culture and mental hygiene.

Successful people born July 26:

George Clinton, Vice President of United States under Jefferson.

Theodore Strong, mathematician.

George Catlin, artist.

Edward M. House, personal representative of President Wilson.

G. B. Cortelyou, secretary to Roosevelt.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

Answers to Inquiries.

Please send me a rose catalogue.
MRS. EMMA S.

I am sorry, but we have no catalogues for distribution. Any seedsman or grower will be glad to send you one, however. Merely send them your name and address and ask them to send you their latest price list.

Four rhododendrons bought four years ago grow wonderfully as to size, but each year they disappoint me by having no blossoms. Please tell whether there is any hope of future blooms. MRS. J. G.

How about the soil about the roots of these shrubs? You know rhododendrons require an acid soil, free from lime. Loam, peat or leaf mold and sand in equal proportions make an ideal soil. Rhododendrons need plenty of water and shelter from the winter sun. The drainage must be perfect. Mulch throughout the whole year with decayed leaves. Break off seed vessels as soon as formed. Sometimes these shrubs are much infested with lace-fly. When you detect this insect, spray both sides of the foliage with a spray made of 5 pounds of fish oil soap, one-half pint nicotine extract and 10 gallons water. Use this spray in May, June and September. Given the above treatment your bushes should bloom.

Our front lawn is level, and its measurements are 38 feet long by 46 feet wide. I want to make a rock garden. Where shall I locate it? How large shall I make it? Do you know a good book on making a rock garden? D. V. P. B. C.

If you care to send me a rough sketch of your lawn, showing location of walks, trees and house, and will designate the northern boundary of your ground and inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to help you plan a rock garden. I will also write you the name of a reliable book on the subject of rock gardens.

I have a mountain ash that has never blossomed, though it seems exceedingly healthy. It is nine years old. I also have a bittersweet vine which has grown to the top of the house and never had any berries on it. Please tell me of a vine that will cover an unsightly wall located where there is little sun. What shall I do to coax my lilac into bloom? Please tell me the name of the tree of which I am inclosing a leaf. M. M.

If your mountain ash is healthy, it will no doubt bloom in time. Some bittersweet plants are very shy producers of berries. There is no way to increase the bearing qualities of a healthy vine. Ampelopsis veichii is one of the best vines for growing over a wall. It does very well in shade. Better root-prune your lilac, also keep it well watered. I think the leaf you inclosed is from a species of linden tree.

Peonies rarely bloom for three which are two years old and apparently healthy, do not bloom.
MRS. A. B.

Peonies rarely bloom for threee years after being transplanted. Keep them well watered this season and scatter enough bonemeal about their roots to whiten the soil. Apply this fertilizer three times during the season.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

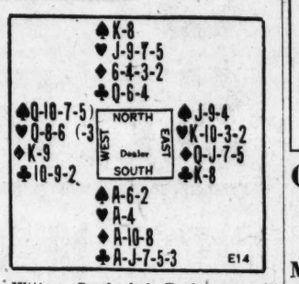
WORK'S BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the auction and contract bridge beginner.)

There is one point in connection with finessing which seems difficult for the bridge beginner to understand. He appreciates that when holding Ace-Queen in one hand and no honor in the other, his best chance for taking two tricks, in the suit to lead from the other hand toward Ace-Queen and play the Queen if second hand fail to play the King; and he knows how to make the same lead toward Ace-Queen-Jack and repeat the lead for the finesse.

Most beginners appreciate also that they should try the finesse to catch the King when holding Ace-Queen-Jack-Ten in the two hands. This combination may consist of Queen-Jack-Ten facing Ace, Jack-Ten facing Ace-Queen, Jack facing Ace-Queen-Ten, Queen-Jack facing Ace-Ten, or Queen-Ten facing Ace-Jack; but whatever the distribution, the opportunity for the finesse is there and advantage should be taken of it.

The case that bothers the beginner occurs when he holds the Queen in one hand and the Ace-Jack in the other (the Ten and King being held adversely). Take, for example, the following hand at No Trump with South the Declarer:



With a Spade led, Declarer would see that he is sure of taking two Spades, one Heart and one Diamond; to make game he needs five Club tricks. To obtain that number he must catch the adverse King without making the Ten a winner, which he can do only if East hold King and one and West the other three. The chances are against that distribution, but it should be played for as it offers the best chance for game.

North's Spade King should win the first trick and that hand should lead a small Club at trick 2. South should finesse the Jack if East play small and it will be noted that the result would be the winning of the needed five Club tricks. The mistake which many novices would make in this situation would be to lead North's Club Queen; then if East covered with the King (as naturally he would) South would have to play the Ace, and West would have the guarded Ten to win a Club trick.

One-Man Trolleys Planned for Line

Mount Vernon, Alexandria and Washington Firm Asks Change Permit.

One-man street cars are to be put in service by the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington trolley line, effective August 15, according to plans of the company disclosed in a letter to the Public Utilities Commission yesterday.

The letter contained a request for authorization to use one-man cars. The local commission, it is said, has not authority to forbid their use by the company, which is an interstate line. A similar petition is said to be pending before the Virginia commission.

No new cars will be bought by the line, it was said. The present equipment will be converted by means of varied safety guards and appliances for operation by a motorman-conductor.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

A TELEGRAM so long that at first I thought it must be from Flo Ziegfeld (prepaid, heaven be praised!) has arrived from Harry Hammond Beall, "Headline Ham," the perfect host, and, for the nonce, personal representative of Sid Grauman, the Hollywood impresario, to apprise this column that on or about August 15, Mr. Grauman, acting in the capacity of director of road-showing for Howard Hughes, the multimillionaire producer, will stagger Broadway by giving "Hell's Angels," a typical, double-barreled Hollywood premiere at two New York theaters simultaneously.

The two theaters chosen, and under contract, for these duplex didoes are the Criterion and the Gaiety. Each, according to Mr. Beall, will carry the largest electrical displays ever used for any production. It is expected that the novelty of the dual premiere on Broadway will serve to impress the importance of Mr. Hughes' $4,000,000 air spectacle, over three years in the making, not only upon New York City, but upon that portion of the outside world not already aware of the exceptional size and quality of this classic of the clouds from its sensational "permeer" and subsequent run at Grauman's Chinese Theater, in Hollywood, where it is now in its ninth week.

Both Mr. Hughes, a nephew of Rupert Hughes, by the way, and Mr. Grauman, are expected to arrive in New York next week, confident that they are bringing East so extraordinary a screen entertainment that no one theater could possibly accommodate all of the people who are anxious to see it.

It is my understanding that Washington is included in the list of cities in which "Hell's Angels" is later to be exhibited on a roadshow basis. I hope "Ham" comes with it!

In contracting for a week of personal appearances at the Earle, Eddie Cantor is following out the plan enunciated at the time of the announcement of his retirement—at least for the time being—from the stage. The stage to Eddie Cantor means participation in long-run productions that tie up one's time from opening night through long months of monotonous sameness.

It was Cantor's contention that what he craved was a little more freedom of action. Having worked long and arduously, and pyramided his savings into millions, it was the comedian's view that he was entitled to do a little more as he pleased. This, as he outlined it at the time, might include a few pictures, a bit of travel now and then, some writing and perhaps, when the spirit moved, a flier in vaudeville or maybe a week of personal appearances somewhere.

Washington is fortunate in being among the first of the "somewheres."

If you are one who likes to paste such things in his hat, the complete list of current screen attractions is, according to last report, as follows: Metropolitan, Ann Harding, Mary Astor and Robert Ames in "Holiday;" Columbia, Ronald Colman and Kay Francis in "Raffles;" Fox, Frank Albertson, Sharon Lynn and H. B. Warner in "Wild Company;" RKO-Keith's, Edward Everett Horton and Lois Wilson in "Once a Gentleman;" Palace, Jack Okie and Ginger Rogers in "The Sap from Syracuse;" Earle, Joe E. Brown and Laura Lee in "Top Speed."

Following its genial custom of naming weeks after the various members of the family, the Warner organization in Washington, beginning Monday, will observe "Children's Week." All the juvenile fans who performed a few simple ceremonies during the seven-day period just closed will have free doings in all the Warner houses in town during the one to come. As they say over the radio, "Happy Days Are Here Again!"

There is a new idea—to me, at least—in trailers being employed at the Metropolitan to announce the coming attraction, "Three Faces East," and I am heartily for it.

It consists simply of a voice emanating from a curtained screen without picture or type to illustrate what is being said or to indicate by whom—just a straightforward statement of what the speaker thinks your reactions will be to the incoming attraction with a few succinct reasons for his beliefs. It is all clearly audible, but none of it visible.

It seems to me this is a fine arrangement—even if it is being used only because the other trailer didn't arrive in time, or something. It is inescapable for any one who is not deaf, whether the back is turned or not.

And if you stop to think of it, you and I are getting awfully tired of those twisting, squirming, wriggling nerve-cracking backgrounds that all the producers heretofore have seemed to deem indispensable to their screen trailers. Most of them have been like trying to read a firecracker!

Having apparently relegated myself to a position of solitary isolation by declaring the belief that Robert Montgomery did the best acting in "The Big House," it is comforting to note that Photoplay Magazine, in picking the six best pictures of the month adds, "And these players according to the same critics, provide the best individual performances to be seen in the current releases: Greta Garbo and Lewis Stone in 'Romance,' Robert Montgomery and Chester Morris in 'The Big House,' &c."

Personally, I prefer the old-fashioned summer when 99 was considered hot!

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

CRISP COOKIES (100 COOKIES).

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

¼ cup milk or less.
4 cups sifted soft wheat flour.
1 cup fat.
2 eggs.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
2 cups sugar.
½ teaspoon salt.
3 teaspoons flavoring.

Combine the ingredients in the same way as for butter cakes, roll the dough thin, handling it no more than necessary, cut it in any desired shapes and bake the cookies on a greased baking sheet in a fairly hot oven (about 375 to 400 degrees F.). Instead of rolling out the dough it may be chilled and sliced thinly. Whether rolled or sliced, chilling the dough makes it easier to handle.

People's Counsel Freed On Traffic Accusation

Richmond B. Keech, People's Counsel of the District of Columbia, was among the defendants whose names appeared on the collateral list at Police Court yesterday. Mr. Keech was among eight motorists who were arrested Thursday night by Policeman F. S. Marshall, of the Fourteenth Precinct, and put to the inconvenience of posting $5 collateral at the precinct stationhouse on charges of making unnecessary noise by blowing an automobile horn.

Mr. Keech and three of the eight persons escaped without prosecution, Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward M. Welliver holding that the quartet had not flagrantly violated the law. Three others were permitted to pay $1 fines, while the eighth man forfeited his collateral without showing up in court.

TILDEN CONQUERS BOROTRA, GAINS EVEN BREAK FOR U. S.

Westbrook Pegler Says

SAMMY MANDELL, who lost the lightweight championship of the world to Al Singer last week, has been thinking over the strange events of that Thursday evening in the Yankee Stadium and he now entertains the suspicion that he was doped. After ten years of association, he has just about decided to break off professional and social relations with his manager, Eddie Kane, in the belief that Mr. Kane neglected his interests.

However, it should be observed in this connection that he was on the point of divorcing Mr. Kane some time before the fight, and I say he has just about decided to part from him now, realizing that prize fighters are greedy and inconsistent. He may decide overnight to reaccept Mr. Kane as his manager in any future prize fights which he may engage in and also as his friend and counsellor just as he did a few weeks before the fight with Singer.

Still, the prize fight was conducted under very suspicious circumstances and without any definite opinion as to whether Mandell was doped I presume it will do no injustice to relate certain matters.

Gamblers Call It "Overlay."

The betting odds on the fight, laid by the professional gamblers on Broadway and accepted by other gamblers elsewhere about the country as a gauge on the probabilities were 2 to 1 and, on the night of the fight, 3 to 1. Two to one is a long price against any creditable champion and 3 to 1 was a scandalous price against a champion as skillful and ringwise as Sammy Mandell. In fact, 3 to 1 was what the gambling profession called an "overlay," and the character of those who offered this price naturally figured in the suspicions at the ringside.

I had visited Mandell at his training camp at Gus Wilson's boarding house several days before the fight and had found him boxing in heavy overall trunks indoors on a very hot day. He was sallow and not very energetic. After the workout he lay in his dressing room, a small compartment in the gymnasium building, wrapped in two blankets. He said he was having no trouble taking off weight and that this was an old custom of his, steaming in blankets after his exercise. Mr. Kane was quick to say that the matter of reducing to 135 pounds at 2 o'clock on the day of the bout was no problem to Sammy as he was close to the weight, anyway. However, he did not say how much Mandell did weigh just then.

Dressing Room Very Solemn.

On the night of the fight, about 30 minutes before Mandell entered the ring, I went to his dressing room to ask him if it were true that he had been compelled to do a mile of road work on the cinder track of the Yankee Stadium that morning, as reported along the press row, in order to take off the last few ounces. The atmosphere of the dressing room was strangely solemn. There were policemen in uniform at the door and, within the room, lying on a rubbing table, wrapped in his black silk bathrobe, with his red gloves laced on his hands and folded across his chest, and with his eyes shut, was Mandell. Beside him, grave and with his comical cock-eye gazing off at an odd angle in gloomy and hostile contemplation of the nondescripts busying themselves on the affairs of other fighters on the program, sat Teddy Bodkin.

Mr. Bodkin is a fat, bald, elderly man, who does something in the meat business in Chicago and Rockford, Ill., and he is a nonprofessional in the prize-fight industry. He knew Sammy when Sam was a novice and, like old Bill McCabe, who attached himself to Gene Tunney in the A. E. F. and glorified in Tunney's success, old Mr. Bodkin has been attached to Sammy as an unofficial and supernumerary manager throughout his career.

Weight Was Easy Says Friend.

Mr. Bodkin sat there, his nude skull dewy with moisture, mumbling with a cigar in his mouth. He beckoned for silence, and from this I took it that Sammy was asleep, so I stooped and whispered, "What about the weight?"

"The weight was easy," said he. "I saved that bourbon for you until we broke camp yesterday morning. So I had to drink it myself. It was elegant bourbon. No kidding."

"I couldn't get up there again, but thanks," said I. "Did Sammy have to run a mile on the track to make the weight this morning?"

"No," he said. "He made it easy, I tell you. He's O. K. He's fine. He just took a little walk like he always does in the morning."

At this point Sammy opened his eyes and mumbled something unintelligible, but his mouth was clut-

ace. Then he ran out the set at 7—5 and was never seriously endangered again.

From that moment on Bill was hitting harder, placing more accurately and getting in to the net to worry the Basque with cross volleys that couldn't be touched. Bill was on the offensive and Borotra no longer could profit from errors. The Basque had the fight of his life on his hands.

Borotra gained a brief lead in the third set with the score 4—3 in his favor. The seventh game was all Borotra's as he started with a service ace, drove to forty love, then smashed another ace across to win. Tilden, who wasn't ready, disputed the point, but Umpire Redelsperber held that Bill had signaled for delay too late.

Boos and Whistles From Crowd.

The crowd, intensely partisan, booed and whistled. Bill, as he walked around the net, seemed upset and almost out of control. The nervousness didn't last long, though. He evened the score at four-all with two service aces after deuce and ran out the remainder of the set in short order.

Tired out but game, Borotra fought hard in the last set. With the count 4—0 and 5—1 against him he squared it at five-all. Tilden broke through on the eleventh game, however, and finished his job in the twelfth with a mighty ace.

The crowd, eagerly partisan as it was, gave Big Bill the cheer of his life as he walked off the court. It cheered just as heartily when George Lott came on to face Cochet, but the second match of the day was only a pale shadow of the battle that went before it.

Cochet Dominates Play From Start.

Except for occasional lapses Cochet dominated the play from beginning to end. It was a case of the Cochet of today meeting the more youthful and inexperienced Cochet of a few years ago, for the similarity in style of the opponents was instantly apparent. Both drove cautiously from the baseline and both scurried to the net at the least sign of an opening. Both tried for drops and crosses that seemed out of reach.

Lott simply failed in stroke control. He drove out of the court time and time again while Cochet in critical moments had a killing smash and certain placements lurking in his racquet. Except for one period in the first set Lott never was in the lead.

The French, with honors easy for the first day, apparently took a serious view of the doubles tomorrow and after the matches it was announced that Cochet would team with Jacques Brugnon to meet Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn. The doubles play begins at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Schmeling Is Rescued When Boat Capsizes

Berlin, July 25 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, today was rescued from Scharmuetzel Lake, southeast of Berlin when his motor boat capsized during a storm.

The champion was speeding his boat when it upset in rough water. Another motor racer coming along behind hauled Max out and he appeared none the worse for his spill.

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—Two suits in which warrants of attachment had been obtained against Max Schmeling, German heavyweight boxer, and his German manager, were discontinued in Supreme Court today.

One was brought against the fighter by Arthur Bulow, his German manager, for an alleged debt of $60,000, the other was brought against Bulow by Harry Hechheimer, attorney, for $10,000 for professional services. It was indicated that both suits had been settled out of court.

Goslin's Hitting Keeps Browns Out of Cellar

St. Louis, July 25 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Browns r anaged to defeat the Boston Red Sox this afternoon, 6 to 3, and remain out of the American League cellar. If Boston would have won the teams would have exchanged places.

Goose Goslin was largely responsible for keeping the Browns in seventh place, hitting his eighteenth home run of the season, a double and single in four times at bat, besides driving in four runs.

St. Louis got to Lisenbee early in the game, driving him from the mound at the end of the second. Durham, who succeeded, hurled superbly, not allowing a counter during the remainder of the game. Blaeholder pitched creditably for the Browns.

Robins Cluster Hits In Winning Over Reds

Brooklyn, July 25 (A.P.).—Timely hitting in the early innings enabled the Robins to beat Red Lucas and the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 2, in the third game of their series today. Brooklyn made ten hits off Lucas and nine of them were bunched in second, third and fourth innings for all seven runs.

Ray Moss started for the Robins, but his wildness kept him in trouble and Fred Heimach, former American League southpaw, hurled the last two innings.

Terry's Homer Brings Giants 3-to-1 Victory

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—For the second day in succession, a home run gave the Giants a victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates as New York triumphed by a 3 to 1 score today. Up to the eighth inning, Bill Terry's homer in the second gave the Giants their only margin in a mound duel between Left-hander Clarence Mitchell and Larry French.

An error by Grantham let a third Giant tally cross the plate in the eighth with Glenn Spencer as the victim. French was removed for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

FRENCH DAVIS CUP DEFENDERS

Victorious in one of the first two singles matches, France's Davis cup team enters the doubles today with Cochet and Brugnon pairing against Van Ryn and Allison. Cochet yesterday defeated Lott but Borotra was a victim of Bill Tilden.

PRO, 50, STILL LEADING IN CANADA

Thompson's 137 Tops Manero by Stroke in Open Tourney.

ANCASTER, Ontario, July 25 (A. P.).—Leading professionals from the United States unleashed one attack after another today but could not dislodge Nicol Thompson, jr., veteran Canadian pro from the lead in the Canadian open golf championship.

Tonight with half the 72 holes behind him, Thompson, approaching the 50-year mark, led the field by one stroke, with a dozen stars from below the border just behind him. The Canadian, with the advantage of playing over his own course, the links of the Hamilton Country Club, shot a consistent round of 71 today, which with his 66 in the first round gave him a 36-hole total of 137 and the lead by one stroke over Tony Manero, of Elmsford, N. Y., who shot his second 69 in as many days for a total of 138.

Farrell and Hagen Tied for Third.

Tied for third place at 139 were two more standbys from the United States, Johnny Farrell, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Walter Hagen. Farrell produced the most amazing display of golf of the day with a 66, four under par, covering the first nine holes in 31 strokes. Hagen, who took a 70 yesterday, clipped one stroke off that figure today for his total of 139.

Back of this pair were Al Watrous, of Detroit, and Emmet French, of Southern Pines, N. C., with 140. Watrous added a 72 today to his 68 of yesterday, while French reversed that procedure. Four more stars from the United States checked in at the halfway mark with 141. These included George Von Elm, of Detroit, who set the pace for the amateurs; Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente; Mac Donald Smith, of New York, and Charles Lacey, of Philadelphia.

Horton Smith Disappoints.

The biggest disappointments of the day were Horton Smith, pro at the Cragston, N. Y., Club, and Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del. Dudley, who was up among the leaders with a 69 yesterday, needed 75 today for a 36-hole total of 144. Horton Smith added a mediocre 73 over the Hamilton Club's easy course to his 72 of yesterday for a total of 145.

The final 36 holes will be played tomorrow with all players within 20 strokes of the leader eligible to compete in the last half of the championship.

MACKS MAKE 2 TRIPLE STEALS

2 Homers Also Aid in Champions' Victory Over Tribe, 14-1.

CLEVELAND, July 25 (A.P.).—Lusty swatting, including three home runs, coupled with ten bases on balls and two triple steals, won for the Athletics here today the second game of the series with the Indians. The score was 14 to 1.

Three Cleveland pitchers were unable to stem the tide of Athletic sluggers, but Jablonowski was credited with the defeat. Grove was effective throughout.

The first triple steal came in the first inning with Simmons, Miller and Williams participating in the theft, and Simmons scoring. The second triple steal came in the fourth with Cochrane, Simmons and Foxx on the bases, Cochrane reaching home. Bishop, Miller and Simmons each knocked out home runs. Miller led the batting attack with four hits.

CROWDER AND HADLEY UNABLE TO MAINTAIN LEAD AS CHICAGO RALLIES IN NINTH FOR 6-5 WIN

In the Wake of the Game

Special to The Washington Post.

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, Ill., July 25.—Sam Rice opened the game by driving the first ball pitched to left center to give Red Barnes a chance to turn in a pretty running catch.

Heinie Manush reminded the Nats of how badly his punch has been missed during his long lay-off by singling cleanly over Thomas' head to score Judge in the first inning. . .

Jack Hayes, who replaced Myer at second today because the latter has not been performing well as a double-play man, was on the pivot end of one in the very first inning. This prevented the Sox from gaining anything on Watwood's opening single.

Pitcher Alphonse Thomas played a more or less stationary game in the box in the second canto. His failure to cover first gave Hayes credit for a single, while he followed with an inexcusibly poor and effortless peg on Spencer's tap. Then, when Rice fouled to Ryan, with Hayes on third at the time, the pitcher never left his box, with Watwood suddenly dashing from first to cover the plate. Manager Bush must have made a few caustic remarks at the end of the round, for "Tommy" was on the job thereafter.

Rice made a nice one-hand catch of Ryan's liner opening the home third, robbing the rookie third sacker of at least a double.

These Alabama boys certainly stick together. After breaking in the game today for the first time in quite a spell, Hayes singled to center in the fourth. Barnes, also from Alabama, let the ball get past him, Hayes pulling up at third.

Hayes went over back of second to rob Jolley of a hit ending the fourth. "Sonny Boy" had no chance to make the out at first, but wheeled and made a force out at second with an underhanded toss.

Manush gave his injured leg a good test when he doubled to left in the fifth session.

Crowder had Barnes in a hole opening the home fifth but then gave him a slow ball, which the red head proceeded to line to left for a double.

Cronin made a nice stop and peg on Mulleavy's hot bounder near the middle sack in the sixth.

West went back almost to the flagpole to drag down Jolley's long looper ending round 6.

After Manush had cracked out his third hit in the seventh, Dave Harris replaced Heinie on first and then continued in left. Johnson plans to relieve the big fly chaser late in games until he has gradually completely recovered from his leg injury.

Catcher Buck Crouse pinch hit for Ryan in the seventh, but could do no better than to pop to Hayes. Later in the round "Chubby" Fothergill

Nats Send Loepp to Bears, Retaining Powell for Duty

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, Ill., July 25.—By sending Outfielder George Loepp to the Newark Bears today, the Nationals completed payment for the deal which gave them Pitcher Carl Fischer, President Clark Griffith stated tonight. The rookie left-handed flinger was purchased at a price equivalent to $25,000, with Pitcher Myles Thomas and Loepp sent along in the deal rated at the major league waiver price of $7,500 each, thus making only $10,000 in cash involved.

Loepp's departure leaves the Nationals with but one additional outfielder, but Manager Walter Johnson is counting on Alvin (Jake) Powell, former Takoma Park sandlotter, to rejoin the team when it returns to Washington and he will be carried along until a better immediate prospect is obtained.

The fact that Powell led the Eastern League in batting has boosted his stock fully 50 per cent, but it is still the Nats' plan to option him out again where he can work steadily and gain more experience as soon as they can pick up another man to help out in the fly chasing department. But until this player is obtained, Powell will be kept on the Washington bench.

Loepp Stood Team in Good Stead.

While Loepp did not help the Nationals much on this recent trip, although it must be admitted that he had comparatively few opportunities in view of the fact that Dave Harris usually got the call, there is no question but what the former Oriole did good work for the Nationals, especially in the first half of the season when he alternated with Sammy West, drawing the starting assignment against opposing southpaw hurling.

West has been, and still is, almost helpless against left handed pitching and the use of Loepp as an alternate gave the Nats a better than .400 hitting center fielder during all of the time when they were doing their most consistent winning. During this period, in addition to fielding well, Loepp got his share of the hits and proved to be a mighty good man for Johnson, for West at the same time was traveling at a fast clip while facing only right handers.

Bought From Orioles For $30,000.

Loepp hardly has the power and slugging ability expected of a major league outfielder, for this department is expected to furnish the biggest part of a team's punch, but he probably will have no trouble in making the grade in Newark. Loepp was purchased from the Baltimore Orioles for delivery last spring at a price said to be $30,000, half of this in cash, Infielder Stuffy Stewart and Pitcher Jim Weaver also being sent to Baltimore.

Loepp left here for Washington this afternoon, where he plans to join his wife and baby tomorrow and to continue on to Newark.

"Sad Sam" Jones is due to draw the Washington pitching assignment in the third game of the current series tomorrow, with Southpaw Cecil

Substitute Shines As Cubs Down Phillies

Philadelphia, July 25 (A.P.).—The Cubs won the second game of the series here today by defeating the Phillies, 9 to 5. D. Taylor, playing in place of Stephenson, led the attack by four solid hits, one of them a triple.

Chicago scored two lucky runs in the second inning when Sigman misjudged Pitcher Nelson's fly in the sun. It went for a triple, scoring two. Nelson was affected by the blazing sun in the sixth and was relieved by Moss, who held the Phillies hitless while he was on the mound.

FIELD OF 17 IN $45,000 ARLINGTON HANDICAP TODAY

Stake to See Sun Beau as Favorite

12 Starters Regarded Certain in Mile and Quarter Test.

Curate Also Is Highly Regarded; Two Fast Fillies in Field.

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY.

ARLINGTON PARK, Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—A field of seventeen outstanding handicap horses, but with no great stars among them, were named tonight for the $45,000 Arlington handicap at a mile and a quarter tomorrow.

It will be the second richest stake of the Arlington meeting and if all seventeen go to the post, the gross value will be $48,450.

Twelve of the seventeen are regarded as certain starters and there may be as many as fifteen. The seventeen listed in the entries: Stars and Bars, Jean Valjean, Pigeon Hole, Sun Beau, High Foot, My Dandy, Sandy ord, Lady Broadcast, Paul Bunyan, Toro Plucky Play, Curate, Brown Wisdom, William T. Hot Toddy, The Nut and Easter Stockings.

Great Money Winners Missing.

Missing from the competition will be Gallant Fox, Gallant Knight, Blue Larkspur, Misstep, and Victorian, some of the biggest money winners of all time. Misstep and Victorian are ailing with bad legs. Toro is regarded as a doubtful starter due to lameness.

Although the field may not be the most brilliant of the year, it is one of the bigegst to start in any valuable handicap this season. The five year old Sun Beau, owned by Willis Sharpe Kilmer, Binghamton, N. Y., ruled the favorite, while the four year old Curate, the entry of Joseph E. Widener, of New York, also is strongly regarded.

If Sam Beau is victorious, he will enter the list of the ten greatest money winners of all time. The easterner will carry top weight of 125 pounds, but he is used to that and a mile and a quarter is regarded as his best distance.

Two Fast Fillies Entered.

Except for the presence of Sun Beau, the vent might be called a wide open race. Two fast fillies, Easter Stockings and Lady Broadcast, will have supporters because of their weight allowances, Lady Broadcast, regarded as best of her age and sex last year, with the exception of Rose of Sharon, ran a sensational mile in her last race, can travel a mile and a quarter and gets in the stake carrying only 102 pounds.

In addition to the handicap stake, there will be a $5,000 steeple chase tomorrow, attracting the best field of jumping horses in the country. Jolly Roger, greatest money winner of all among American steeplechasers, with $130,000, to his credit, and Air Light, appear to be the favorites. Both have won the Grant National steeplechase events at Belmont Park.

$50,000 Bar Asked Of Arnold, Race Driver

Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—William Arnold, Indianapolis and Altoona auto race winner, was made defendant in a $50,000 breach of promise suit, the praecipe of which was filed today in superior court by attorneys for Miss Theresa Kinnish, 24, employe of a cabaret.

KANN'S IN ALEXANDRIA.

The S. Kann's Ball Team will go to Alexandria tomorrow to play the Potterfield Store Nine on the High School Diamond at 11 a. m. All Kann's players are to meet in front of the store at 9:30.

GAME AT ST. ELIZABETHS.

The St. Elizabeths Hospital Ball Team will entertain the Georgetown Tobacco Co. Nine at 4:15 this afternoon on the Hospital Diamond.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MADAM QUEEN, $32.96, $12.74, $8.38; LOMA LINDA, $11.10, Not quit. CASANOVA, $8.92.

MADAM QUEEN, outpaced to stretch, closed with a fast rush through final furlong, wore down leaders, caught and nosed out LOMA LINDA in final strides. LOMA LINDA was in close quarters on inside and, closing with best speed, overhauled CASANOVA in stretch, but failed to withstand the winner. CASANOVA set the pace under strong urging and gradually drew out in the stretch, but faltered in final drive. DECORUS saved ground and had no excuses and tired badly in late stages. VERY WELL had a flash of early speed. ROSEVOLT raced poorly. UNUSUAL forced pace first five furlongs, but quit when urged in final furlongs. Others were outrun.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good for all but Morjoy. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 2:48. Off at 2:51½. Winner, H. P. Headley's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—UPRIGHT, $24.96, $12.10, $7.78; DON ALVARO, $12.74, $7.74; BIRTHDAY GIFT, $3.84.

PITTSBURGHER, outpaced to the stretch turn, came with a big rush through the stretch to win driving, easily disposing of BIRTHDAY GIFT in the last jump in the sixteenth pole, forcad Smith to take the latter up to prevent falling, overhauled UPRIGHT and was going away at the end. He was disqualified for the interference to BIRTHDAY GIFT and for hurting the leaders in general near the end. UPRIGHT was always close and in pursuit of the pacemaker and held on well. DON ALVARO had not early speed, but tired. BIRTHDAY GIFT was outrun to the stretch, then closed fast on the inside and was gaining strongly, but suffered much interference from PITTSBURGHER. DORIS JEAN showed good effort. AUNT DEB quit after half a mile.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,800. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:33. Off at 4:41½. Winner, Audley Farm's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NELLIE CUSTIS, $9.18, $5.16, $4.30; VALENCIENNES, $5.84, $5.66; MOLASSES JANE, $9.02.

NELLIE CUSTIS always had much the most speed, retained a long lead to the stretch, where she tired rapidly in the final sixteenth, but outlasted VALENCIENNES. Latter improved her position gradually, gaining on the leaders fast throughout the final quarter and was rapidly overhauling the winner at the end. MOLASSES JANE, a forward factor to the stretch, could never reach winner and tired when VALENCIENNES challenged. CROSSCO was saved ground and had no mishaps. SNOWFLAKE seemed badly outrun throughout, showed scant speed and raced in dull form.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:12. Off at 5:13. Winner, Allerhany Stable's b. g. (3), by Campfire—Sudoo. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GREY GULL, $8.06, $4.60, $3.20; EASTER BOY, $5.18, $3.70; RUTH MAYES, $8.30.

GREY GULL, never far off pace, came fast around final turn, gradually wore down EASTER BOY and, getting to front at last furlong, drew away to win as rider pleased. EASTER BOY had early speed, opened lead to stretch, but tired badly in last furlong and was no match for the winner. RUTH MAYES, close up, got through on inside, closed a little ground in stretch and finished gamely. FORT DEARBORN was badly outrun. UNUSUAL had early speed, done so after first six furlongs. WILLING ran under pressure. FLYING EXPRESS raced poorly.

MITCHELL AND MARKEY REACH TENNIS SEMIFINALS

Shore Beaten In Municipal Tourney

Bows, 7-5, 6-2, to Mitchell; Markey Ousts Latona.

Team of Omwake and Kingsbury Capture Women's Title.

DOOLY MITCHELL, of Georgetown University seeded No. 2, and Bud Markey, from Notre Dame seeded No. 6, will meet in the semifinal round of the District of Columbia public parks tennis tourney on the Sixteenth Street Reservoir Courts today at 2:30 p. m. as a result of victories gained yesterday in their respective quarterfinal matches on the Monument Lot courts.

In one of the shortest matches on record, Markey disposed of Anthony Latona, Western High School ace, in straight sets, 6—0, 6—0. No more than twenty minutes was taken by the young collegiate in setting back his rival without the loss of a game. Only at rare intervals, moreover, did Latona even approach his opponent in game scores, so outclassed was he by the Notre Dame wizard.

After being extended to win the first set, 7—5, Mitchell turned back Frank Shore, jr., District junior champion by a 6—2 score in the second set to work his way to the semifinals.

Should Markey defeat Mitchell in the semifinal round, he will experience the thrill of participating in two finals matches, as yesterday he and his partner, Edgar Yeomans, advanced to within one step of the doubles title by eliminating Pat Deck and Dick Seidell, 6—4, 6—3.

INSERT NET—

Doubles Title at Stake This Afternoon.

They will play for the doubles title at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Opposed to them, however, will be a pair of determined doubles players who showed by their perfromance yesterday that they scarcely know the meaning of the word "defeat." Maurice O'Neill and George Shoemaker, the other doubles finalists, attained their position by twice displaying a come-back ability rarely seen and even more rarely expected in even the wildest fairy tales.

After having lost the first set 7—9 to those Army players, Lieuts. Hedekin and Robinson, the O'Neill-Shoemaker combination found itself in the second set on the short end of a 5—1 score and 15—40 against them in the seventh game with O'Neill serving. By some stroke of fortune, O'Neill pulled this game out of the fire and then won the next two games with his partner.

But still on the short end of the score with the count standing 5—4, O'Neill was faced once more with the task of keeping his foes from annexing set point with the score again 15—40, but once again the ultimate winners came through to take the game. With the score tied at 5-all in games, the Army pair dropped the next two games in a row to have the set deadlocked.

O'Neill and Shoemaker then went on to win the next set by a 6—4 score.

Three Sets Decide Women's Title.

One championship was decided yesterday, when the Misses Dorothy Kingsbury and Louise Omwake clinched the women's doubles title by defeating Misses Corinne Frazier and Peggy Keyser in a torrid three-set match, 1—6, 7—5, 6—3. By virtue of the victory, the winning pair will represent this city in the women's national doubles tournament to be held here in September.

After the first set, when the Frazier-Keyser duo ran roughshod over their opponents, the battling was nip and tuck, with neither team taking any unnecessary chances and both resorting to merely lobbing the ball on the other side of the net. The individual work of Miss Keyser and Miss Kingsbury for the respective teams, was above the average, both girls constantly placing well-aimed shots and scarcely making an error on their returns.

"BIG BILL" SCORES FOR U. S.

WILLIAM T. TILDEN 2D, whose victory over Jean Borotra gave America an even break with France in the first two Davis Cup singles matches yesterday.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

came up for Thomas. He duplicated his effort of yesterday, singling to right. This blow scored two runs and cut the Nats' leading margin in half.

Harris made a nice running catch to end the Sox seventh, racing back almost to the wall to turn just in time to take Watwood's drive.

Had Hayes been just a little fleeter he would have made his fourth successive hit in the eighth, for Mulleavy took his slow bounder back of third and made the out at first by a matter of inches.

Hadley walked Reynolds with Mulleavy on and none out starting the eighth, after having replaced Crowder, this being the first pass issued to any of the Sox until that time. It put the tying run on the sacks and then came Jolley's roller, which hopped over Hayes' head and which, coupled with West's error on it, knotted the string at 5-all.

Coach Al Schacht tried to be funny with Ump Bull Guthrie in the Nats' ninth and the arbiter chased him to the showers. The comedian tried to "kid" the guesser because he did not see Umpire Hildebrand call time out after Judge had walked opening the round and left the sack to get a drink of water. The last laugh was on Schacht, though.

Although Judge opened the ninth by coaxing a walk and one run probably would win the game, no effort was made to sacrifice. Harris lofted to right and Cronin hit into a double play, which would not have been possible had Judge not stopped for some unknown reason just before reaching the sack.

Hayes threw his glove at Reynolds' drive which broke up the game. At the time it did not look as though Mulleavy would score on the clout. Had the glove hit the ball, it would have made the drive a triple, according to scoring rules. The "Alabama wild man" probably knows better by now than to repeat this trick.

Sherdel Stops Cards As Braves Win, 5 to 4

Boston, July 25 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals doffed their hats to their old teammate, Wee Willie Sherdel, here today as Sherdel led the Braves in a 5-to-4 triumph over the Cards.

The Braves won in the ninth after Rhem had filled the bases with Richbourg's double, his own muff of Maranville's bunt and a pass to Sisler. Berger's infield out scored Richbourg.

Ray Blades accounted for all of the Cards' runs. His single in the fourth scored Gelbert, who had tripled, and he got a homer into the left-field stands in the seventh with two on.

WHITE SOX TRIUMPH OVER NATS IN NINTH

scored their first run. This was the result of Barnes' opening double and Cissell's single, the "General" then settled down suddenly and preventing further damage.

Meanwhile, the Nationals had been pecking away at Thomas' slants and had registered three times in the first four innings, while seeing a double by Manush and a single by Cronin going to waste in the fifth.

Washington broke the ice in the very first frame, Judge doubling with one gone and counting on Manush's liner single which followed. It looked as though the Nats were likely to have a big inning in the second when Bluege tripled as a starter and scored when Hayes was safe on a scratch one-baser to Watwood, Spencer was safe on Thomas' error, a poor peg trying for a force-out at second, and Crowder then suicided both runners along. The Sox pulled out of this hole, however, Rice fouling to Ryan and Judge lofting to Reynolds.

Barnes' Error Paves Way for Run.

A two-base error by Barnes on Hayes' single gave the Nats their third run. This occurred in the fourth with one down, with Spencer immediately lashing out a sacrifice fly so deep that no attempt was even made to prevent Jack from scoring after the catch.

The Johnsons used their seventh session for the manufacture of two more runs. A walk to Judge, followed by singles by Manush and Cronin, netted one, while Harris, who replaced Manush on the sacks, brought in the other tally after Cissell turned in a nice catch of West's pop foul, but ended up in no position to peg accurately to the plate.

In the home half, the Chisox got these two runs back, Pinch-hitter Bob Fothergill singling Cissell and Tate home with two out after this pair had gotton on the paths as a result of one basers.

Crowder Complains Of Heat, Quits.

As Crowder was complaining of the heat, Myer hit for him in the eighth and this brought Hadley to the hill against the Natives in their half of the round. Mulleavy immediately singled and Reynolds walked. At this stage, the Nats suffered a costly break when Jolley's bounder, headed directly at Hayes and a possible double-play ball, suddenly hopped over the second baseman's head. One scored on this and the other registered, knotting the count, when West did not handle the ball cleanly. Although McKain later singled, Hadley managed to prevent further scoring during the session.

After an opening walk to Judge had helped none in the ninth, the Sox came in and won the ball game.

LOEPP IS RELEASED TO NEWARK BEARS

Patrick Caraway probably opposing him on the hill. As the White Sox have a two game edge on the series, the Nats must win tomorrow if they hope to get an even break.

Southpaw Pitcher May Be Bought.

The Nationals might have purchased a left-handed pitcher today but President Clark Griffith does not know for sure. Early this evening he received a wire from the manager of the Joplin (Missouri) Club stating that the Washington club's offer for "Lefty" Griffith, as made by Scout Joe Engel, was accepted. As the Nat "ivory hunter" is not supposed to be in that section, the Nat president has no details and is even wondering whether the Joplin pilot is "crazy with the heat." To play safe, however, he replied by wire that he would back up any deal made by Scout Engel.

The Texas gentleman by the name of Verner, wearing a two gallon sombrero, came to the Nats' locker-room before the game today and invited Manager Walter Johnson and the members of the Lone Star State to visit his quaint little 108,000 acre ranch at Uvalde, Tex., on December 1, for some deer hunting. The bid was immediately accepted by Shires, West and Marberry, with Brown stating that he probably would be on hand.

Cops Rally in Tenth To Dow nWar College

Hiser's home run in the tenth inning started the District Police Baseball Team on its way to three runs in the overtime frame and enabled that nine to score an 8-5 victory over the Army War College Team yesterday at Washington Barracks. Speiss followed Hiser's homer with a triple and before the side could be retired, two more runs had scored.

The Policemen had a 5-2 lead in the eighth inning but a three-run rally on the part of the soldiers sent the game into extra innings. Burton, who relieved Cox on the mound for the Police received credit for the victory.

Hall and Mercur Bow In Canadian Tourney

Toronto, Ont., July 25 (A.P.).—J. Gilbert Hall, of East Orange, N. J., and Fritz Mercur, of Bethlehem, Pa., sole remaining players from the United States, were eliminated in the semifinals of men's singles in the Canadian lawn tennis championships today.

Hall fell before the giant Irish internationalist, G. Lyttleton Rogers, of Dublin, 6—2, 0—6, 9—7, 6—2, and Mercur was eliminated by Gilbert Nunns, of Toronto, Canadian Davis Cup player, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

Hall gave Rogers a tussle for three sets, but when the third went to the Irishman after a prolonged battle of sixteen games the American faltered in the final set and was an easy victim to Rogers' brilliant stroking.

Nunns played a shrewd, calculating game against Mercur and took full advantage of the American's mistakes.

SAYS PEGLER

tered with the rubber protector that fighters wear to shield their lips from lacerations by their teeth. However, he seemed very drowsy. He put out his right glove to shake.

"I'm fine," said he. "No trouble about the weight. But that light hurts my eyes. Can I have a towel?"

Frank (Windows) Bagley unwrapped a roll of absorbent cotton and laid a strip of this across Sammy's eyes. Sammy then seemed to doze off again, with the fight not more than fifteen minutes away.

As he lay on the table under the deceptive light, Sammy's color seemed not unusual. He is of a sallow cast, anyway.

Rinsed His Mouth With Water.

Now he reports that about ten minutes before he left the dressing room Bagley suggested that he rinse his mouth with water. He also says that Bagley went somewhere outside the room to fill the water bottle, and Bodkin, casting amout for some explanation of Mandell's languor, reproaches himself for not fetching the water himself. However, they do not accuse Bagley, but are merely checking all incidents of the evening before the fight which might account for the strange faintness that Sammy now remembers as having numbed him, mind and body, before he entered the ring.

When Sammy took the ring his face, usually alight with expression, was glum and lifeless. He was listless and it is not hard to believe him when he new reports that he was dazed, although I must recall that he and Bodkin both claim he was all right fifteen minutes before.

Sammy's conduct in the first half-minute of the fight before Singer clipped him on the chin with a left hook was consistent with his claim that he was in a state something like coma. He made a couple of feeble pecks at Singer with his left and then, suddenly, Singer, a right-hand puncher, caught Sammy, one of the greatest boxers of his time, flush on the jaw with a left hand.

No Advice From His Corner.

In Mandell's corner were Kane, Bagley and Barney Furey, the old Negro trainer and second. A man who was sitting close there now reports that Kane squatted below the steps with a towel in his right hand and that Bert Stand, the secretary of the prize fight commission, yelled at him, "Don't throw that towel in there, Kane!" When that first went down, out of three old hands at the fight business in his corner, nobody had the presence of mind or the will to signal him the customary advice to a dazed fighter to stay down for a count of nine. He was up about the fourth second and Singer was on him again. And when he finally went down and out, it was the referee, Arthur Donovan, who raised his head and with some of Singer's seconds started to move him to his corner.

Since the fight Mandell has said he entered the ring oblivious to his surroundings, and he claims to remember nothing that happened before the left hook to the chin, except Kane's leading him out by the hand for the referee's instructions, which he could not hear.

Kane was not with him much of the time in his training camp, but lived in a hotel off Broadway. Bodkin had ridden him off, so to speak, some time ago and, although Kane and Sammy effected a new agreement, it was plain that manager and man were not cordial.

Incidentally, after the fight, Kane still insisted that Sammy entered the ring feeling well, whereas Mandell by morning had decided on a much different story, insisting now that something definite and mysterious had hurt him.

2 CHICAGO GOLFERS IN FINALS

Lehman, Winner Over Perkins, Plays Couch for Western Title.

BEVERLY COUNTRY CLUB, Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—The Western Amateur Golf championship was made safe for Chicago today as Johnny Lehman and Jra Couch, two of the Windy City's highest ranking young stars, crowded into the finals with surprising triumphs.

Lehman, co-medalist and conqueror yesterday of the defending champion, Don Moe, of Portland, Oreg., galloped into the final round with a crushing 8 and 7, defeat of England's last hope, T. Philip Perkins. Couch, never before a victor in an important tournament outside of Chicago, reached the round by defeating Bob McCrary, the "Fighting Scot" from Des Moines, Iowa, two and one.

It was the first time the championship battle ended in an all-Chicago affair since way back in 1912, when "Chick" Evans and Warren K. Wood fought for the crown over the Denver Country Club course.

Perkins Was Rated 3-to-1 Favorite.

Of the triumphs today that of Lehman's was the most startling. The methodical Briton, who dazzled the championship Beverly course yesterday with a record-equaling 69, went into the fight a three to one favorite, but didn't have a chance against his younger rival.

Lehman, former Big Ten champion, won his duel with Perkins by parfracturing golf on the in-nine of the morning round and on his outward journey under a blazing sun in the afternoon.

Stymies enabled Couch to stop McCrary. Four times he stymied the Scot and three times the obstacle meant lost holes.

Lehman will enter the finals tomorrow a big favorite. He defeated Lloyd Nordstrom, Davenport, Iowa, four and three, in the first round, George Dawson, Chicago, three and one in the second and Moe, one up after 37 holes in the quarter final. Couch has had an easier path, defeating rivals with lesser reputation.

Bausermans Battle Ballston Tomorrow

The Bauserman Motor Co. Nine will be out to add to its lead in the Virginia section race of the Capital City League tomorrow when it clashes with the Ballston Nine in a game that is expected to draw a record crowd to the Arlington diamond. Ballston will probably place its pitching hopes in the arm of Lefty Harris while Bauserman will use Calvert Hull on the mound.

In another Virginia game, the Jefferson Firemen will mete the Woodlawn Club on the Virginia Highlands Diamond.

Miss Wakeford Loses In West Va. Net Play

Special to The Washington Post.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., July 25.—Playing a game in which he outwitted his opponent constantly by drawing him to the net and then driving to the base and side lines, P. L. Goldsborough, jr., of Baltimore, defeated Paul Kunkel, of Cincinnati, and seeded player No. 1, 6—3, 6—4, to become finalist in the West Virginia open tennis tournament.

In the other semifinal game of the day Jake Hess, Fort Worth, defeated B. F. Arkle, Wheeling, in the fastest and most brilliant match of the day. The score was 7—5, 2—6, 8—6.

Allowing Marywill Wakeford, Washington, D. C., only two points in the first set, Mrs. De Lloyd Thompson, Washington, Pa., took the second set and match, 6—0, 6—2, in the singles semifinals. A tighter game occured between Eliza Coxe, Ashville, N. C., and Margaret Carspecken, Morgantown, with a score of hard fought games with many deuces which Miss Coxe finally won, 6—3, 6—1.

Hyattsville-Mt. Rainier Teams in 'Crucial' Fray

Prince Georges County sand lot fans are awaiting tomorrow's "crucial" battle between the Hyattsville and Mount Rainier nines of the Capital City League which will be played in the Byrd Stadium diamond at the University of Maryland, on the Baltimore pike. Although Hyattsville cannot take the lead by a victory, it can shave down Mount Rainier's margin to a half game.

It is expected that Mudd, of Hyattsville, will be opposed to Waple, of Mount Rainier; also the latter club may shift to Quigley, who beat the Dixie Pigs last Sunday.

ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL

BABE RUTH, the "Home Run King," the "Sultan of Swat" and what have you, in the way of titles for one who hits a baseball high and far away, is more than a home-run hitter. The Babe is a great baseball player, defensively as well as offensively.

Ruth never will get the credit for doing the things he does in the field because his outfielding is obscured by his slugging, but there is no "smarter" ball player in the game today.

Players who have worked with the Babe day in day out for years say they have never known him to throw the ball to the wrong base. His deadly throwing arm, not so strong, perhaps, as some others in the game, but bowering to none in accuracy, shoots the ball to the base ahead of the runner, unless the crafty baseball mind of the Babe thinks that is what the runner expects, and then he throws it behind him.

Johnny Stone, fleet Tiger outfielder, singled to right in a game against the Yankees and took the customary turn at first base, prepared to break for second if the ball should take a bad hop or be fumbled by Ruth. Ruth fielded the hit with the lazy ease he employs in such cases and then, instead of lobbing the ball to second base to turn Stone back, he fired it like a bullet into the waiting hands of Lou Gehrig at first base. Stone could not get back and was an easy out.

Ruth makes great fielding plays every day, although most of them are forgotten, lost in the shuffle of the home-run hitting that has made him famous.

Ty Cobb tried hundreds of smart plays, and many were successful, but his quick thinking was used more on the offense than in the field. Cobb and Hal Chase were wont to engage in a battle of wits in game after game. With Cobb on second or going from first to third on a hit, Chase always threw the ball to third, hoping to nab the Georgia Peach as he overran the base and took a tentative lead toward home. Finally Chase was beaten at his own game, for Cobb, figuring that Chase would throw the ball behind him at third, kept on going for the plate, and before the astonished third baseman could get the ball and make a hurried throw to head him off, Tyrus Raymond was sliding in with a run.

Paul Krichell, now Yankee scout, but formerly a catcher for the St. Louis Browns, was razzed for years for a play he made on Cobb, but Krichell still claims it was the right one.

Off to a big lead, Cobb started on a steal of second. Krichell saw that he had no chance to nail him, so he pegged to third base.

"It was the right play," says Krichell. "There was no earthly chance to get him at second, and there was a chance that he might keep right on going. If he had done so we would have had him. And as long as the third baseman had the ball he could make only one base. And that was no small feat—to hold Cobb to one bake."

Stanley R. (Bucky) Harris, the boy manager of the Washington Nationals, when the baseball representaitves of the National Capital were winning pennants in 1924 and 1925, is no longer a "boy wonder."

With the Tigers he is the "old man," the oldest player on the club in years. Bucky will not be 34 years of age until November, but no other Tiger is that old, now that Harry Heilmann has taken his big bats and moved to Cincinnati.

George Uhle, former Cleveland pitcher, who will be 32 in September, is next to the manager in age. But the senior of the outfit is "Old Man Harris."

The youngster of the team is Henry Greenberg, a New York boy without professional experience, who is only 19 years old. Greenberg, who is 6 feet 3½ inches tall and weighs 210 pounds, has been a first baseman during his brief career, but he is willing to play anywhere, and he may be converted into a third baseman.

It will seem odd to see a young giant prancing around third, but some big men have played the position in sensational style—Arthur Devlin, Bill Bradley, Harry Steinfeldt and others of the older school—and Pie Traynor, perhaps the best player at the position today, is no midget.

100 Alexandria Rooters To Accompany Legion Nine

ALEXANDRIA, Va., July 25.—City Manager Wallace Lawrence, of Alexandria, was named as chairman of the "On to Gastonia" committee, which will accompany the American Legion Junior Baseball Team to Gastonia, N. C., when that team departs to play in the quarter-finals of the American Legion junior baseball series on August 4.

The Alexandria municipal leader expects to lead 100 natives of this city on the trip to root for the local team, which has been offered new uniforms for the championship games. Jack Tullock was appointed chairman of the committee which will purchase the suits and also coat-ajckets for the players. A banquet has also been planned for the Alexandria team, which won its trip by coping the Virginia State baseball title.

J. Prex Wilson, athletic director of the American Legion Juniors, and Jimmy Bruin, captain of the team, delivered a talk over Radio Station WJSV last night and thanked the Alexandria citizens for the support given them in the State championship tournament.

Manager Bernard De Vaughan, of the Cardinal Athletic Club, is dickering for a series with the Del Ray Athletic Club. De Vaughan claims the Redbirds promised to play him another game. The Cards lost the first contest to this team, 2-1.

Woodrow Godfrey, 14-year-old diminutive third basemen of the American Legion Jr., is one of the best junior baseball players in the city. In the Richmond series Godfrey was the favorite with the fans. His hitting was on eof the features for the Alexandria Team.

Saturday in the final day for entries in the Municipal Tennis Tournament. Bill Moncure is chairman of this event.

Frank Mann, popular D. C. fight promoter, was a visitor in Alexandria Friday. Mann is considering promoting a smoker in the Virginia city in August.

Mickey Kelliher, former manager of the Hagerstown, Blue Ridge Team, and former big league baseball player, has been signed to coach the St. Mary's Celtic Baseball Team. Kelliher will be on the job Sunday when the Celtics cross bats with the Saks & Co. Nine. He is recuperating from a serious illness and will take his time in getting into condition.

George Oretell, former Knickerbocker Athletic Club player, signed a St. Mary Celtic contract today. Oretell will play third base for the Celtics on Sunday.

Charlie Horne, star pitcher with the Terminal Nine in the District Terminal League and for the St. Mary's Celtics, is ill and will be out of the ball game for several days.

Jack Allen, basketball manager of the St. Mary's Celtics, is already making plans for next year's team. Allen expects to take the boys on several long road trips.

Montgomery County Rival Nines Clash

While the Takoma Tigers, leading the Montgomery County sectino of the Capital City League meet the Colonials tomorrow on the Wheaton diamond, principle interest in the league's three-game schedule will be centered on the clash between the Bethesda and Chevy Chase Clubs on the Bethesda Field. These rivals will be battling to stay in the fight for the section banner. The other game in this division nivolved a clash of the Kensington and Rockville Nines which brings together two ardent rivals. The game is at Rockville. All of the league contests start at 3 o'clock.

VIRGINIA NET PLAY DRAWS BIG FIELD

Yeomans and Other D. C. Players May Participate.

HOT Springs, Virginia, July 26. The best field of entries that appeared in the Virginia State Open tennis tournament in many years will commence play on the Casino courts here Monday for the first renewal of the Virginia classic. In addition to many of the ranking players in the Middle Atlantic district several of the promising young college players of the country are entered.

Jake Hess, of Rice Institute, Texas, Earl Taylor and Allan Key, of the University of Texas, will represent that section of the country, while the youthful Martin Buxby, of Florida, former boy's national champion, will represent the South. A score of players from Washington and Baltimore will be here as well as many of the best players of Virginia.

Dr. John Howard, of Baltimore, former Virginia Open champion, is at the Homestead and will play in the tournament. It is also expected that Edgar Yeomans, North Carolina Star, C. Alphonso Smith, jr., Virginia player, will also be present.

A large entry of women players promises to provide a well-counted ladies singles event, with Miss Ellen Bates, of St. Louis and Miss Maude Williams, of Richmond and Mrs. Jackson Boyd, of New York, among the prominent women players.

Mid-Atlantic Head Will Attend.

Mr. R. S. Valentine jr., of Richmond, president of the Middle Atlantic Lawn

CLIMB IN U.S. STEEL HEADS STOCK RALLY

Prices Fitfully Drop Until Last 15 Minutes, When Losses Are Regained.

1,356,000 SHARES SOLD

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—The bulls gave the stock market another little boost today, but they waited until almost the last minute to do it.

Until the final quarter hour trading promised to be the dullest of the year, with prices declining under fitful short selling and an apparent lack of interest. When the decline had amounted to 1 to 3 points in the favorites, however, pool operations for the advance were assumed and closing quotations averaged nearly a point higher. Nevertheless, at best it was a quiet day and sales totaled only 1,356,000 shares, which, save for July 2, was the smallest full day turnover in two years.

Many of the day's developments marketwise were of a mildly favorable nature, but inadequate to generate any notable enthusiasm. Steward Warner increased its dividend and the stock advanced more than 3 points. The copper shares strengthened on the increased sales of the metal, indicating that a normal relationship between supply and demand was being established. A few favorable earnings statements, including that of air reduction, and the fact that railroad operating income for June was at least holding its own in comparison with recent months made the bear cause less attractive.

As has been the case since early in the month, the market went stale on the decline. Wall street is inclined to believe that stocks have been passing into strong hands from which they can be dislodged only by a strenuous liquidating movement, and this theory gained support from the behavior of the issue while under pressure today. Offerings dried up so completely that until the late rally it appeared as though sales would barely exceed 1,000,000 shares, establishing a new low for the past two years.

U. S. Steel up 2¾ Points.

The recovery was led by U. S. Steel, which converted a loss of about a point into a net gain of 2¾. American Telephone, which has been passing into investment accounts, turned a similar drop into a 1-point advance. American Can's extreme loss was slightly larger, but it finished nearly a point higher. General Electric's nominal decline was erased and the stock closed firm. General Motors was the steadiest of the leading shares, closing up a fraction.

Although the weekly business reviews were unable to report progress, they did point to improvement in sentiment. Dun's said this was "predicated chiefly upon prospective gains in business, evidences of actual expansion still being scattered." Bradstreet's said it seemed "certain that the more cheerful sentiment visible in recent weeks is still holding, pending the future progress of events." Both emphasized the continuance of midsummer dullness, which has been accentuated by the recent hot weather.

A larger export demand helped the wheat market and futures closed unchanged to slightly higher. Corn made more impressive rallies, ranging from nearly 1 cent to 1¾, reflecting unfavorable crop reports from Oklahoma and a good cash demand. Cotton was up 1 to 10 points net.

Oil shares were quiet and steady, Houston rallying a point. The day's news affecting this group included announcement of further restriction plans in Pennsylvania crude, bringing several additional counties into line.

Call Funds at 1 Per Cent.

Any fears that may exist as to the immediate course of money are being dissipated, rates on time loans were again pared, while call funds were available in the unofficial market at 1 per cent. This is the lowest in 15 years.

The outflow of gold to France was swelled by the withdrawal of an additional $3,000,000 for shipment to Paris, bringing the total of recent exports there to about $25,000,000.

Fluctuations in many of the trading stocks were narrow. Case broke nearly 3 points but closed more than 4 higher. Auburn auto dropped a few points, finishing unchanged. Eastman Kodak was strong holding above the previous close, and working nearly 8 points net higher.

There were advances of 1 to 8 points in Bethlehem Steel Foster Wheeler, Gillette, International Harvester, Vanadium, Westinghouse and Radio, National Cash Register was sold for a loss of more than a point.

Transamerica, which made its debut on the big board, was active, moving fractionally on either side of the last quotation on the curb, where it was traded until today. It closed ⅛ below that price.

Foreign currencies were quiet. Sterling and the French franc were steady, while the German mark rose a shade.

BOND SALES SLUMP; ADVANCES NOMINAL

Few Rails Continue to Rise, but Groups' Trend Drops Slightly.

FOREIGN ISSUES STEADY

New York, July 26 (A.P.).—Fixed income securities on the New York Stock Exchange gave an indifferent performance today. Progress was nominal with some recession in evidence in spots, and trading slowing down with the approach of the week-end.

The rally of railroad bonds which developed yesterday was short lived. While the greater part of the activity today centered in carrier issues, only a few rails continued their climb to higher levels, and a slight downward trend was in evidence at the close, with losses of a minor character.

Missouri Pacific general 4s and Pennsylvania general 5s gained a full point, and Atchison general 4s were firm. Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s and Great Northern 5½s were strong. Small concessions were made by New York Central issues, Union Pacific 4s, Big Four 4½s, St. Paul 5s, Delaware & Hudson 4s, Southern Railway 5s. Seaboard issues rose about 2 points.

Stock privilege issues fluctuated with stocks and the late rally influenced a firm position. Atchison 4½s gained a full point, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island 4½s, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron 6s were firm. St. Paul 5s and Warner Bros.' 6s were soft.

Foreign issues were steady. Fluctuations were small and sluggishness developed during the afternoon. Such issues as German 5½s, French 7½s and 7s, and Belgian 6½s, which have been strong this week, closed ⅛ lower. Austrian 7s, Westphalian 6s, Japan 5½s and Vienna City 6s were active and firm. South American issues were dull and steady.

United States Governments were neglected and changes of small consequence occurred in dealings, which were largely confined to Liberty bonds.

JULY 26, 1905.

Japan's peace envoys to the peace conference to be held here in the United States arrived in New York today.

A delegation of 65 Porto Ricans is being formed to present Congress with a petition for home rule.

Thirty-four deaths due to yellow fever have been reported to the health department of New Orleans, where yellow fever is epidemic.

Mr. and Mrs. William Collins reported to police that while walking on Hamilton road southeast, near their home, a highwayman, brandishing a razor, attacked them. Mrs. Collins' screams scared the man away before harm was done. He notified police of the Anacostia substation and Policeman K. Scherer was given a description of the man.

Secretary of War Taft and his party were given a demonstrative welcome when they arrived at Yokohama, Japan.

Washington is facing a water famine due to excessive consumption of water during the heat wave.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

RAW EGGS AND DISEASE.

T. Y. writes:

1. Are raw eggs injurious in any way?

2. Do chickens have tuberculosis?

3. Does one run a risk of catching tuberculosis from eating raw eggs?

REPLY.

1. To most people, raw eggs are wholesome. They seldom carry any disease-producing bacilli to human beings.

2. Yes; and their eggs may carry avian bacilli and the germs of white diarrhea.

3. No. Human beings in America are not subject to avian tuberculosis. White diarrhea is a disease of chicks, but not of humans.

MAY NOT BE HUNCHBACKS.

B. K. writes: I am engaged to a young man whose mother is a hunchback. I am quite certain there are no relatives on either side afflicted in this manner. Is there any possibility that our children will inherit this disorder? Is it true that in one of the future generations this condition will show itself?

REPLY.

The probability is that your children will not be hunchbacks. The condition, hunchback, may be due to tubercular infection of the spine, to some other infection, to occupation. In none of these instances is the deformity inheritable. Ewe neck may be inherited, but ewe neck is not hunchback.

SPINAL MENINGITIS.

M. H. writes:

1. Is spinal meningitis contagious?

2. How should the room be disinfected after a patient (a boy 19 years old) has been taken to the hospital?

3. Is it safe for another person to use the room, bed, mattress, and blankets he had when he took sick?

4. Is there any danger of relapse after he comes out of the hospital?

5. Is it safe for a girl 12 years old, not very strong, with a tendency toward colds, to live in the same small apartment when the boy comes out of the hospital?

REPLY.

1. Yes, but the danger that the contacts will develop meningitis is not great. The danger that they will become carriers is greater.

2. Thorough cleaning, sunning and airing is enough.

3. Yes, after such cleaning, sunning and airing.

4. No.

5. There is some danger.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

FAIRFAX TRADE BODY NAMES COMMITTEES

Two Special Groups Selected by County's Chamber of Commerce.

FIREMEN HOLD MEETING

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Crockett C. Carr, secretary of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, yesterday made public the list of the appointments of committees and chairmen appointed by President Edmund H. Allen for the ensuing year. The appointments are:

Finance committee, Martin T. Webb, Annandale, chairman; Lydema Sayre and Thomas R. Keith, Fairfax; J. Sidney Wiley, Lorton; E. C. Gibbs, Mount Vernon, and George P. Harrison, Herndon.

Industrial development committee, E. C. Gibbs, Mount Vernon, chairman; M. E. Church, Falls Church; Mason Hirst, Annandale; J. C. Mackall and Frank Lyon, McLean; C. H. Powell, Baileys Cross Roads, and Edgar T. Bennett, Vienna.

Educational committee, Herbert Williams, Woodford, chairman; F. S. McCandlish, Sara E. Thomas and W. T. Woodson, Fairfax; George C. Smith, Franconia; Willie Sipes, Annadale; Mrs. G. Ashley Money, Colvin Run; Herbert Haar, Lorton, and W. R. Crabill, Floris.

Public utility committee, George B. Robey, Fairfax, chairman; E. C. Gibbs, Mount Vernon; John Rooney, Dranesville; M. E. Church, Falls Church, and Thomas R. Keith, Fairfax.

Agriculture and marketing committee, Franklin Williams, Vienna, chairman; T. Bentley Mason and Harvey S. Clapp, Mount Vernon; H. B. Deer, Fairfax; R. Colton Lewis, Clifton; Joseph Bristow, Annadale, and Wilson McNair, Floris.

Highways, parks and planning committee: George F. Harrison, Herndon, chairman; J. X. Cox, of Falls Church district, Carroll V. Shreve, Falls Church; John W. Brookfield, Springfield; John W. Rust, Fairfax; Joseph Wheeler, Browns Chapel, and W. F. Hawley, Lorton.

County-wide fire protection committee: Leon L. Freeman, Vienna, chairman; J. H. Beattie, McLean; Lewis Coyner and Thomas P. Chapman, jr., Fairfax; W. A. Fravel, Falls Church; Herbert Walker, and M. M. Barnard, Lorton.

Publicity committee: C. C. Carr, Fairfax, chairman; Margaret C. Rosbury, Falls Church; Herbert Blunt, Groveton; M. P. Smith, Falls Church; W. F. Carne, Fairfax; Earl T. Mutersbaugh, Chesterbrook, and W. Lamb, of Herndon.

Health and sanitation: Robert E. Feagans, Fairfax, chairman; Dr. William P. Caton, Lorton; Dr. William Meyer, Herndon; Mrs. Louise S. Manghum, Franklin Park, and Mrs. Herbert L. Seamons, Herndon.

Capt. Thurlow White will represent the county chamber on the interrelations committee composed of representatives from the chambers of surrounding counties. Two special committees were also named this year. The first for the 1932 bi-centennial celebration of the birth of George Washington, composed of Edmund H. Allen of Newington, chairman, Representative R. Walton Moore, Fairfax, Charles H. Callahan, Alexandria, the Rev. C. A. Langston, Pohick; R. A. Castleman, Falls Church; J. W. Brookfield, Springfield; Thomas R. Keith, Fairfax, and Mrs. Franklin Williams, Vienna. The special county fair committee will be composed of Mrs. G. Ashley Money of Colvin Run, chairman and W. J. Cleveland, of Annandale.

Allan Williams, of Fairfax; Benjamin F. McGuire, of Herndon, and J. F. Royston, of Falls Church, were appointed a special committee by the Fairfax County Fireman's Association, to inspect school buildings in the county and urge school board to install fire escapes where necessary. This is a continuance of the association's campaign to make the schools of the county safe from fire hazards. Several of the schools in Providence Magisterial District have already been supplied with fire extinguishers through the efforts of the McLean Volunteer Department.

The five departments in Fairfax County submitted a tentative list of the equipment needed to the association, which in turn will submit it to the county board of supervisors. These necessities will be provided from the county-wide 3-cent levy for fire protection purposes, available this fall. The association deferred action on this list until the August meeting, as several of the departments have not completed their lists. Herndon is asking for hose only, McLean is asking for boots, coats and helmets, in addition to hose. Equipment purchased by the county will be loaned to the companies, as the money can only be used to purchase supplies. The departments can not draw on this fund to pay off indebtedness on fire apparatus or buildings. The purchases will be made through the office of the county engineer after they have been approved by the supervisors.

Members of the association plan to attend the McLean Carnival in a body on both August 2 and 9. Departments that have held their carnivals reported amounts they cleared. The August meeting of the association will be held in Falls Church.

The White Front Riding Academy's Horse Show will be held this afternoon on the academy grounds at Herndon. This show is being held for the benefit of the Herndon Chapter, Daughters of America. Manager Herbert M. Powell reports that a large number of entries have been made.

The ninth annual Forestville Day will be celebrated today on the Great Falls Grange Hall grounds, near Forestville, on the old Georgetown-Leesburg Pike. Many interesting features have been planned.

The proceeds of this year's celebration will be placed in a separate account to help meet the next payment on the Grange Hall Building. L. B. Morris is acting general chairman with J. Oswald Carper as secretary and Mark Turner as treasurer.

James W. Shackelford, of Columbia road near Nineteenth street northwest, Washington, was arrested by County Traffic Policeman Arthur W. Mills on the Richmond-Washington highway near Accotink. Shackelford was taken before Justice of the Peace Harry Shephard at Accotink and charged with reckless driving. After hearing the evidence Justice Shepherd imposed a fine of $25 and costs.

Sea Scout Leaders to Be at Regatta.

Leaders of several Sea Scout units of the District are planning to attend the regatta of the Keystone Yacht Club at Philadelphia today and tomorrow, at which trophies will be awarded for various Sea Scout events.

Harrisonburg Man Held in Car Death

Leo Cavey Will Get Hearing Next Week in Fatal Road Accident.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 25.—Leo Cavey, of Harrisonburg, was held responsible for the death of Paulson Heishman, 21-year-old Shenandoah County youth, who was killed on the valley pike at the northern limits of the city last Friday when struck by the poultry truck driven by Cavey, in a verdict rendered today by Justice J. C. Staples, acting coroner.

The verdict added that Heishman was guilty of contributory negligence because he did not signal to the truck that he was standing in the pike beside his disabled car. The coroner asserted that the poor lighting of the truck also contributed to the tragedy. Cavey will be given a preliminary hearing next week.

George Buhl, of Lacey Spring, the third man figuring in the crash, was found today by officers. He testified that he was trying to tow Heishman's stalled automobile at the time the truck approached. Buhl said that he left the scene so hurriedly because he wanted to avoid trouble, having previously been cited for a traffic violation. The identity of Buhl was not discovered until today.

ALEXANDRIA TO SELL LANDS FOR 1929 TAX

685 Pieces of Property Are Advertised for Auction to Be Held August 4.

LUTHERANS GET PASTOR

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 623.

City Collector W. R. Purvis Taylor has advertised 685 pieces of property, on which the city taxes have not been paid for the year 1929, for sale at public auction at noon on August 4, the smallest assessment being 34 cents and the largest $609.29. This is the largest number of delinquents for a number of years, and of this number 525 parcels are owned by white persons and 160 colored.

The published list is compiled from records of January 1, 1929, and since that date there have been many transfers, consequently the names listed in some instances as delinquent are not now the owners of the property in question.

The city collector recently announced that the list was being compiled for publication and that, although many persons may pay their taxes prior to the date named, the lits would remain unchanged for the first publcation. A number have paid in the past week. Interest at the rate of 6 per cent per year, together with a $1 fee for advertising, is charged before the name are dropped as delinquent.

Owing to long litigation in past years in connection with property bought at tax sales, few persons bid, and in recent years practically all of the property has been bought in by the city, property owners reclaiming from time to time, after paying all back taxation and assessments.

Immanuel Lutheran Church, of this city, will tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock ordain as pastor the Rev. Elmer F. Leonhardt, the service to be in charge of the Rev. H. Hennig, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Washington, who will preach the sermon and ordain the new pastor, according to the rites of the Lutheran Church. In this ceremony he will be assisted by the Rev. J. F. Wenchel and the Rev. T. A. Mueller, both of Washington.

Immanuel Church has been without a pastor since Easter, when the Rev. Carl Goette, who had been pastor of the local church for 12 years, accepted a call to the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in York, Pa.

The Rev. Mr. Leonhardt is a graduate of the class of 1926 of Concordia Collegiate Institute, Bronxville, N. Y. He studied theology at Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., the largest seminary of the Lutheran Church, and probably the largest seminary of any denomination in the United States. From this seminary he graduated a year ago, and has passed the year in private study and research at his home in East View, a suburb of Pittsburgh. He was highly recommended to Immanuel Church by the ecclesiastical authorities, and a unanimous call was extended to him on July 1.

The representatives from the Second Presbyterian Church, who attended the Young People's Conference at Massanetta Springs, have returned. The conference had 500 members enrolled.

The Rev. Ernest M. Delaney, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, taught the course on "Home Missions." Miss Alice Gronau was the clan leader. Others who attended were Miss Mary Kirchner, Miss Marguerite Kirchner, Miss Lillian Humphries, Miss Mildred Roxby, Miss Jean Slaymaker, Clarence Ale, Marshall Heyden and Samuel Armistead.

These young people, with others from the two societies of the church, will conduct a vesper candlelight service in the auditorium of the church at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night.

Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who is in New York City conferring with the officials of the International Zeppelin Transport Corporation in the interest of having that company establish the Zeppelin airport at Hybla Valley, just south of Alexandria, sent a telegram to this city yesterday in which he stated that a lighter-than-air expert will be in Alexandria within the next week or ten days to inspect the site and gather data.

Judge Howard Worth Smith, candidate for representative from the Eighth Congressional District, will speak on the campaign issues at 7:45 o'clock tonight, over Station WMAL.

Virginia Authoress, 83, Dies After Long Illness

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 25.—Mrs. Mary Gray Carter, 83, wife of B. M. Carter, died today at her home, Carter Hall, near Stephens City, following several years' gradual decline.

She was actively identified with the first Baptist Church here for many years, and was so devoted to children that neighbors said she had reared upward of 200 orphans and waifs since she came to Frederick County a bride, 50 years ago. Gifted as a writer, she had contributed articles and letters of travel at home and abroad to many publications.

COURTHOUSE WORK AGAIN IS DELAYED

Montgomery Officials, in Secret Session, Hold Off Choosing Builder.

REFUSE TO GIVE REASON

Montgomery County again was disappointed yesterday when the Montgomery County Commissioners and the general courthouse building committee failed to name the successful bidder for the construction of the proposed Montgomery County Courthouse at Rockville.

Following a conference of several hours by the courthouse building committee behind closed doors in the Rockville courthouse, it was announced that the building committee had made its recommendations; and the Board of County Commissioners went into session, also behind closed doors.

After another lengthy conference it was announced that the commissioners had postponed action on the contract until Tuesday, when another meeting of the building committee will be held.

No definite reason was given for the delay, and this gave rise to a number of rumors around Rockville that the commissioners had been influenced by the latest anti organization move—the demand that the bid be awarded to a Maryland firm that would employ Maryland union labor.

While none of the officials concerned would discuss the postponement of the award which had been advertised for today, it is believed that the letter written to Capt. Chester Wells by R. E. Milor, Washington builder, asking the captain to use his influence with the committee and the commissioners to secure the award to a Maryland firm, has created at least a temporary stumbling block.

Mr. Milor declared that he believed the North Carolina firms which had made the lowest and second lowest bids would bring North Carolina workmen to the project and that he and a large group of county citizens believed it more proper that Maryland unemployed should be given work on a project of so much importance which was costing Maryland taxpayers nearly $400,000.

The entire proceedings yesterday were conducted behind closed doors, even the meeting of thecounty commissioners, which ordinarily is open to the public.

Engineers for the Washington Gas Light Co. have been making a survey in Rockville for several days with a view to the extension of gas mains to the county seat, it was learned yesterday. It is expected that a report will be completed within a few days upon which the gas company will base its decision on whether or not to extend its mains to Rockville.

The gas company is now laying a main from Silver Spring to Kensington and it is explained that should the company decide to furnish gas to Rockville this main could be extended to the county seat by way of Garrett Park or from Bethesda by way of the Rockville pike.

The quarterly meeting of the Pomona grange of Montgomery and Howard counties will be held Thursday at Germantown.

Special Grand Jury Called in Torch Deaths

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., July 25.—Two indictments charging Elwood Payne, colored, with the murder of both Allie Corbin and his daughter, Estelle, will be presented to a special grand jury Wednesday at the county seat, Warrenton, Va. Corbin died July 7 from wounds alleged inflicted by Payne, and his daughter, Estelle, died July 23 from burns and wounds resulting from the same attack.

Judge J. R. H. Alexander, of the Twenty-sixth judicial circuit, which includes the county of Fauquier, today ordered the special term.

The prosecution of Payne will be conducted by C. W. Carter, commonwealth's attorney for Fauquier County, assisted by John Galleher, Commonwealth's attorney of Loudoun.

Virginia Third State In Number of Lambs

Richmond, Va., July 25 (A.P.).—Virginia sheep growers this year raised 429,000 lambs, a slight increase over the crop of 428,000 in 1929, the Federal State Crop Reporting Service estimates in a report issued here by John A. Hicks, agricultural statistician.

Virginia was the third highest State in the number of lambs raised, with a proportion of 112.6 for each 100 ewes, being surpassed only by Kentucky with 120.4 and West Virginia with 116.3. The 1930 lamb crop of the United States was about 2,000,000 head or 8 per cent larger than the lamb crops of 1928 and 1929. The number of lambs saved per 100 ewes 1 year old or older on January 1 was 89.1 in 1928, 83.9 in 1929, and 87.3 in 1930.

Richmond Man Named Pastor at Front Royal

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., July 25.—The Front Royal Baptist Church has called the Rev. Walter T. Burton, of Richmond, Va., to become pastor of the church to succeed the Rev. H. J. Parker, who accepted a call to a Richmond church.

Mr. Burton filled the pulpit here Sunday morning and evening. He recently received his degree from the theological seminary in Louisville, Ky. He has accepted the call and will assume his duties on the second Sunday in August.

Maryland Police Find Cab That Was Stolen

The nickel taxicab that was stolen Thursday night by three men and two women on the Crain highway between Washington and Baltimore was recovered by Laurel, Md., State police late yesterday.

The machine was found on the Crain highway near Severn Run. J. N. Vermillon, of Pennsylvania avenue near Twenty-fourth street, the driver of the car, told police that the party of men and women had hired the car to drive to Baltimore. On the return trip, he said, he was ordered out of the car at pistol point. The men and women drove off in the car and the driver walked several miles to the nearest telephone to report the theft to the Laurel substation. Search is being continued for the men and women.

DROUGHT WITHERS MARYLAND CROPS

Farmers Face Total Failure, From District Boundary to Alleghanies.

LACK WATER FOR STOCK

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., July 25.—Western Maryland, partically from the District of Columbia line to the Alleghany Mountains, West of Cumberland, is in the throes of one of the most serious drouths for 25 years. The excessive heat, from 102 to 107½ degrees, has played havoc with crops and vegetation and, unless rain soon comes, farm produce will be a total failure. In Frederick and adjoining counties, the crops are on the verge of ruination.

The Potomac and Monocacy Rivers are lower than for years. Many creeks are almost dry, others have ceased to flow. A dozen or more towns are threatened with a water shortage.

Pasture fields are scorched and farmers are buying feed for their cattle, something unheard of in summer time. In many localities farmers are compelled to drive their cattle a long distance for water.

Very little rain has fallen since the latter part of May. The strawberry crop was a failure and raspberries, blackberries and dew berries are drying on the vines. Corn canners declare the pack outlook is dismal. Fields of corn are brown from the burning rays of the sun. Farmers are selling their cattle on account of the pasture failure. Because of the low price of wheat, many farmers are feeding their grain to the hogs.

Restrictions have been placed on the use of water in this city. Warnings have been sent from the State Forestry Department against mountain fires. One of the largest lookout towers in Frederick County has been re-opened on the city watershed to guard against fire. Never before has a fire tower been kept open in this county after the spring season. The tower was re-opened after a fire swept over 500 acres of watershed land before it was checked. Another fire near Braddock destroyed 3,000 new pine trees planted several years ago.

Carolina Names Institute Group

26 Delegates Appointed by Governor to Attend Session at University.

Charlottesville, Va., July 25 (A.P.).—Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina has appointed 26 delegates to attend the fourth institute of public affairs, which is to be held at the University of Virginia from August 3 to 16.

Gov. Gardner has tentatively accepted an invitation from Dr. Charles G. Maphis, director of the institute, to be present at some of the sessions of the round table on "The Reorganization of State Government," which will be led by Harry Flood Byrd, former Governor of Virginia.

Men and women are both included on Gov. Gardner's list of appointees, which is as follows: E. B. Jeffress, Greensboro; Prof. S. H. Hobbs, jr., Chapel Hill; Dr. E. C. Branson, Chapel Hill; Miss Harriet Elliott, Greensboro; Miss Gertrude Weill, Goldsboro; Mrs. E. L. McKee, Sylva; C. M. Johnson, Raleigh; Miss Ethel Parker, Gatesville; Dr. H. W. Odum, Chapel Hill; T. Wingate Andrews, High Point; Robert Latham, Asheville; A J. Maxwell, Raleigh; Edwin Gill, Laurinburg; George Watts Hill, Durham; Dr. Frank Graham, Chapel Hill; J. E. S. Thorpe, Bryson City; Dr. W. D. Moss, Chapel Hill; Dr. William L Potent, Wake Forest; Prof. George F. McAlister, Mount Pleasant; Dr. Charles E. Maddry, Raleigh; the Rev. J Clyde Turner, Greensboro; the Rev. Harry M. North, Wilmington; the Rev. H. C. Sprinkle, Salisbury; the Right Rev. W. J. Hafey, Raleigh; the Right Rev. E. A. Penick, Charlotte; the Rev. Fred B. Drane, Monroe.

Baptist Association To Hold Yearly Session

Special to The Washington Post.

Bedford, Va., July 25.—The Strawberry Baptist Association will hold its annual meeting at the local Baptist church, Wednesday and Thursday, July 30 and 31. This association covers the Baptist churches in Bedford County, the city of Lynchburg, and a few churches in Campbell and Franklin counties, a total of 55 churches.

Dr. J. A. Rucker, of Bedford, is moderator and the Rev. Horace Wilkinson, of the same place, secretary of the association.

Cottage City Preacher To Speak in Washington

The Rev. G. G. Kundahl, pastor of the Cottage City Presbyterian Church, will be the speaker tomorrow night at 7:45 in the services at Central Union Mission, 613 C street northwest. Special singing will be furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Aldrich, of the National Baptist Memorial Church.

During the week nightly services at the Mission will be sponsored by churches represented by the Mission as follows: Monday night the Christian Endeavor of the United Brethren Church; Tuesday night, the Christian Endeavor of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church; Wednesday night, the Christian Endeavor of the National Baptist Memorial Church; Thursday night, the Christian Endeavor of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church; Friday night, the Pitzer Bible Class of Central Presbyterian Church, and Saturday night, the Temple Baptist Church.

FORT MYER CAMP HORSE SHOW SCENE

Reserve Officer Candidates Honor Institute's Cavalry Commandant.

RIFLE SCORES ARE HIGH

Maj. J. B. Wise, cavalry commandant at Virginia Military Institute, was the guest of honor at the annual horse show of the R. O. T. C. at Fort Myer, Va., yesterday.

The training program at Fort Myer will end today, after which the R. O. T. C. candidates will be granted a month's leave before returning to their winter training schedule at V. M. I.

The horse show this year was larger than ever before, with the number of entries double those of last year. The main classes of the show included individual and pair jumping, hunt teams, general equiation and several individual exhibitions of horsemanship.

McLane and Holbrook Judges.

Maj. John T. McLane and Lieut. W. A. Holbrook, both of the Third U. S. Cavalry, were the judges. Among the guests were Miss Katherine Harrison, daughter of Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi; Miss Betty Shipley, of Washington; Miss Jean MacDonald, daughter of Col. W. I. MacDonald, and Miss Alice Becktold, of Philadelphia. A dance in the post hop room completed the day's program.

Regular Army officers of the Third Cavalry at Fort Myer, R. O. T. C. candidates from Fort George G. Meade, Md., and Fort Humphreys, Va., will be among the guests at the graduation.

Practice on Rifle Range.

The C. M. T. C. candidates who left Fort Myer Wednesday now are at Camp Simms, the District National Guard rifle range. Several of them made scores of 90 out of a possible 100 on their first day at the range. The man making the best record will be sent to Camp Perry, Ohio, to compete in the national rifle and pistol matches.

Washington residents won many of the honors awarded to the R. O. T. C. cadets at Fort George G. Meade yesterday. Henry J. Whiting, of 55 Adams street northwest, and Willis T. Frazier, of 6629 First street northwest, were designated as honor students from the University of Maryland unit.

Five Washington men were decorated for rifle marksmanship. They are Frederick H. Marshall, 4221 Seventh street northwest; Walter Bonnett, 22 Adams street northwest; B. Frank Cox, 6615 First street northwest; W. Edward Roberts, 2334 R street southeast, all students at the University of Maryland; and Frank A. Stutz, 413 Quincy street northwest, of Lehigh University.

Capital Men Score Well.

Washington men who qualified in pistol marksmanship are Frederick H. Marshall, 4221 Seventh street northwest; Willis T. Frazier, 6629 First street northwest; David S. Miller, 29 U street northwest; Henry J. Whiting, 55 Adams street northwest; Conrad E. Grohs, 319 Fifteenth street northeast; Charles W. Pimper, 1140 Fifteenth street northwest; John L. Bischoff, 1426 Crittenden street northwest, and Luther W. Gray, 1419 Foxall road.

Visitors' day will be celebrated today by the C. M. T. C. candidates from Washington, Maryland and Pennsylvania at Fort Monroe, Va., when medals and prizes offered by the War Department and civic organizations will be presented.

Virginia Melons on Market.

The first boat of the season bringing watermelons into Washington from Virginia reached Washington yesterday. It was the first time that a Virginia boat arrived ahead of a North Carolina carrier. The boat was the Fishhawk.

ARLINGTON LEADERS WILL AID PARK PLAN

Commerce Body Executives to Take Part in State Educational Drive.

LAWYERS' GROUP MEETS

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The executive committee of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, meeting last night at Clarendon, discussed plans to institute a State-wide campaign in the early fall for Virginia's participation in the parkway development program under the Cramton park act.

The committee approved an educational program, suggested by the special committee of which William S. Hoge, jr., is chairman. The chamber will appoint representatives to visit and address every chamber of commerce in the State in an effort to gain cooperation in raising funds with which to match the Federal Government in the park development.

It was pointed out by Chairman Hoge and Hugh Lee Kirby, a member of the committee, that Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3d, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, has agreed to furnish a motion picture machine and two men to accompany the representatives from the local chamber on its tour of the State. Special films will be used to show Washington and its environs as they are now and as they will appear if the parkway development is carried out.

The educational campaign will be directed either toward favorable action by the next General Assembly, or in the raising of funds by subscription or by the individual counties that are interested. The matter was referred to the park and playground committee, with instructions to work out a detailed program and report to the executive committee at its September meeting.

Reporting on progress for the Lee boulevard, Mr. Hoge announced that only $4,000 remained to be raised to complete the purchase of right of way for the boulevard and that it was expected that amount will be raised within the next few days. With completion of the purchase of right of way, Hoge stated, the State Highway Department will start to grade the highway, as $100,000 already has been alloted by the State Highway Commission for this purpose.

The boulevard is to be a 60-foot highway on a 200-foot right of way and will give Virginia its first direct connection with the New Memorial Bridge, which is rapidly nearing completion. The United States government will construct the highway from the bridge to the western boundry of Fort Myer Military Reservation; from that point the state will continue its construction as far as Falls Church.

The committee, at its meeting last night, after much discussion, made tentative plans for inauguration of a "patronize home industries" movement. The matter was referred to the advertising committee, with instructions that it draft appropriate posters and also work out a comprehensive program for an extensive campaign.

The special committee of which Walter U. Varney is chairman, including Harry R. Thomas, W. Thomas French, Hugh Reid and Lawrence Douglas, appointed by the Arlington County Bar Association to study the question of a change in the present form of county government, met yesterday in the office of the chairman.

While reaching no definite decision, Chairman Varney last night announced that the committee is of the opinion there should be a change from the present county supervisor form of county government. He further stated that the committee will hold another meeting in the near future, when it will continue its study of the act of the general assembly which provides for a change in the present form of county government.

Mr. Varney said that the committee will meet Monday night with the committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation at the home of the chairman, Robert N. Anderson, in Lyon Village. At this meeting the committee will receive a report from Arthur Orr on a study of governments of incorporated cities in Virginia which he has compiled from his recent trip over the State at the request of the committee.

Returning from Richmond yesterday, Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of public welfare in Arlington County, and Mrs. N. R. Davies gave a report on the Hospital for Crippled Children, which is maintained by the State. There are four children from the county at the hospital and all are doing well, Mrs. Jacobs stated.

"Words can not express the wonderful work which is being accomplished by the State for the 60 children at this institution," Mrs. Jacobs said.

While at Richmond, Mrs. Jacobs, turned over to the State Welfare Board Waldo Anderson, Harry Tillitt, and Leland Cox. She announced last night that Nellie Chancey, 9 years old, of Arlington County, who for the past seven months has been confined at the Children's Hospital in Washington, is being taken to the Home for Crippled Children at Atlantic City. The welfare board of the county has been assisted in taking care of this child by the Ladies Auxiliary of Arlington Post, American Legion, and the Arlington County Chapter, American Red Cross.

Cherrydale Lodge, No. 42, A. F. and A. M., will hold its annual picnic today at Morgantown, Md.

Large crowds continue to visit the annual carnival of the Arlington County Social Club, on the field at Wilson boulevard and Clements avenue, in Ballston, each night. The big feature is the dancing, which starts at 9 o'clock and continues until midnight.

The affair will continue through next week and the committee has announced special attractions for each night. Proceeds will go to the building fund to erect a community house on the site on which the carnival is being held.

Services at the Clarendon Methodist Church tomorrow will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. George H. Fielding. At the morning service his subject will be "The Unjust Steward." In the evening there will be a union service, at which he will preach on "Peter, the Man of Impulse."

The Senior and Hi-League will meet in the church tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock.

Piedmont Sweeps Veterans' Meeting

All Officers Are From Same Town and Convention for 1921 Is Won.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 25.—The town of Piedmont, W. Va., made a clean sweep of the annual encampment of West Virginia department, Spanish-American War Veterans, at Charleston.

As a result of Piedmont's interest Norris Bruce, of Piedmont, is commander of the department for the ensuing year; George C. Dixon, Piedmont, is chief of staff, and C. A. Boyles, Piedmont, is departmental adjutant and quartermaster.

In addition, Dixon was elected delegate to the national encampment in Philadelphia in August and C. A. Boyles alternate.

To top honors, departmental headquarters is moved from Charleston, where it has been located for years, to Piedmont and the State encampment for 1931 comes to Piedmont.

Berkeley County Tax Cut Refused

Slash in Valuations Would Be Illegal, Board of Review Decides.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 25.—By a two-to-one vote the Berkeley County board of equalization and review yesterday declined to grant a publicly-presented plea for a 20 per cent horizontal reduction in real estate valuations throughout the city and county as a means to taxation relief.

The board's decision was rendered after several hours of hearing arguments, both for and against the proposal, and a secret conference. Its position was predicated, it was indicated, on the assumption that any horizontal cut would be illegal, and that any such blanket reduction would be abortive as a tax-reductive procedure, resulting only in increasing the tax rate to get the necessary funds for work of the public institutions.

Lewis H. Thompson, the minority member, favored a compromise cut of 10 per cent largely as a direct appeal to the levying bodies to reduce their expenditures in keeping with the enforced private economies today. The other two members, voting the refusal, were President C. W. Ruble and G. C. Dehaven.
